Dedication

The book is dedicated by the author to Mr. H. F. Minssen, who initiated the enterprize, took upon himself the many perplexing problems connected with publication and sale, and by patience, perseverance, and painstaking planning, has overcome all difficulties and brought the volume from manuscript to print.

PREFACE

Even in this day of efficiency, speed and forward rush of youth on earth and in air, there is still, or should be, impressiveness for the most youthfully daring in some forms of the old, in the thought, for instance, that California possesses the oldest living thing known—the Redwood. Before the Caesars flourished, before Christ was born, these trees were.

We should know this; should marvel at it; should know the colorful history of the state, through Indian, Spanish, and gold fever days; should get a background of understanding and appreciation of any place where we may be at any time. A regard—a reverence—for the past of anything is a fine balance wheel for us in our present flight and forward pressing.

And any student who enters this State College for even a short time should know something of the history of the school. If he remains a while, he wants to know. If he "sees it through" he is proud to know. As the years go on he feels he ought to know the history of the first and oldest State Normal School in California, and the ninth in actual establishment in the United States. We glow pleasurably with satisfaction at the record—only, where is the record? There is none except in loyal hearts; no record, that is, for forty years.

In 1889 a "Historical Sketch of the State Normal School of California" at San Jose, California was prepared by Miss Ruth Royce, a graduate of this school and for many years Librarian. Her history could not be excelled in information and accuracy. It is an invaluable work.

But in the years since 1889 there have been developments, happenings, changes to an amazing degree that we should like to know about, and with the taking on of College status, it seemed to me that the time had come to bring the history of our institution up to date. I took up the matter with former trustees, prominent alumni, students, faculty members, and all were enthusiastic. All agreed that the time was ripe for such a history. Committees were appointed, and research started, but the work lagged. The task, if well done, began to loom as a more stupendous thing than on the face it seemed. If some one person could be found to give up his time to the task, something might be accomplished.

And the one person was found, Mrs. S. Estelle Greathead, a graduate of our institution and for many years a member of the faculty. With her knowledge of the school, her interest, care, accuracy, and her fine literary ability, she was the ideal person for the task.

Mrs. Greathead has labored faithfully for over a year collecting, shaping, and editing material, and the issue is now before you in this "History of an Inspiring Past." We hope that it will give you the pleasure and profit to possess and read it that it has given us to conceive and produce it.

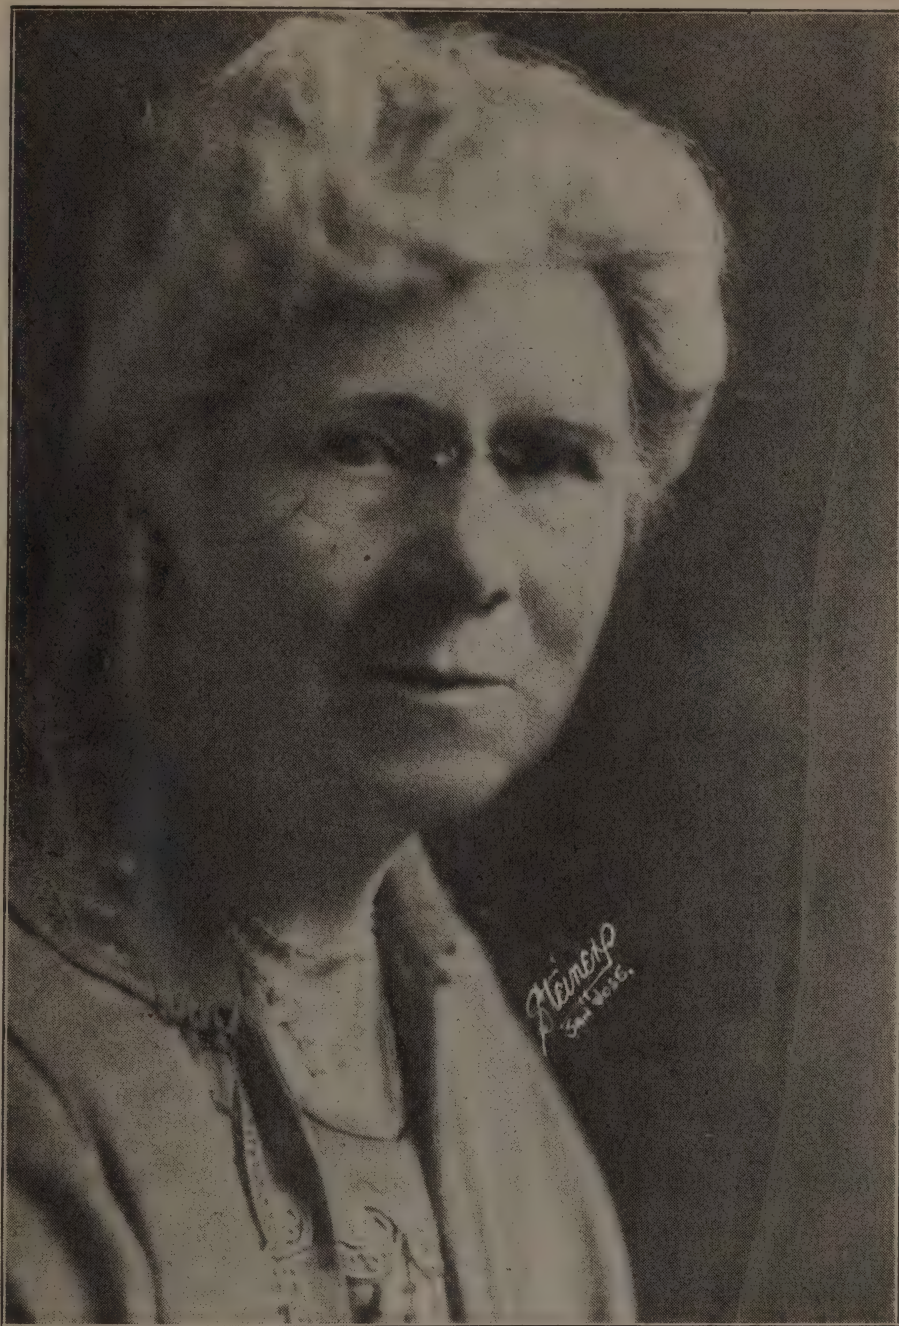

H. F. MINSEN, Vice President.

FOREWORD

When Mr. H. F. Minssen, Acting President, asked the writer, a year ago last March to put together the history of this school, the task seemed rather overwhelming. However, its very stupendousness had an appeal, and it promised not only an interesting piece of work, but as well, it held the hope of a worthwhile contribution to the institution we all love.

It must be admitted that many times during the process of construction the thought has obtruded itself, that perhaps the old adage that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread" had an apt illustration in this case. Be that as it may, one thought is rather comforting, if the value of the book is in any way commensurate with the labor involved in its construction, it should be priceless.

In writing "The Story of an Inspiring Past" the writer has been motivated by a definite aim. That aim has been to embody in a permanent and concrete fashion the traditions, the memories, the pulsing life that has made this institution the power that it is today. Spirit is elusive, but it is none the less real. It has expressed itself through every individuality connected with this college, and it has been the endeavor to capture this spirit and enclose it within the covers of a book for future reference.

This spirit has been manifested in every step of development and is woven into the fabric which we call Alma Mater just as the silken thread is woven into the currency note to indicate its genuineness.

One thing should be stated to the graduates who will leaf over the class history, and that is, that in spite of the most scrupulous and painstaking effort to insure absolute accuracy it is certain that errors will have crept in. The material has been gathered in a variety of ways—first-hand wherever possible—and the utmost care has been exercised in recording nothing but verified data when one remembers that between 11,000 and 12,000 graduates have been considered, and human fallibility is taken into the account, it is safe to assume that errors are inevitable.

One other point. There are undoubtedly some—perhaps many—who have reached the dignity of writing Mrs. before their names, and no record of the new name will be found in the book. The writer yearned to write Mrs. before the name of every girl who had been away from this institution for any considerable number of years, but unfortunately, did not feel justified in doing so without authority. This forms the text of a brief sermon. It is this: Always inform your Alma Mater of any change of name or address.

The historical sketch of the State Normal School published in 1889 under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Allen and the skilled hand of Miss Ruth Royce has been of invaluable assistance, and liberty has been taken to incorporate in the present book much of the matter so carefully prepared by Miss Royce.

This is felt by the writer a privileged opportunity for expressing grateful appreciation to Mr. Minssen and other members of the faculty, as well as Alumni and Student Body for their very cordial and ready response to all appeals, their assistance, and best of all for their faith in the ultimate success of the undertaking. Without this faith and support, so generously and unflinchingly given, this book could never have reached fulfillment.

S. ESTELLE GREATHREAD.

FOUNDATION

The early years of the school's history have been quite fully and carefully set forth in the Historical Sketch published in 1889. It is not the intention to repeat in detail the matter there outlined. However, it is desirable, in order to present a complete picture, to review briefly some of the outstanding facts which form the skeleton of the structure we are trying to build. This structure, when completed, should give a fairly enlightening story of the San Jose State Normal School and Teachers College.

A city Normal School had been conducted in San Francisco as early as 1857, and was known as the Minns' Evening Normal School, sessions being held weekly and attendance of the San Francisco teachers being compulsory.

The need for teacher training had been steadily growing in the thought of the state's pioneer educators, and their untiring zeal culminated in an act of the legislature passed May 2, 1862, establishing a State Normal School and providing an appropriation of $3000 for its support for five months. This rather timid but epochal event set in motion forces that have reacted in generous and powerful measure upon the life of this state; and in this connection the names of Andrew J. Moulder, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, John Swett and his successor, and other far-seeing educators of the time should be gratefully remembered.

In order to keep ourselves properly humble a quotation from the very excellent report addressed to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction by the committee appointed during a meeting of the San Francisco Teachers Institute in 1861, indicates that the same problems confronting educational thought today were present at the time this school was organized. The emphasis was different; the terminology was different; but the big aims and ideals had a fundamental basis, and all are seen, if reviewed in a broad sense, struggling toward the same goal.

"In a Normal School the principles of teaching are considered both as a science and an art. Its subjects are the powers, capacities, and laws of growth of the mind; the order, as to time, in which the different faculties are to be addressed and developed; the best modes of their development; the special adaptation of each school study to the particular necessities and faculties of the juvenile mind; the laws of bodily health as to ventilation, posture, school calisthenics and gymnastics; and the moral natures of children. It also considers the best methods of school organization, classification, programmes of daily exercises, and modes of teaching, as exemplified in the best systems and best schools in the world; and the knowledge so acquired is practically applied in the model or experimental school (a necessary part of a Normal School) in the presence of competent and experienced teachers."

Ahira Holmes of San Francisco was chosen principal, and on the day of opening, July 18, one man and five women presented themselves as the nucleus of the student body.

Their names were:

Augusta Fink, San Francisco (Mrs. T. C. White).
Emily L. Hill, San Francisco.
Nellie Hart, San Francisco (Mrs. Ramsdell).

Ellen Grant, Nevada County.
Ellen L. Baldwin, Contra Costa County.
Frank G. Randle, San Francisco.

The Personnel of the faculty at this time consisted of the principal who taught all the common branches, and as the term advanced and the enrollment increased, there was added a special instructor in music, Mr. Elliott, one in drawing, Mr. Burgess, and a teacher of calisthenics, Madame Parot, Dr. Henry Gibbons gave frequent lectures, gratuitously.

The board of trustees, according to legislative enactment, consisted of the State Board of Education (The Governor, Surveyor General, and the State Superintendent of Schools), and the school superintendents of San Francisco, Sacramento, and Marysville.

Applicants for admission were required to sign a statement obligating themselves to engage permanently in the work of teaching in the common schools of the state, and those unwilling to bind themselves in this rather drastic alliance were required to pay a tuition of $5.00 per month.

A room on the ground floor of the high school building, then on Powell Street, was offered by the City Board of Education, and here the first State Normal School in California began to function, sans buildings, sans apparatus, sans equipment, sans faculty, sans almost everything save high hopes and dauntless courage; but of these intangible assets there was an abundance, and in a very few years the legislature, feeling that the school had justified its existence, passed an act in March, 1870, naming San Jose as the permanent home. The act can be found in full in the Historical Sketch compiled by Miss Ruth Royce in 1889.

It is interesting to note that previous to this act of the legislature, many sites had been discussed and the cities of Oakland, Berkeley, Stockton, San Francisco, Napa, Martinez, Sacramento and other towns of the state made urgent appeals for consideration. San Jose was chosen because of its healthful climate, its accessibility, its suitable size and boarding accommodations; also the matter of equitable distribution of state institutions entered into the equation.

The personnel of the Board of Trustees was by this act changed and consisted of five appointed members who, together with the Governor and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as ex-officio members, constituted the governing body. This local Board had complete jurisdiction over this and later branch normal schools established in the state until July 30, 1921, when an act of the legislature, changing the name and status of the California Normalschools to Teachers Colleges, went into effect. The power and duties of the Board of Trustees were specified and set forth by Legislative action under the following sections of the political code: 1489, 1490, 1491, 1492, 1494, 1495, 1497, 1501, 1502, 1503, 1504, 1505, 1507.

The first building erected by the state for Normal School purposes was built at a cost of $285,000 in the center of Washington Square, San Jose; and the first session was opened June 14, 1871, in the high school building, (now the Horace Mann Grammar School), in a few rooms offered by the City Board of Education, pending the completion of the building under construction. Later the sessions were held in the new Reed Street Grammar School, now known as Lowell school.

By July, 1872, a few rooms in the new building were completed, and the institution, after a decade of wandering through the wilderness was established in its own home, where for nearly eight years it grew steadily in numbers and in influence until it reached the first critical period of its career, the destruction by fire of the fine new building, in the early morning of February 10, 1880.

The larger part of the library was saved, also some of the furniture, but the valuable museum and herbarium, the result of many years of labor, together with many books of reference and most of the furniture were destroyed, making, together with the original cost of the building, a loss to the state of nearly $304,000. There were also private losses suffered by the curator of the museum, the teacher of Botany and others.

The City Board of Education again came gallantly forward and tendered the use of the high school building, a generous offer and one that entailed considerable sacrifice, as the high school classes had to be accommodated in less desirable quarters. The Normal School Board of Trustees, together with the principal, Charles H. Allen, while the fire was still raging, met and completed plans for reopening the school the following day.

A mass meeting of citizens was held on the evening of May 10, which resulted in the appointment of a committee to visit the Legislature, then in session, and urge immediate appropriation to replace the loss. A bill was accordingly introduced providing for an appropriation of $100,000, which together with the $50,000 paid by the insurance company was considered sufficient amount to replace the building. This bill was approved on April 12. Work was immediately begun, and the first of May the following year, the building was ready for use.

It was with pardonable pride and gratification that the trustees were able to report the entire cost of the structure to be considerably less than the appropriations, the total amount expended being $148,936.95, thus leaving $1,063.05 to be refunded to the state. The Board of Trustees to whom this credit is due was composed of the following:

George C. Perkins, Governor.
Fred M. Campbell, State Superintendent.
Hon. James Denman, San Francisco.
T. Ellard Beans, San Jose.
Dr. Ben Cory, San Jose.
Hon. C. T. Ryland, San Jose.
A. S. Evans, San Jose.

As Charles H. Allen was the nominal compiler of the history published in 1889, heretofore referred to, his special efforts in the process of rebuilding were modestly omitted, and while in no way detracting from the splendid zeal, labor, and wisdom displayed by the trustees, who contributed generously of their time and council, it is only fair and just to state that the rigid economy practiced, the diligent oversight, the intelligent watchfulness of the smallest details, in fact the heavy burden of planning and carrying through to completion the task of erecting the building, fell upon the shoulders of Charles H. Allen, who gave unstintedly of his time and talents to this end.

ADDITIONAL NORMAL SCHOOLS

In March, 1881, the Legislature established a branch normal school in Los Angeles county, the site to be selected and a building to be constructed by the Trustees of the school at San Jose.

This Legislative enactment further provided that the school should be governed by the same laws and be under the control of the same Board of Trustees as the San Jose School.

The site selected was Beaudry Terrace, Los Angeles, and the school was opened August 29, 1882. Although the principal of the San Jose Normal School was nominally the head of this branch institution, it was conducted by the vice-principal, C. J. Flatt, and in May 1883, Ira Moore of the San Jose Normal School was made principal.

In March, 1887, a second branch was provided for, to be located and built the same as the first. Chico was chosen as the site, and the first session opened in September, 1889. By an act of the legislature of the same date a separate Board of Trustees was provided to govern each of these institutions.

Later Normal Schools were provided for in different parts of the state, and the complete list, including dates and locations, stands as follows:

San Jose State Normal School—1862.
Los Angeles State Normal School—1881.
Chico State Normal School—1887.
San Diego State Normal School—1897.
San Francisco State Normal School—1899.
Santa Barbara State Normal School—1909.
Fresno State Normal School—1911.
Humboldt State Normal School—1913.

When the southern branch of the University of California was established in Los Angeles in 1919, the Los Angeles State Normal School became the teacher-training division of the University.

The legislature of 1921 changed the status of all the Normal Schools of the state, and by this legislative enactment they have been made Teachers Colleges.

Section 1492 of the Political Code provides for a joint Board of Normal School trustees, composed of the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, the presidents of the different Normal Schools, the chairman, and two other members of each Normal School Board.

The powers and duties of this joint board were outlined and served to unify the course of study, and to standardize admission and text book requirements, and through annual meetings with organized discussion, the bond of common aim was strengthened and petty rivalries avoided.

The abolition of the local boards in 1921, automatically abolished the joint Board which was replaced by an annual session of the State Board of Educators together with the president of each Teachers College and one other representative if desired, at which time all matters pertaining to the welfare of the Teachers Colleges were taken up for consideration.

BASIS OF ADMISSION

The admission requirements in the early days of the school were simple—"females, of fifteen years or over, or any male of the age of eighteen or over, shall be entitled to admission as pupils in such Normal and experimental school, upon declaring in writing to the Superintendent of Public Instruction his or her intentions to engage permanently in teaching in the common schools of this state," reads the original act, afterwards in 1870, rescinded and replaced by the act quoted in a previous page, which gave the applicant liberty to experience a change of heart, in the matter of permanency.

It is a little difficult to imagine the 1400 or 1500 students now enrolled in the Teachers College obligating themselves to a life term in the California schools, and one can visualize even the most ardently enthusiastic apostle of learning balking when confronted with a request to sign such a document on the dotted line.

A simple examination was held, and on account of many applicants being found deficient in the fundamental requirements, a sub-Junior class was formed for instruction in elementary subjects.

As the school grew the standard of admission was from time to time raised. Graduates of grammar schools were admitted to the Junior class but if found noticeably deficient were obliged to enter the preparatory class for further study. Applicants holding County Teachers' Certificates were admitted to the Junior class. Graduates of high schools were also admitted to the Junior class.

At a meeting of the Normal School Board of Trustees held January, 1900, Superintendent Thomas J. Kirk introduced the following resolutions which epitomized the growing sentiment among educators for higher standards.

"Resolved that it is the sense of this Board of Normal School Trustees that hereafter pupils to be admitted to the professional course in this institution be graduates or possess the qualifications of graduates of the most advanced courses in our State High Schools, and that we direct the faculty of this Normal school so to shape the work to be done in this Normal School as to enter upon such basis of admission at the earliest possible date."

This resolution was passed by the Board, and in accordance with the rulings set forth, students admitted during the year 1901-02 were required to present evidence of high school graduation or its equivalent, and all recommended graduates of high schools were placed upon a two year course.

The president and faculty had for some years realized the necessity for this forward step, were thoroughly in sympathy with the plan of carrying it into effect, and had indeed been the projectors and loyal supporters of its provisions; at the same time, they entered upon its accomplishment with some trepidation, perhaps somewhat in the spirit of a brave soldier going into battle, knowing that the cause for which he is fighting is right, but somewhat fearful as to the result. There was no doubt as to the ultimate gain, but the effect upon the enrollment loomed large. Contrary to their fears, however, the loss in enrollment was not serious (less than sixty the first year) and a steadily increasing attendance followed from year to year, while the growing efficiency achieved by this higher standard proved the wisdom of the action.

In 1910, a still further strengthening of the admission walls was put into effect when only graduates of accredited or four-year high schools were eligible for entrance. About this time the law requiring all university graduates to have six months of practice teaching before being certificated to teach, resulted in the enrollment of many Stanford people who were given the opportunity of fulfilling their practice teaching obligations, and at the same time meeting the requirements of six months residence work for the Normal diploma.

COURSE OF STUDY

In the early days of the school history the curriculum was a simple affair and was outlined as follows:

SUB—JUNIOR CLASS.

Arithmetic, Grammar, Descriptive and Physical Geography with Map Drawing, History of United States, Penmanship, Drawing, Reading, Spelling, Oral Exercises from Charts, Elocution, Blackboard-writing and Drawing, Vocal Music, Calisthenics and Gymnastics, Elementary Instruction.

JUNIOR CLASS.

SENIOR CLASS

Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Grammar, Rhetoric, Geology, Natural Philosophy, General History, Physiology, Botany, Physical Geography, Bookkeeping, Select Readings, Art of Teaching, Constitution of United States, School Law of California, Use of State School Registers, Forms, Blanks, and Reports, Vocal Music, Calisthenics and Gymnastics.

This course was added to and changed from time to time until 1888, when the joint boards of all the Normal Schools adopted a uniform course of study.

Upon the adoption of the advanced admission requirements in 1901-02 and the consequent change from a four-year to a two-year course, still further modifications in the curriculum were necessary, and the following outline was followed with minor alterations from time to time until the revision of the curriculum in 1921 and 1922:

12 hours or four subjects, five times a week for twelve weeks constitutes a term's work.

All are required to take music and physical culture.

The course of study also includes high school subjects for those graduates who are not fully recommended.

Observation work in the Training School and assistant teaching are required in the Junior year.

LENGTH OF COURSE

For some years after the establishment of the school the course was one year in length except that those who were notably deficient in fundamental branches were obliged to make up their deficiencies before entering upon the prescribed course. In 1876 a three year course was adopted, and in 1897, a four-year course which was required of candidates possessing nothing beyond grammar school graduation. Upon the adoption of high school admission requirements, the regular general elementary course was fixed at two years and so remained until 1921, when the curriculum was reorganized and additional professional requirements lengthened the course to two and one-half and three years, gradually working towards the minimum four-year course scheduled to go into effect in 1930.

The above tabulation of minimum requirements refers wholly to what is called the General Elementary or Professional Course. The ultimate ramification into departments began in a small way in 1911, when advanced courses were offered in Home-Making and in Industrial Arts. This expansion has continued from year to year until today it embraces, not only the two above mentioned, but Kindergarten-Primary, Physical Education, Music, Degree course and Junior college.

SUMMER SESSIONS

The first summer session was held in 1904. Previous to this date the matter of holding a continuous session consisting of four twelve-week quarters was agitated and favorably considered by the Board of Trustees who passed a resolution putting the plan into effect, but for some reason this plan was never carried out, and the catastrophe which occurred in April, 1906, made further progress along this line impossible.

At the summer session above referred to, June 29 to August 6, Drawing, Nature Study and Manual Training were the only courses offered. In 1905, many courses were added including practice teaching.

A summer session was planned for 1906, but owing to the damage to the main building by the great earthquake, the plans were of necessity abandoned. In 1907, a summer session was held as well as in 1908. In 1909, owing to the process of rebuilding, no session was held, and it was not until 1914, that the summer sessions were resumed. At this time, Music, Drawing, and Hand Craft were offered. No further summer sessions were held until 1918, when a variety of special courses including cooking, sewing, physical education and pottery, made an especially attractive program.

The next summer session was held in 1922 and thereafter a six weeks summer term has been an established feature of the year's work, and has been of particular value to teachers desiring new methods and intellectual stimulus as well as to undergraduates who were thus able to complete the course, which for one reason or another was lacking in some of the essential requirements.

The summer sessions have become increasingly valuable from year to year, and have been eagerly and hungrily seized upon by the thousands of alumni throughout the state as well as by teachers in other parts of the country who desire to avail themselves of this means of satisfying the California requirements for certification in the state.

Educators of note have appeared from time to time upon the summer school program which has been from year to year arranged with a view of offering the newest and most profound thought upon educational values and educational progress.

In 1922, at which time the summer sessions took their place as an established part of the school curriculum, the following courses were offered: Education, Curriculum, Educational Psychology, Educational Measurements, Sociology, Social Science, Drawing, Industrial Arts, Kindergarten, Manual Arts, Home Economics (Home Making), English and Literature, Modern Languages, Music, Physical Education, Physiology and Public Health, Americanization Problems and Methods, Problem Project work.

These offerings, when compared with the simple subjects comprising the course at the time this institution was established, indicate a wide expansion of educational thought, and while some of the early educators might justly claim that the fundamentals are not given due prominence, this criticism may be fairly met with the answer that the three R's are supposed to be covered in the elementary schools, and if they are not, the elementary schools, together with the insuperable complexities of modern life are responsible for the lack which all deplore but which no one, at present, is able to remedy.

THE EARTHQUAKE

A second crisis in the life of the school occurred in the early morning of April 18, 1906, when a violent earthquake brought destruction and terror to many cities in the central part of the state. Among the buildings in San Jose which suffered either total or partial destruction, school buildings were noticeably prominent, and the old brick Normal School, while presenting a brave face to the public gaze, standing dignified and unmoved to the outer eye, was nevertheless suffering from internal disorders such as loosened brick, falling plaster, and wrenched rafters. It was at once condemned as unsafe, and no one was allowed to enter its doors.

President Dailey, with his mother, was at the time in Chicago on his way abroad, but the appalling news of the disaster which was flashed to all parts of the country caused him to cancel his steamer reservations and return as fast as steam could bring him.

In the meantime, Vice-president Lewis B. Wilson took charge and with the advice and support of the local Board of Trustees proceeded to "carry on." Too much praise can not be given Mr. Wilson for his masterly handling of a most difficult and dismaying situation. Students were terrified, panic-stricken; parents were recalling their daughters home in other parts of the state; the building stood menacing and fearsome; and chaos loomed.

The disaster occurred Wednesday morning and by the following Monday classes were resumed in the Grammar School building, facing Seventh Street, at that time the only building besides the main brick structure on the campus. This building—of wood—was only slightly damaged, and when President Dailey returned he found the entire school comfortably settled in their new quarters, while the training school classes had been placed in the basement, which had been cleaned and furnished and polished until it was made quite livable.

The pleasant spring weather made it possible for some of the classes to meet on the grounds, and so history was repeated, and the classic days of Ancient Greece, when Aristotle and his followers wandered in the sacred groves, were recalled as the English classes under Dr. Bland gathered under the elms and redwoods, no doubt gaining added inspirations from this contact with nature at its loveliest.

Immediately upon his return, Dr. Dailey set about the task of appealing to the legislature (assembled in special session to meet the demands of this emergency) for an appropriation to cover the cost of a new temporary building.

A bill calling for an emergency appropriation of $29,000 was promptly passed, construction was at once begun, and by September at the time for reopening the school the building were ready for occupancy. Thus the second crisis in the history of the school was safely passed.

At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees held October 9, 1906, a detailed report from a committee of experts was received and unanimously accepted. This report signed by John G. Howard, Charles Derleth, Jr., and Henry A. Schuyle, strongly advised the complete destruction of the old brick structure, and the Board concurring with this opinion took steps looking towards replacing it with the result that in September, 1910, the beautiful new structure, the main building facing Fourth street, was completed and occupied.

ADVANCED COURSES

Owing to the increased demands for training along industrial lines, the Normal School in September, 1911, offered two advanced courses, one in Manual Training, the other in Domestic Science. These courses were one year in length, and admission to them was based on Normal School graduation or its equivalent. The manual training course comprised wood-work, metal-work, primary construction and mechanical drawing. The Domestic Science course comprised training in foods and Cookery, Nutrition, Chemistry, Textiles, Needlework, and Administration.

The advanced courses grew in value and scope, and have expanded to such an extent that they are now regular departments, occupying specially constructed buildings and offering four-year courses for which a degree is given.

DESTRUCTION OF THE 'SHACKS.'

A fire which began about one A. M., on March 24, totally destroyed the temporary wooden structure built in 1906, which since the completion of the main building in 1910, had housed the departments of Home Economics and Manual Arts.

The loss, which was not covered by insurance, was about $17,000, the greater portion of it being represented by equipment, tools, supplies, and some works of art impossible to replace.

Again the city Board of Education came forward and offered the use of the high school shops and science rooms in this emergency, which permitted the work to continue, somewhat crippled, it is true, until the close of the spring term. Upon the opening of the school, in the fall, the Manual Arts department was installed in the north wing of the second story in the main building. A cottage just off the campus on South Fifth Street was rented for the Domestic Science Department, an emergency appropriation from the State Board of Control furnished necessary equipment and tools, and the work functioned, in spite of heavy handicaps.

The completion of the new building in 1924 as outlined on another page of this book gave an opportunity for expansion in these technical lines.

DEATH OF MORRIS ELMER DAILEY

"First the fire, then the earthquake, then the still, small voice," which on July 5, 1919, called Dr. Morris Elmer Dailey from his work as head of this institution which for nineteen years he had guided successfully through fair weather and foul.

The reorganization of the Normal School, its place in higher education, its increasing prestige, and its future influence upon the educational life of the state had occupied his attention and thought for many years, and his loss at this particular time was felt by his fellow-educators to be almost irreparable.

The vice-president, Mr. Lewis B. Wilson, was immediately named by the Board of Trustees as acting president and continued in that capacity until the selection of Dr. W. W. Kemp in 1920.

The world war into which the United States was drawn in the spring of 1917 had a noticeable effect upon the attendance of the State Normal Schools.

Young men, who had never loomed large numerically dropped out until there were practically none left; girls left to take positions in offices left vacant by the boys who had entered the service. The attraction of good pay in mercantile and industrial pursuits turned young people away from the field of educational training, and educational leaders felt the seriousness of the situation.

For some years past there had been a deep seated conviction among educators that the time for a reorganization in the field of educational preparation was at hand, and this conviction ripened into action at a meeting of Normal School Presidents held in San Diego on April 26, 1920. The annual report of Philander P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, was cited as showing the necessity for vigorous and immediate action on the part of educational leaders. Mr. Claxton summarized the serious situation faced by education as lack of adequate accommodation for at least 3,000,000 children, a shortage of 75,000 properly trained elementary teachers, 15,000 properly trained high school teachers, 75,000 school rooms, and the serious inadequacy of preparation of from one-third to two-thirds of the teaching. These figures, while applying with greater force and accuracy to the eastern and middle states, were felt to be more or less true of California, and the depleted enrollment of the Normal Schools, the crowded universities, and the low salaries prevailing in the Normal School Faculties led to the adoption of a comprehensive report addressed to the joint committee on education of the California Legislature of which Mr. Herbert C. Jones of Santa Clara County was chairman.

This report outlined the following points as a basis for the action of the committee:

1. Better salaries.
2. More rigid certification requirements.
3. Better buildings and equipment.
4. Better faculties.
5. College status including the right to grant degrees.
6. Just recognition (by giving normal school work credit at par) by colleges and universities.
7. Publicity,—pressure—upon the public, upon universities, upon school officers to recognize the crisis and to cooperate in the solution of it.

At a meeting of the Normal School Board of Trustees held June 24, 1920, a resolution was passed authorizing the president of the San Jose State Normal School to urge upon the legislature the advisability of a law giving collegiate status to the Normal School, and changing the name of the institution from Normal School to Teachers College.

In conformity with the urgent presentation of the problem by the committee of Normal School Presidents, the Legislature of 1921 passed a law, changing the name of the San Jose State Normal School to that of Teachers College, San Jose, and investing the Director of Education with the authority of administration of the laws governing the school. By this ruling the local Board of Trustees which had, from the foundation of the school named the faculty and governed the policy of the institution, ceased to function July 30, 1921.

In 1921, owing to the increasing pressure felt by the University of California and Stanford University, a Junior College was established in connection with the San Jose Teachers College, and courses were outlined in conformity with the requirements of the universities, making it possible for all students successfully completing the two years of Junior College work to be given junior standing in the universities. The Junior College met a very real need, and the immediate result was an influx of young men which gave new life and vigor to an institution which had, up to this time, been rather over-feminized.

Upon the resignation of Dr. Kemp from the presidency in 1923, Dr. Edwin R. Snyder, State Commissioner of Education, was made president, and until he assumed his duties in September, Mr. A. R. Heron, Deputy Director of Education, was acting President and very efficiently held the tiller until Dr. Snyder was able to arrange his office in Sacramento and guide the ship.

Under Dr. Snyder's leadership the school grew steadily in power and efficiency, and his death on January 13, 1925, was a distinct loss to the institution and the state. Fortunately, however, by this time, the reorganization was so complete and effectual that under the guidance of H. F. Minssen, who was immediately chosen by Director of Education, Will C. Wood, as acting president, there has been not only no loss in efficiency, but a steady and healthy growth in numbers as well as in power and influence. The appointment of Dr. Thomas W. McQuarrie as president of the Teachers College and his assuming his duties in September, 1927, brings this historical outline to the present date.

BOARDS OF TRUSTEES

An act of the Legislature, approved March, 1866, changed the personnel of the State Board of Educators, increasing the number of members. This reorganized Board consisted of the Governor, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Principal of the State Normal School, the Superintendents of the schools of the city and county of San Francisco, of the counties of Sacramento, Santa Clara and San Joaquin, besides two professional teachers nominated by the State Superintendent and elected by the Board.

By the same act the above named officials, with the omission of the Normal School Principal, constituted the Normal School Board of Trustees.

CERTIFICATION

The report of Superintendent John Swett in 1867 defines the method of certifying Normal School graduates.

The revised school law provides that the graduates of the Normal School shall receive State Certificates of a grade to be determined by the State Board of Examination. Under this provision certificates have been awarded to graduates according to ability and scholarship—some receiving diplomas, some first grade, and others second grade and third grade certificates.

Five members of the last graduating class had taught school from one to three years previous to entering the school: their standing was high, and they received State educational diplomas, which entitled them to teach as Principals of Grammar Schools. Six members of the class, whose standing was 80 per cent, received first grade certificates; eleven received second grade; and nine, whose standing was from 70 to 75 per cent, received only third grade certificates, which entitled them to teach only in Primary Schools.

In 1863-4 a form of diploma was provided for in place of a teacher's certificate. This diploma in turn entitled the holder to receive a second grade certificate from the State Board of Examination.

The method of granting a diploma, entitling the holder to a teacher's certificate, has been continued up to the present time, although the form of the diploma has been changed as the status of the school has changed.

In 1874, an act relating to Normal Schools was passed changing somewhat the method of certification. By this act, the Board of Trustees was authorized to issue elementary diplomas to those who worthily completed a portion of the prescribed course of study; upon these elementary diplomas the State Board of Examination was required to issue second grade certificates. First grade certificates were granted on diplomas of graduation, and educational diplomas were given on past graduate diplomas.

Upon the organization of the Normal School two terms constituted a year's work. Until a high school basis was adopted in 1901 two twenty-week terms continued to represent a year's work, but upon the change from a four-year to a two-year course, the school year was divided into three twelve-week terms. This continued until 1923 when a semester plan was put into effect.

In September, 1928, the semester basis will be replaced by the quarter system, three twelve-week quarters constituting a year's work.

A BACKWARD GLANCE

What view does the perspective of sixty-six years of history present to the eye of the present generation?

The first noticeable sight is that out of the level of facts and figures, legislation and development, certain personalities stand forth like mountain peaks in a pleasant landscape. The men who planted the seed from which this institution grew, who watered and tended it during its formative years, whose educational vision made growth and development possible, and those who later carried on the early traditions and held to the high standards established have taken their rightful places in the picture.

A. J. Moulder, John Swett,—called the "Horace Mann of the Coast,"—Charles H. Allen, Henry Brace Norton, Morris Elmer Dailey, cannot be forgotten, and their labors should always be gratefully remembered by those now reaping the rewards of these pioneer educators who builded, not for themselves, but for the future.

Another view in this backward glance, reveals the high valuation placed upon the normal school course and the careful safe-guarding, through legislation, of the document bestowed upon those completing its requirements.

Another angle in the picture of the early life of the school discloses the purpose for which the Normal School was established. It was distinctly a teacher training institution, and the act defining its status and further legislative enactments all emphasize this foundation principle. The fact that in its formative years no one might receive gratuitously, the training offered without binding himself permanently to the calling of the teaching profession indicated the explicit (though perhaps dogmatic) insistence upon the value and purpose of the institution they were planting.

One rather comforting thought for those who decry the spirit of the present age, the tendency to repudiate all tradition, to recognize no bonds, to ignore all inherited standards is this: Wherever future progress and development may lead and whatever psychological pathways and byways may be traveled, one basic principle underlies all our experimentation, and that is the proper education of youth.

So it would seem that however widely the San Jose Teachers College may expand, and however complex and ramifying its scope may be in the future, it will, in all probability, always stand out primarily as a teacher training college. Just as Teachers College is the outstanding feature of Columbia University, so will the Teachers College stand out as the underlying thought in the future development of this college. Time alone can tell whether this personal prediction will prove to be correct.

Another noticeable feature in the backward glance over the years is the steadily-growing prestige of the school. During the administration of Mr. C. H. Allen, the practice of going out into remote districts of the state in order to bring before the rural districts the advantages to be gained by pursuing a normal school course was undertaken, and the inspirational addresses given before various county institutes, by Mr. Allen, Mr. Norton, and others, not only put new zeal into the work of many discouraged rural teachers, but it brought to this school an influx of the brightest and most progressive minds in the educational field, whose contact with these fine men had lasting and far-reaching influences upon the life of the state.

Students from the eastern and middle states as well as from foreign countries have entered the doors of the Normal School because of the high standing achieved and the consequent prestige attached to its graduates, and the steadily growing demand for Normal School graduates has reduced the method of certificating teachers through a county examination to a small percentage.

Statistics compiled by the County Superintendent of Santa Clara County indicate that nearly 60 per cent of the teachers employed are graduates of teachers colleges, and over 80 percent of these have had graduate work.

A survey annually conducted by the Psychology and Research department has revealed the high standing of San Jose Alumni in the teaching profession, and this close contact with the work of the graduates through superintendents and principals, not only has the effect of spurring the teacher to her best endeavors, but of encouraging her efforts by the knowledge that her Alma Mater is standing back of her.

The most striking feature of the picture, however, is the miraculously changed conditions now prevailing when compared to the days of long ago. The family carriage which served to transport John and Mary to the gates of learning through a cloud of dust or a welter of mud has been relegated to a museum, and now John and Mary reach the educational portals in a high-powered Cadillac, after a little trip of fifteen or twenty miles over a smooth highway. Now that airplanes are no longer an experiment, but are taking their place in the scheme of transportation, the time may come when the aristocratic Cadillac may also take its place among the relics of antiquity.

Since the standard of living has been steadily mounting, no longer may Mary be satisfied with a "school dress" which was perhaps a reconstruction (and a more or less inartistic one) from some older member of the family—a dress possibly of cotton, or if from a well-to-do family it might have been of "all wool," but her demands now include from four to six dresses, usually of silk, and her silk stockinged feet are encased in expensive shoes.

This is not said in criticism of Mary. She is simply following the trend of the time, and it must be said of her that she is usually a very capable young person who can design and fashion her simple silk frocks herself and make of them artistic triumphs.

Perhaps the greatest change is in the matter of amusements. A game of Authors for an evening entertainment, kissing games, looked upon as rather naughty, croquet—delightfully Victorian and proper, moonlight walks, and an occasional "buggy ride," made up the program of recreation outside of school at the time this institution opened its doors, while literary societies, debates, and lectures had an educational flavor that added a touch of rather weak spice. Dancing—yes,—dancing is as old as time; it is youth's expression of joy, although it must be confessed its interpretation is often ambiguous, perhaps meaningless. The automobile, radio, moving pictures which have taken their place in the every day life of this generation, have so transformed school as well as home life that adjustments have been difficult.

The laboratory is no longer a small room lined with bottles and test-tubes. The instructor goes into his class room, turns a crank and before the eyes of the students produces on the screen the actual unfolding of leaf and bud, the bursting into bloom of the mysterious forces of life.

At the present time there is being perfected the reproduction of sound so that in presenting a moving picture the voice accompanying the action is made to synchronize perfectly with the motions, and the ear as well as the eye is satisfied. The radio has entered the field with blazing banners, and the instructor may, by simply turning a dial, bring before his class the voice of the President of the United States delivering his inaugural address, the applause and cheers of the crowd, the music, the rustle of the rising audience, and very shortly this presentation of living history will include, not only the appeal to the eye, but to the ear as well. The possibilities of the radio in the field of education are limitless. If the human voice may be heard for thousands of miles, if the image of the human form may be instantaneously transported through space, why may not the voice of the past be captured and reproduced? Why may not the whispers of the insect world be magnified and "the music of the spheres" become a reality?

No one may consider the inventions and discoveries of the past twenty-five, fifty, or sixty years without a belief that the story of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp was not a fairy tale but a prophecy.

BUILDINGS

When the State Normal was established by an act of the legislature in 1862, the offer of a vacant room in the high school in San Francisco was accepted, and was used for a few months until quarters were found in a building called Music Hall, the model class being located on the ground floor. Increased enrollment soon demanded more space, and the school was moved to a building on the corner of Post and Kearney street known as the Assembly Hall, a little, ramshackle, cold, and damp structure, described as an "unpretentious frame building in the rear of the Lincoln Grammar school reached through a long passageway."

The corner stone of the original Normal School building was laid in October, 1870, an act passed by the California Legislature in March of the same year having located the site in San Jose. By July, 1872, the building had progressed sufficiently to be occupied in part but was not entirely completed until 1876.

First Building, Erected in 1870

The cost was $285,000. Although built entirely of wood it was a rather imposing structure, situated in the center of Washington Square, with four porticoed entrances, east, west, north and south flanked by Corinthian pillars its massive doors reached by generous steps. Exterior beauty and ornamentation and expensive interior finish with much emphasis upon breadth and spaciousness had rather an awesome effect upon the young people who filed back and forth through the wide and lengthy corridors. Utility was not perhaps so thoughtfully evidenced as appearance; yet the fine aim of the builders to provide a temple adequately beautiful for the housing of noble purposes must not be overlooked, and the impression of its elaborate and generous proportions was a profound influence upon the lives of many young people coming from small homes where beauty and spaciousness were conspicuous by their absence. The disastrous fire which broke out in the early morning hours of February 10, 1880, left nothing but smouldering ashes of the once noble structure.

The second building, work on which began the following May, was of brick,—steel and reenforced concrete at this time not having made their appearance. Professor Charles H. Allen himself supervised the details of construction and kept expenses so well within the meagre allowance of $150,000, that he was able to return to the State the sum $1063 over and above the cost. The building was quite devoid of external beauty. It had a certain dignity and a plainness and solidity that promised lasting qualities, but no one, however confirmed an optimist, could have truthfully discovered lines of beauty.

The interior finish was more ornate; broad stairways flanked by solid black walnut newel posts led to the second story, where a large assembly hall with a balcony occupied the center of the building, which like its predecessor had a three story portion with wings on either side. On the right of the main entrance was the president's office, on the left the office of the Preceptress. Back of the entrance hall was the library, and across from the library was the museum.

The assembly hall had one rather embarrassing feature, as everyone entering was obliged to face the audience, but, once safely seated in the front row, all embarrassment was forgotten in the thrilling delight of watching the late-comers who straggled in by twos and threes.

The third building on the campus was what is known as the Grammar school building; up to the time it was erected, the training school had been located in the main building.

In November, 1891, the Board of Trustees met for the purpose of acting upon bids for this new training school building which was to be erected immediately in the rear of the main structure. The plans of seven architects had been carefully considered, and the ones chosen were those of Mr. F. Lobdell. The work was contracted for at between $30,000, and $35,000.

Under the direction of Principal C. W. Childs the specifications for the new training school building were worked out according to the plans and details of Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, at that time principal of the training department, and Mrs. George, the former principal. In brief, the plan was for a two story building, each floor containing a generously proportioned and well lighted assembly hall, surrounded on three sides by smaller class rooms. The main entrance hall faced Seventh Street, and the opposite entrance led across the bridge ("the Bridge of Sighs") to the main building. Large rooms to the right and left of both entrance halls, which contained the stairs, furnished ample office, class rooms, and library.

The lower floor was used for the primary and the upper for the grammar grades. These details are given rather extended description for the reason that the building is soon to be torn down, and a more modern structure, conforming in architecture to the other buildings, is to replace it.

It is quite proper at this time to pay a special tribute to the old training school building, which, while possessing some exterior architectural blemishes, furnished an adequate and satisfactory arrangement for supervisory teaching.

The earthquake of April 18, 1906, dealt a heavy blow to the plans and progress of the Normal school, but the spirit of the authorities was still undaunted, and in September the "Shacks" stood as a result of prompt action and executive skill.

The "Shacks," erected at a cost of $29,000, were built of rough redwood lumber on the south side of the campus facing the north. A central building for the library was surrounded by a corridor opening into a series of class rooms. The front of the building contained two administration offices.

It was small and cozy, and yet no one complained, and all seemed eager to adapt themselves to the changed conditions which were only temporary. At right angles to the "shacks" and close by was a large building eventually intended as a gymnasium but used at the time for an assembly hall. This building, now used as a gymnasium for men, is still standing, although it has been moved farther north. A temporary women's gymnasium was later added to the group and has served to house the physical education department up to the present time. It has recently been wrecked.

The main building on the campus is the one which at present stands as a central unit of the group and is known as the administration building. It is the first structure erected under the State Engineering Department. The local board of trustees, in fact, took up the proposition of replacing the brick building and, in December, 1906, discussed the plans of three architects who presented their drawings, F. S. Allen of Pasadena, John J. Howard and J. E. Newson, both of San Francisco. No decision was made, however, and the State Department of Engineering took up the building program under the supervision of George B. MacDougal, State Engineer, and N. Ellery, State Architect. On August 31, 1910, the building was completed, the cost of the structure reaching the sum of $325,994.01.

The building is of reinforced concrete and is quadrangular, inclosing a court 303 ft., by 156 ft. Like the original building it faces Fourth street and is reached by an elm-shaded driveway. The triple arches of the main entrances lead to the beautiful quad, surrounded on three sides by cloistered arcades, whose richly colored tiled surface suggest memories of the old world and the ivy draped pillars symbolize the new young life that covers and beautifies—yet cannot obscure the strength underneath.

The assembly hall, plans for which were included in the original specifications, was not built at this time as the appropriation of the legislature was not sufficient for this purpose, but in 1917 the sum of $80,000 was allowed, and the building was completed in 1920 and dedicated with appropriate services to the memory of Elmer Morris Dailey, for nineteen years president of the institution.

The growth of the training school made further building necessary, and in 1911, an appropriation of $60,000 was made by the legislature for a new training school building, which was built just south of the old grammar school building for the use of the primary department. It was two stories in height, built of reenforced concrete and harmonized in architecture and coloring with the main buildings. The interior was similar to that of the old grammar school building, but the south side which is entirely of glass, opens on to a wide terrace giving ample room for entrance and exit to the play-ground.

A temporary building for the intermediate department was completed in 1913, costing approximately $20,000. In architecture and general finish it was quite different from the other buildings, being built on a less generous line at much less expense.

After the completion of the assembly hall in 1920, the needs of the Manual Arts and Home Making departments were taken up, and an appropriation of $205,000 was made for a building which was so planned as to accommodate both departments. This building faced the east and opens directly on Seventh Street and extends on the north side as far as the high school. It was completed in 1924 and throbs with activity. A narrow alley or street separates the Industrial Arts from the Home Making department, which houses the school cafeteria and Art department.

The legislature of 1925 appropriated $70,000 for the erection of a women's gymnasium, and the last legislature of 1927 appropriated $100,000 for the erection of a new training school building. The gymnasium is, at this writing (June, 1928), complete and was dedicated Home Coming Day, June 9, 1928.

SPARTAN UNION

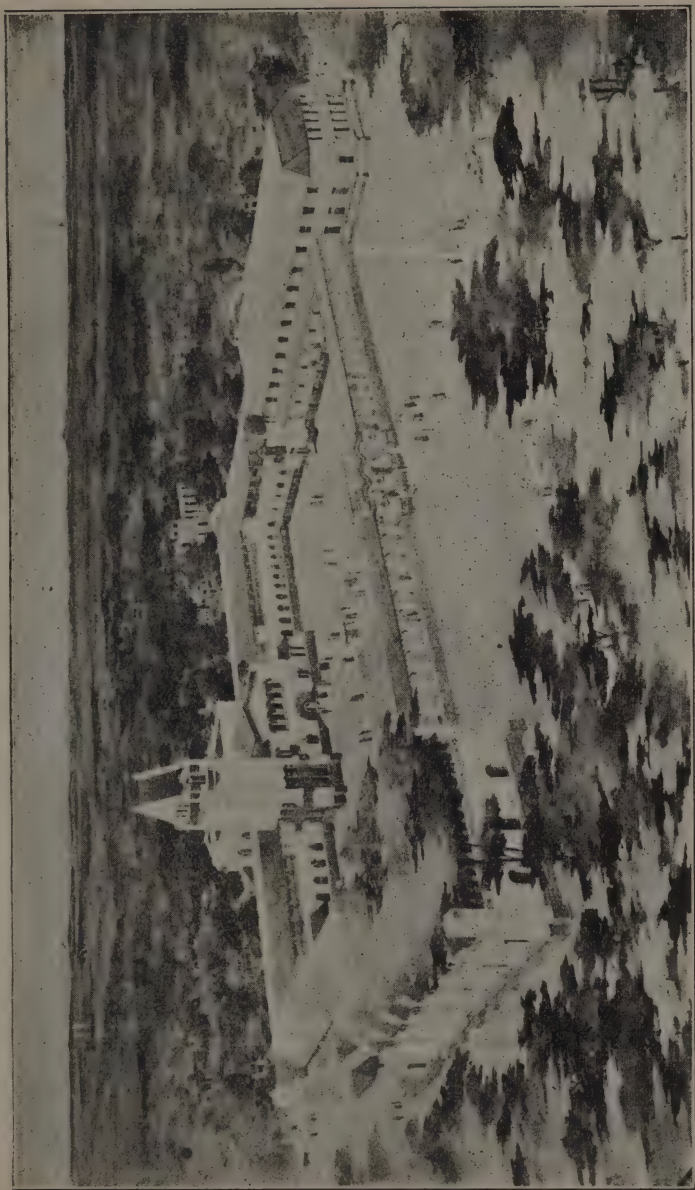

Another building deserving special mention is the Student Center. When the Cooperative Store was first established, the only quarters available were in one of the corridors where a few shelves and a counter made a very inadequate and highly inconvenient shop. A room upstairs was used for the "Times" office, and the Student Body business had to be transacted wherever a vacant room could be found.

The completion of the Home Making building, however, opened up possibilities for a Student Center. The cafeteria just south of the engine house was vacated and added to, and made into attractive quarters which now house the "Times" offices, the cooperative store, and other offices connected with student affairs. It is now called the Spartan Union and can be added to as the need arises.

The engine house has been rebuilt and is now a substantial building of concrete.

GROUNDS

Washington Square is the name by which the plot of ground set apart for California's first State Normal School is known. It is rectangular in shape, bounded by San Fernando, Seventh, San Carlos and Fourth streets.

The First Grounds

It consists of about twenty-six acres and was deeded to the city of San Jose in 1851 by James F. Reed, a man who survived the grilling and cruel experiences of the Donner party and settled in San Jose where he had large holdings, the streets in the "Reed Additions" being named for different members of his family.

In 1870 the city of San Jose deeded Washington Square to the State for the erection of the Normal School. The land was low, marshy, adobe, with traces of alkali. A few scrub oaks, and that pioneer family of weeds, the yellow mustard, formed the sparse vegetation of the unpromising site in the middle of which was erected the rather splendid structure which did duty for ten years until its final destruction by fire in 1890.

When Charles H. Allen assumed the principalship, he set himself the task of beautifying the grounds, and in his far seeing efforts he realized that the ground must be made before it could be beautified.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held in November, 1873, the secretary was instructed to ask for an appropriation of $10,000 to drain, grade and ornament the grounds. This appropriation however was not granted, and it was 1878 before any funds were found for the improvement of the Square, and then but a small amount was available. Vegetables were planted for fertilizing, and in 1881 an appropriation of $25,000 made it possible to undertake the beautification of the grounds under the supervision of a landscape gardener, Mr. R. Ulrich, who later attained distinguished success by his artistic work in Hotel Del Monte grounds.

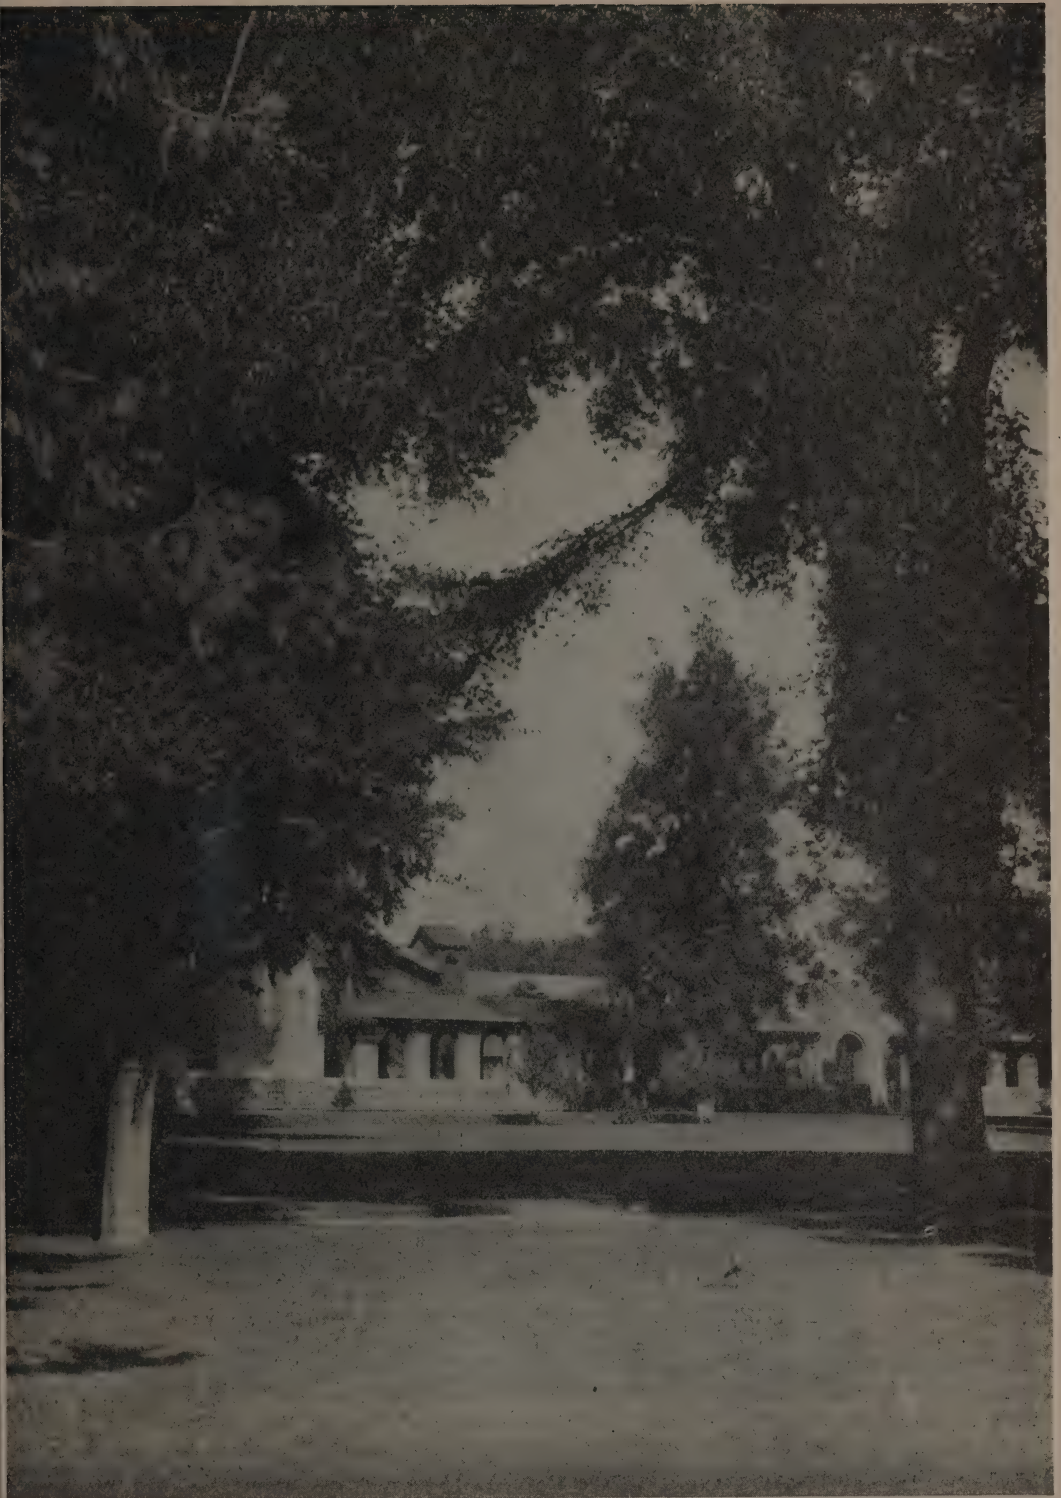

The elm walks were laid out; flower beds outlined; trees and shrubs planted; lawns were made; a circular drive inside the Square was beautifully macadamized, and an ornamental, wrought-iron fence enclosed the entire property. At the time of the earthquake in 1906 the grounds had become a beauty spot in the city, but in the intervening years during the wreckage of the building and the erection of the new structure the lawns deteriorated, and some of the trees and shrubs were destroyed.

In about the spot now occupied by the triple arched entrance to the quad there stood a large circular stone basin with a fountain in the center.

The circular drive in the grounds was the rendezvous for all the rudimentary bicyclists of the city, who found it an ideal spot to test out their newly-acquired skill in operating the noiseless steed.

Two artesian wells were sunk, and until the water level of the valley was materially lowered in 1918, an abundant supply of water was available from the three wells, but ultimately it became necessary to sink another well for irrigating increasing areas of lawn and the new sections of the Square under cultivation. In 1911, after the present administration building was completed, Mr. R. E. Mansell, of the Horticultural department at the University of California, was appointed by the Board of Trustees to landscape the grounds, especially the quad. The lawns were terraced, new shrubs planted and walks laid.

In 1897 a portion of land situated in the north-east corner of the Square was deeded to the city of San Jose for the erection of a high school building. In 1920 an additional strip was conveyed in exchange for a strip of equal size in order to protect the college buildings from further encroachments of the high school.

Campus Walk in Washington Square

In 1901 another conveyance was made to the city of a portion situated in the north-west corner of the Square. This conveyance was made for the erection of a Carnegie Library.

At the time this school was located in San Jose in 1870, the twenty-six acres of ground appeared ample for any future development, but at this early date the word "Athletics" was a term unrecognized as applied to a teachers training institution. Indeed, it is not so many years ago that this branch of a college curriculum began to take its place as a vital factor, and as soon as its need was realized it was quite apparent that an athletic field should be provided in order to meet the insistent demands for physical development along the lines of sports.

From the Corridor

It was one of the accomplishments of Acting President H. F. Minssen, that, in accordance with this expansion of college activities, an athletic field of ten acres was purchased in 1925 at a cost of $20,000 with an additional $10,000 for improvements. A further appropriation of $15,000 made by the 1927 Legislature made additional improvements, and the college is now in possession of a fairly adequate recreation field. It is situated near the southern end of the city, its northern boundary being Humboldt Street and its east and west boundaries Seventh and Ninth Streets, at the present time still unopened.

The improvements consist of a stucco building containing lockers, dressing rooms and showers, offices, store room, and room for caretakers. On top of the building are built bleachers to accommodate 800 spectators. Already the bleachers have been found inadequate and greater seating capacity is needed.

Washington Square, in spite of the heavy handicaps which have hedged it about,, poverty of soil, insufficient nourishment (in the way of inadequate appropriations), fire, earthquake, lack of symmetry occasioned by generous gifts of choice territory, has grown to be a beautiful park. Wide stretches of terraced lawn, brilliant flower beds, cool ferns, elm shaded winding walks, choice flowering shrubs, the creeping ivy greening arches and tower, and the many noble Sequoias and other evergreen trees make a picture of beauty which is not only a delight to recall in connection with a multitude of happy associations, but are a daily and hourly joy to hundreds of people whose path leads them by or through the grounds.

Many of the trees have a history worth repeating. There is the splendid Redwood, just east and south of the Carnegie Library planted by a former gardener, Mr. Wm. Morris, in 1900 of which he is not unduly proud. There is another fine Redwood near the corner of the Science wing on the southwest part of the grounds, which was planted by Mr. Morris and Mr. Juarez on June 15, 1913, in honor of Dr. Dailey's small son, Morris Elmer, Junior, who was born on that day. There is the living Christmas tree near the former kindergarten room, planted by Mr. Hollingsworth at Miss MacKenzie's request and used at Christmas time for the Kindergarten festivities.

It would be quite possible did space permit to relate other interesting bits connected with the trees and shrubs of the College Campus, but this fascinating garrulity must not be indulged in.

A list of the Campus horticultural riches is given below, and to those whose thoughts turn tenderly to their Alma Mater when they read these words the message is sent that the beloved trees are still standing and beckoning you to return whenever you find yourself able to visit the scene of your bouyant youth.

A list of the common names of many of the trees and shrubs on the College Campus follows:

Black Acacia	Ash
Acanthus	White Ash
Broad Leaf Maple	Maiden Hair Tree
Box Elder	St. John's Wort
Silver leaf Maple	White or Incense Cedar
Horsechestnut	Tulip Tree

Tree of Heaven	Honeysuckle
Monkey Puzzle	Oregon Grape
Barberry	Mulberry
Birch	Oleander
White Birch	Osoberry
Bougainvillea	Monterey Pine
Buddleia	New Zealand Flax
Box	Blue Spruce
Scotch Heather	Date Palm
Carolina All-spice	Broom
Mountain Lilac	Pepper Tree
Deodara Cedar	Big Trees
Japanese Quince	California Red Woods
Fan Leaf Palm	Yew
Dracaena Palm	Fan Palm
Dogwood	White Elm
Hawthorn, May Tree	Elm
Monterey Cypress	Snow Ball
Italian Cypress	Myrtle
Escalonia	California Palm
Euonymus	Japanese Wisteria
Loquat	White Lilac
Climbing Fig	Sycamore

MUSEUM

It is perhaps not known to many that this institution at one time possessed quite a valuable museum. Among its treasures were mineral specimens, stone implements (from this county) consisting of some 300 specimens, a large collection of shells, a beautiful collection of California birds, and numerous entomological specimens.

The destruction of the building by the fire of 1880 was disastrous to the museum, and only a few specimens were saved, but these together with the donations that came in from various sources and the intelligent and persistent efforts of the capable curator, Mrs. A. E. Bush, in gathering specimens, resulted in the reestablishment of the museum, and it occupied an integral part of the school life, especially in its relation to the science laboratory.

However, after the elimination of a curator, the collections of specimens were not pressed, and when the earthquake occurred in 1906 the collection suffered materially and all but perished.

After the completion of the new building, Mr. Edwin Comer and Mr. John Foulds—two fine young students, both having since graduation reflected much credit on their Alma Mater, restored all the specimens worth saving, labelled and arranged then in room 116. A pursuing Nemesis, however, seemed to follow the museum, as the burning of the "shacks" in 1916 and the consequent necessity of using this room for the Manual Arts classes relegated the museum specimens to the basement.

Such of the collection as have escaped the hungry moth and the deteriorations of age are now in use in the biological laboratory, but the museum as a definite unit in the school life is extinct.

TRAINING DEPARTMENT

The early history of the school records the beginning of the training department where the young, prospective teacher could have the opportunity to gain experience. A "model class," consisting of about thirty little girls selected from the different primary schools of San Francisco, was the nucleus of this important aid to teacher training. Miss Matilda Lewis, a graduate of the Oswego Normal School, was made principal in 1869, but upon removal of the institution to San Jose in 1870, there was more or less adjustment to be made, and it was not until 1872 that the training department was organized with Mary J. Titus (now Mrs. Hazleton), a graduate of the Oswego Normal School at the head.

Forty children from the different schools of the city were collected, of all grades and all degrees of mentality. The first year, observation only was required of the prospective graduate, but as the school became organized and graded under the capable direction of Miss Titus, practice teaching was required; criticism was given; and the training department, in time, came to be the center and core of school life, the pivot upon which the entire educational plan revolved. Practice teaching was the final test, and many a brilliant student has gone down to ignominious defeat when confronted with a class of squirming, impish youngsters who sensed, in some uncanny fashion, that the young teacher was subject to discipline like themselves, and only a shade more important in the scale of values.

The Training class in those early days was called, (for some reason which cannot be explained) the "D" class, and many were the somewhat profane references by the student teachers to the "little D's" who have since then grown to be reputable and highly esteemed citizens of San Jose.

For a number of years it was customary for the local Board of Trustees, upon the recommendation of the President, to appoint teachers from the city school department whose salary was paid jointly (though not equally) by the city and the state.

Methods in the different subjects to be taught were carefully detailed by the instructor, who also supervised the teaching, and, armed with this information and a thoughtfully worked-out plan of attack, the young teacher entered upon this phase of her preparation with enthusiasm, high hopes, but with a beating heart.

Daily supervision and a weekly summing up of faults and merits made the system quite satisfactory at the time and, resulted in some excellently trained teachers being sent out into the schools of the state.

Although the training of teachers has been, from its inception, the outstanding purpose of this institution, it has become necessary, as the various courses have expanded and developed, to establish a teacher training department—a department of education—where the light could be focused upon every phase of educational progress—a sort of clearing house where all the debits and credits could be checked up and the results tabulated.

As at present organized, there is a director of Education and Teacher-Training who is administrator of the Training Department. There is a director of the Kindergarten-Primary, a principal of the Primary School, a principal of the Intermediate School, and a principal of the Junior High School, with a corps of assistants who demonstrate and supervise.

In the "Old Timers" number of the Alumni Bulletin there is an excellent summing up of the achievements of the Training School written by Miss Martha Trimble, for many years supervisor of the seventh grade, and now in the Psychology department of the college. She brings out clearly in this article the fact that art and music appreciation, home decoration, printing, educational measurements, foreign languages, and many other now well established parts of the college curriculum, had their inception in the training school—the working laboratory of the college.

Cadet training is now an established feature of teacher training, and in this connection the pioneer work of Miss Clara Smith, teacher of history and rural supervisor for some years, should be gratefully remembered. The system worked out by her and successfully put into practice in the rural schools of this and near-by counties gave an added stimulus to rural school teachers whose problems, under her encouragement and assistance, became less fearsome.

THE LIBRARY

The College library began its growth immediately upon the foundations of the school, and in about a year's time consisted of some 1,000 volumes, most of which were text-books. No librarian, however, was provided for until about the date of occupying the new brick building. After the fire the use of the library was restricted to a few hours during the day, and student assistants furnished the only available means of keeping the simple library records.

The appointment of a librarian made it possible to keep the library open all day, and regular appropriations made by the Legislature resulted in annual accessions so that by the time the "Historical Sketch" was published in 1889, the number of books consisted of about 3500 volumes.

It might be said in this connection, because no one acquainted with this institution during the years following the fire can think of it without recalling the ministration of Ruth Royce, that her efficient management of the library was a marvel of intelligent skill. Her instant response to the needs of faculty and student and her uncanny locations of every book, together with chapter and page covering reference desired, are a part of the story of this library.

At the present time the library consists of some 24,000 books, located in the north wing; the main room, with its lofty ceiling (looking toward a mezzanine in the future) is of generous proportions, beautifully lighted on three sides and furnished with steel stacks, solid oak study tables, and soundless floor covering. It is a beautiful room, and the perfect quiet conduces to concentration. Unfortunately it is still inadequate as far as its working possibilities and study hall needs are concerned, on account of the steady growth of the college and the expansion of their library requirements.

The January, 1928, number of the Alumni Bulletin published a story of the library written by the present librarian, and it expresses in so friendly and intimate a fashion the relation of the library to the school that it is published below in full.

JOYCE BACKUS

In sixty-two items a southern pastor reports to his flock the work done during his pastorate. You will find the report in the Americana Column of a recent number of the American Mercury. The pastor heads his list with, "Began by getting two Yale locks, one for Church door and one for S. S." Item sixty-two is, "Marriages, 26". We don't want to bore you with the little changes that pile up so endlessly in a growing institution; however, there are a few that are interesting.

Our list, if we made one, would begin quite like the pastor's, for it begins with doors. Former students who visit us are surprised to find that we no longer use the colonnade doors. The main entrance now is through the hallway which crosses the north wing of the building. Double doors under the stairway open into a small entrance hall. Directly opposite the double doors a wide archway gives into the main library room; to the right doors open into the reserve book room; to the left is the library office and work-room.

Having mentioned the reserve book room we must tell you about it (though if we followed the pastor's method it would come very near the end of our list). You all know the room, either as the faculty room, or as the study hall. During the summer it was equipped with wall shelves and a librarian's desk and is now used for reserve books only. The students find the arrangement more satisfactory than having reserve books in the main library room. The room seats about seventy people and relieves the crowded conditions of the past year or so.

The large painting of 'Aurora' hangs directly opposite the entrance to the library. You will be glad to know that it has been suitably framed. The Library committee of 1925 voted to spend the money collected in fines on a frame for this picture. The students who served on this 'frame' committee deserve special praise for their work. They found that no regular picture molding was made long enough, that no local art dealer had shop space large enough to build the frame, and that special supports would have to be made to hold the increased weight of the picture. Miss Estelle Hoisholt of the Art department assisted them in designing the molding; the frame was milled and built by a local mill; the boys of the Occupations and Home Mechanics department assisted in building the picture. The accomplishment as well as the beauty of the frame deserves mention.

If you were here in the days of bare white walls and bare floors you will be as pleased as we are with our cream colored walls and the green cork carpet on the floors. The walls were painted two years ago; the cork carpet was put down during this last summer vacation. Both add decorative and pleasing qualities to the appearance of the room. The cork carpet lessens the noise of many feet, the pushing of many chairs, and makes librarian frowns much less needed. (None are more thankful for that than the library staff.)

We have grown (expanded into two rooms); we have changed our attire (our new walls and floor coverings); but we have actually changed little since you were here, no matter how long ago. We have more books; we have had to change their locations to make room for the new ones; the magazine rack is on the left of the charging desk instead of the right; the catalog is at the desk instead of against the wall; in fact our list of little changes would expand into sixty or so just as the pastor's did. Such changes after all are of little importance. You will find, if you come back—after a few minutes of adjustment—that we have changed as little as any of your other friends that you haven't seen for years. Each change has been inspired by our desire to keep pace with the growing need of a growing school, to make our library serve the student's needs, to help them do their work with the greatest ease, to teach them to use our library, so that every other library will be their friend.

The Training School library, like a growing child, has probably changed beyond recognition. In another year or so, when the new Training School is complete, we can begin all over again. This year the library occupies three rooms in the oldest building, but they are bright and attractive with orange curtains, cream paint, and bright pictures. Sometimes the library hums with sixty children searching for assignments; sometimes quiet laughter disturbs the silence, for the kindergarten fairies are having a story hour. (They are fairies because they come so quietly). Miss Beattie, the librarian this year, serves three groups in the library, children of all ages, college students, practice and other teachers. The library, like everything else, must get "on the air"; so perhaps you'll listen in on library broadcasting before long.

Miss Helen Bullock (not related to the doctor), became a member of the library staff this fall. Miss Bullock was formerly librarian at Lodi, and has been at the University of Michigan for the past few years. Miss Dorothy Krisher, who was assistant librarian for two years, is visiting in the Far East. Mrs. Oswald Pedley (Katherine Greenleaf) is living in Monterey, and her interests are chiefly centered in a small son.

I think the last item should, like the pastor's, be the last item on our list. When we read of marriages in the Alumni Bulletin we feel that we deserve to end our list with items so vital. We may have frowned on sociable conversations as such, but we know that, after all, the library to the students is a friendly, pleasant place, that it serves as a matrimonial stepping stone as well as a place to work for A's.

The librarian is making a collection of the literary output of faculty and alumni which is also to include published matter relating to the achievements of faculty and alumni in any line of effort. This collection, kept in a special case, will be valuable for reference in the future.

KINDERGARTEN-PRIMARY DEPARTMENT

Until the year 1898 there was no specialization in the training offered. The same course was given to every student, and all graduates were entitled to a certificate permitting them to teach in any of the eight grades in the public schools of the state. The value of kindergartens was recognized in some measure, but special training for teachers of very young children was not, up to this time, considered seriously. It was, therefore, something in the nature of an experiment for the Board of Trustees to establish a kindergarten training department with a demonstration class, and while the work was most successful, under the able direction of a highly trained woman, Miss Woodward, from Boston, the Board felt that the expense was disproportionate to the numerical gain, and the training school was abandoned, to be again established the following year with a faculty of three, a student body of ten, and a kindergarten group of some seventy little people. The results were very gratifying, but the Board decided that the outlay was not justified, and again the kindergarten training school was abandoned. The kindergarten classes, however, were continued, the enrollment increased by leaps and bounds, and when the training school quarters were outgrown, the children were taken out into the grounds, and classes were held under the trees whose drooping branches furnished shade and shelter.

From this overflow into the beautiful grounds, the germ of the May Fete was implanted, an out-of-door play festival, beginning with the wee kiddies in 1900, and each year adding the older groups, until the entire student body and training school had a part in this delightful spring festival, which expressed in song and dance and games the joy of youth and the playtime of life. The May Fete was big in its inception and attracted, not only state-wide notice, but national as well, and the two page description of its educational value together with the illustrations of its beauty and charm in an edition of the SATURDAY EVENING POST was a means of broadcasting to the country at large the scope of the San Jose Normal activities in the line of child development.

In 1913 the State Legislature enacted a law making kindergarten training mandatory whenever twenty-five parents or guardians of children of kindergarten age presented a signed petition for such training. From that date the kindergarten department has been functioning regularly, and successfully, all graduates being eligible to teach in the kindergarten and first grade.

It was not until 1922 that the law was amended permitting graduates of this department to teach in the first three grades of the grammar school. A further step was taken in 1923 when the Teachers Colleges of the state were authorized to grant the Bachelor of Arts degree in education. The result has been the return of a large number of former graduates to secure their degree through the kindergarten course.

The success of this department has been amply demonstrated, not only in the large number of graduates, but in the demand by school authorities for teachers who have been given kindergarten training.

It must not, however, be imagined that this development has been without years of struggle and sacrifice. Intensive, systematic and persistent efforts have been involved; far-seeing need, patient waiting, and undimmed faith have been exercised by those whose love for little children has demanded for those first critical years, understanding skill and sympathetic insight into childish nature.

This brief story of the kindergarten department would be quite incomplete if mention were not made of Miss Isbel Mackenzie, whose vision and organizing power, and quiet persistent struggle never faltered until the department became one of the strongest and most efficient in the college.

Indeed it is quite impossible to disassociate this tireless personality from the thought of childhood, for love of which she has devoted the best years of her life.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The timid and somewhat apologetic claim of manual or industrial training was heard about 1887, when a room was fitted up with a few tools, and optional classes were held, taught by the regular instructors who possessed some slight skill in the understanding and use of the hammer and saw. The results from this rather desultory experiment were not entirely satisfactory, although the need for this class of training was felt, and Professor Allen in his annual report in May, 1888, made the following statement:

"The small appropriation made for the beginning of an industrial department has enabled us to furnish a room with suitable wood-working tools, comprising two lathes, saws, planes and other necessary appliances. We have neither room nor instructors enough to give the advantages of the department to all our pupils, but the result with those who have taken even a limited course, has been satisfactory, and in some cases really surprising."

Acting upon Professor Allen's recommendation a skilled mechanic was appointed, John P. Naas, and the industrial department began to function, growing slowly but steadily as the years passed, and as more generous appropriations were made. This work was coordinated with the drawing classes under Professor Schoof, who supervised designs for the articles made.

In 1911 an advanced course of one year was offered under the direction of E. R. Snyder (later Dr. Snyder, President of the institution) assisted by Andrew P. Hill, Jr., and since that date the department has been recognized as a valuable means of training for those, especially, whose hands yearn for creative expression.

At this writing the course is known as Occupations and Home Mechanics, and with especially constructed shops, and a faculty of four or more instructors, leads up to a degree, and is one of the important centers of college life.

Stress is laid upon the utilitarian side of mechanics, especially in relation to the needs and problems of rural schools, but the artistic element is by no means lacking, and many beautiful examples of mechanical skill have been produced by the women as well as the men students.

The fire which destroyed the "shacks" in 1916 was a serious blow to this department, but the work under Mr. B. W. Spaulding was carried on as outlined on another page of this story and made progress in spite of the serious handicaps of inadequate quarters and loss of equipment.

In order that we, of the present generation, may not feel that all knowledge resides with us, and the past is a closed book, it is well for us to sit at the feet of those of a past age and look at the world from their point of view. Here is the attitude towards manual training from the lips of one of the early leaders in educational thought:

"While manual training educates the hand, thereby giving that delicate finger manipulation necessary to the boy or girl who is to enter either artistic or purely mechanical life, and while we realize the importance of fitting our pupils, in a general way, to engage in these pursuits, yet that is not the reason for teaching the subject.

Manual training is the expression of thought through the hand. Manual training, from the teachers' standpoint, means teaching of things instead of names; it means investigation instead of reporting others' investigations; it means creation instead of imitation. It prepares the child for life work and not for examinations. In order to produce what he observes he must think."

HOME-MAKING DEPARTMENT

In 1911 the Household Arts Department, as it was then known, was launched with Maude I. Murchie, a graduate of this school and of Columbia University, as its director and head.

Courses were offered in two different lines: I—Foods, including cookery, nutrition, chemistry and administration, and II—Textiles and Needlework.

The course attracted the attention of many former graduates of the school who desired further training, and who had the home-making instinct as the basis for specialization in this field, the value of which can scarcely be exaggerated.

This department, so well established in its infancy, has grown and developed to a gracious maturity, and while its terminology has varied, from time to time, being known as Household Arts, Home Economics, and Domestic Science, its development has not been variable but has been a steady growth from the two basic principles first outlined, cooking and sewing, until now it covers the entire field of home life from budget making to the care and rearing of children.

The nursery, which has been established during the past few years, furnishes a working laboratory where the young students can not only learn the scientific methods involved in feeding and clothing the child and looking after his physical and moral well-being, but also have a wonderful opportunity for psychological observation and investigation. This, however, is not the primary aim of the nursery. Its purpose is much deeper and more fundamental, being nothing less than the training of the parents. It seeks to train the mother, the grandmother, the father—the adults who are looking after the needs of the child. The results have proved most satisfactory, in spite of the ever present need of greater facilities in the way of equipment and adequate faculty supervision.

This department is now known as Home Making, a nomenclature which aptly and succinctly describes the wide scope and aim of the course, which seeks to embody the basic principles underlying every activity in the home and also, to put, concretely, these principles into operation by actual daily practice.

The department was originally housed in the "shacks," after the earthquake, and was fitted up and furnished very attractively and quite adequately for a limited number of students, but a fire destroyed the building in March, 1916, and a cottage on South Fifth street, near the Campus, was rented and used until the completion of the new building on the Seventh Street side of the Campus was ready for occupancy in 1924.

A modern bungalow, completely furnished, a nursery, and a cafeteria—which, under the supervision of the Home-Making department supplies hot lunches to college students—make a hive of industry in the building, and it is the aim of the department to cover every phase of home life from balanced meal making to the rearing of babies. Husbands are considered only indirectly and incidentally, but from the large number of graduates in this department who marry, it is evident this important phase of home life is not overlooked.

ART

The department of Art began to function in 1911 when a special one year course leading to an elementary diploma in art was given.

Under the inspiration of Miss Calthea Vivian, graduates of the school began to take advantage of the work offered, and later a two year course leading to a secondary diploma was given.

The Art course, which at first included only drawing and color work, has expanded until it now represents all phases of artistic hand craft, especially in its application to decorative designs either in dress, or in house furnishings. While appreciation of art is not lost sight of, the emphasis is upon modern application of Art principles to every day living.

Art for Art's sake is not so much stressed as the applicability of art and beauty to all life. In other words, the art department tries to vitalize art—to make it live.

MUSIC

In 1912, under the direction of Miss Ida M. Fisher, the first special diploma in music was granted to Miss Mary McDermott, who later became an assistant in the music department.

Since that time, graduation from the music course which required a year of advanced work for the elementary and two years for the secondary diploma, has been a regular feature. The graduates of this course have been, in large part, regular graduates of the elementary course who desired to fit themselves in this special line for public school work in music.

Since the status of the Normal School has been changed to that of Teachers College, permission has been granted by the State Board of Education to award degrees to those majoring in music.

The music department has expanded widely and now includes a faculty of seven. Harmony, orchestra, glee club, piano, violin, and the ramifying coordinate subjects which naturally group themselves about the more technical courses make a four-year course which is proving to be a thoroughly satisfactory training for the teaching of music and an excellent background for those desiring a further musical education.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

From the foundation of the school physical education has been felt to be an essential part of the teacher's training. Its early manifestation, however, was along the simplest of lines, and consisted principally in the development of the human body through proper, intensive and regular exercises. It was many years before the scope of physical training was widened to include games, dancing, fencing, archery and the long line of sports which is now considered so essential to college life. The emphasis upon physical development, while attracting some adverse criticism, has resulted in a freedom of movement, an emancipation from absurd fashions in dress, and a love of an out-of-door life among girl students which no one can look upon as other than a forward step.

Physical education for the young men of this school has been of quite a desultory character until about 1921, when the establishment of the Junior College led to an influx of young men students to whom college meant largely sports and contests such as form the basic interest in many colleges of the present time. With an athletic coach, Mr. Wooster, this phase of the college curriculum began to loom large, and Physical Education assumed the dignity of a department.

In 1922 the first special diplomas in Physical Education were given to three young women completing a year of advanced work. Since that date this department has furnished its regular quota of graduates. A physical examination is required of all students, and all are required to participate in some activity.

In its earlier stages Physical Education for girls emphasized grace, carriage, fleetness and correction of physical defects. For many years this department was administered by Miss Alice Bassler, but since the establishment of the school on a college basis a physical director has had charge of the work for young men and regularly organized teams, with scientific training, have added a new zest to this phase of college life.

The new gymnasium for young women has just been completed, and plans for the men's gymnasium are formulating and when realized will furnish physical education laboratories commensurate with other departments of the college.

JUNIOR COLLEGE

The rapid growth of the great universities within the past decade has brought about a situation which has challenged the attention of university authorities all over the country. The result of much thought and study upon the problem is the organization of what is known as the Junior College, which offers at least temporary relief to the congestion in the lower division of university life, and can without doubt be worked out to the satisfaction of educational leaders who recognize the menace to the overloaded university curriculum, which tends more and more each year to the needs of the graduate student, who is serious minded, knows exactly what he wants, and is a potential asset in the scheme of higher learning.

To meet the needs of this crisis a Junior College to operate in connection with the Teachers College was organized in 1921, with Dr. Jay C. Elder as the dean. The immediate response to this undertaking was a concrete demonstration of the need.

The curriculum was carefully worked out in accordance with the demands of both the University of California and of Stanford, who stood ready to admit to Junior standing all recommended graduates of the Junior College course. The curriculum was made sufficiently flexible to answer the requirements of the Teacher Training course for those desiring a cultural foundation on which the technical training might rest.

The rapid growth of the Junior College since its establishment in 1921, while very gratifying and symptomatic of the educational trend, had become by 1927 a rather serious problem for the reason that a rapidly increasing enrollment in other departments of the college brought to a focus the fact that the Junior College was becoming a financial burden which the Teachers College was finding increasingly heavy. The amount allowed per student, eighty dollars, was wholly inadequate, and it was quite apparent that its affiliations with the Teachers College, which was really not a blood tie, one might say, but a more or less elastic union, must be severed unless satisfactory arrangements for financing this department could be devised.

A state law makes it possible for any community to vote for the establishment of a Junior College district within its boundaries, and accordingly, after an intensive publicity campaign setting forth the entire history of the problem, a vote was held in San Jose in April, 1928, which resulted in an overwhelming sentiment in favor of a Junior College district. This automatically anticipated adequate financing through taxation. For the present, at least the arrangements with the college which cover rooms, equipment, apparatus, and faculty force, will be continued.

The Junior College has met a real need in the community. It makes it possible for the high school graduate to remain at home during his freshman and sophomore years, thus proving a financial benefit to the parents and at the same time keeping the young student under parental care until he has become more accustomed to college life and has reached a greater maturity of character.

NEW DEPARTMENTS

Four new departments are to be established in September, 1928. One, Library Science, is a four-year course leading to the B. A., degree and special credential in library craft.

Another department offered is that of a Nurse's Training. This covers two years of lower division work, two years of hospital training, and a fifth year for those desiring the B. S., degree as well as R. N. The holder is then entitled to a high school credential in biological science.

It is only quite recently that affiliations of educational institutions with hospitals other than those connected with the Stanford and University of California medical schools have been in effect, and this cooperation between the San Jose State Teachers college and the various hospitals of the city and county is a forward step that promises excellent results.

Another department which is attractive and practical is a department of Commerce. This will begin with a two-fold objective—Secretarial Training and Accountancy.

As the course develops, salesmanship, and other lines of business and industrial training will be added, and it is planned to make this department one which will attract not only those who especially desire business proficiency as a vocational objective but also teachers who have been notably lacking in clerical accuracy and are thereby handicapped when confronted with blanks and schedules for official data.

A fourth department is that of Speech and Stage Craft. This department is not actually new, as voice training, public speaking, and all the multitude of details which naturally group themselves about oral expression have been a part of the training in this institution since its first inception, but dramatic study and stage craft have not been greatly emphasized except in an incidental way, and with the increasing development of dramatic art, this course opens up a field which stretches far and wide and is rich with possibilities.

APPOINTMENT BUREAU

From the earliest date in the history of this college it has been the practice and the pleasure of the administration head, either directly or through the hands of a competent official to assist graduates in securing suitable positions. It has also been held that the task of supplying school authorities with teachers whose abilities fit them for the special problems each district is obliged to confront is one that is equally incumbent upon the executive head.

This rather desultory manner of teacher assignment answered fairly well until the increasing demands upon the administrative officials by reason of heavy enrollment and the ever-growing complexities of the machine known as civilization called for a definitely organized placement bureau.

This bureau was established in 1922 and was later sponsored by the Alumni Association, under the oversight of the college, where it is considered as one of the important units in the college life.

The very moderate fees charged entitle the alumnus, not only to the service of the placement bureau, but to membership in the Alumni and the benefit of the semi-annual Alumni Bulletin.

The Alumni Secretary, Miss Marie Curtis, who is in charge of this work, is in touch with the school officials throughout the state and is in a position to render valuable service to the state as well as to assist the graduates in securing suitable positions. The Appointment Bureau also makes possible a check-up of supervisory agency, which not only acts as a spur to the highest efficiency, but is intended to be a means of assistance for ultimately placing the round peg in the round hole where nature and training and aspiration have destined it to be placed.

During 1926-27, 2100 sets of recommendations were sent to school officials and 476 teachers placed.

EXTENSION COURSES

In 1921 an extension course was inaugurated for the benefit more particularly of city teachers. Educational measurements and allied subjects were offered as well as some of the more common branches.

These extension courses have proved popular and are now an established feature of the college curriculum.

ENROLLMENT

The figures dealing with enrollment and graduation make an interesting chapter in the history of the college. At the opening session of the old Normal School in 1862, six students enrolled; "one gentleman and five ladies," as the old records say. Before the end of the first term, however, the enrollment had increased to thirty. The first graduating class, that of May, 1863, consisted of four young women.

Frequent changes of administration during the early years of the Normal School, and the subsequent loss of most of the records by fire, have resulted in many gaps in the early statistical information. Apparently, however, the growth of the institution was steady. A rapid growth followed the removal to San Jose, and the enrollment reached the 500 mark in 1877. In that year the proportion of men and women was about one to six.

During the next forty years, in spite of considerable fluctuation in the number of students, the institution showed healthy growth, so that by the autumn of 1917, 872 students were in attendance (824 women and 48 men). As was to be expected, the enrollment decreased greatly during the years of the World War, but since 1920, the growth of the institution has been rapid and constant, as the following tables show.

The increase in the number of men after 1921 is to a certain extent due to the enrollment in junior college courses. With the development of "terminal" courses appealing to students who find they wish to change their objective from teaching to some other professional or semi-professional field, it is to be expected that the student body will continue to grow with each college year.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND LOAN FUNDS

Gentlemen:—

Mrs. Fanny C. Houghton (Mrs. C. B. Houghton) formerly of Benecia, now of Berkeley, California, has founded a scholarship in this school to assist worthy and needy pupils. She presents to the members of this Board, as trustees, three one thousand dollar bonds of the Western Pacific Railway Company and an instrument stating the terms and purposes of the trust. The income, amounting to one hundred and fifty dollars a year, is to be used to support the scholarship, and the qualifications to the recipients are to be character, ability and need.

Mrs. Houghton has named the scholarship in honor of her sister-in-law, Miss Eliza W. Houghton, one of the early teachers in this school, whom she wishes to have all the credit for the gift. A brief memorial of the life and character of Miss Houghton, prepared by her friend, Mrs. Mary W. George, is presented to the Board herewith.

Gifts to found scholarships in richly endowed universities are common; but this is the first donation to help students in this normal school, and as far as I can learn, the first in any normal school in this state. Mrs. Houghton is the pioneer. May she have many followers; In accepting the gift, I shall ask the Board, by its resolution, to express to her its appreciation of her most worthy act.

Very truly yours,
FREDERICK W. HALL
Trustee

San Francisco, California, June 9th, 1910.

The above letter from Frederic W. Hall, former member of the Normal School Board of Trustees, presents the facts in connection with the first scholarship founded for this institution. It should be stated that the awarding of this scholarship was placed in the hands of a committee of four, of which Mrs. Fannie G. Houghton, Mrs. Mary W. George, and Miss Ruth Royce were named as life members. The president of the school was to be an ex-officio member. Mrs. Houghton retained the privilege of appointing any vacancy which might occur in the personnel of the committee, and provision was made for the Board of Trustees to take over this duty upon her death.

The basis of the award was three-fold, character, ability and need. During her lifetime Mrs. Houghton felt a warm personal interest in the recipients of the scholarship and met and talked with them. Her death occurred some years ago, and the Board went out of existence in 1921.

For several years, owing to financing difficulties, no dividends of the Western Pacific were available, and at the present time dividends have again lapsed, and the value of the bonds has greatly depreciated. After the abolishment of the local board in 1922, the Eliza Houghton Scholarship Fund was turned over to the Department of Education in Sacramento, but the awarding of the scholarship is still left with the president of the college.

Following is the list of those who have been recipients of the Eliza W. Houghton Scholarship Fund up to and including June, 1927:

Charlotte A. Menker.	Louise Hodges.
Edith V. Edmiston.	Margaret Reid Kenny.
Ethel Phelps.	Lucile Wright.
Marjorie R. Hamlin.	Mrs. Margaret Behrent.
Margaret G. Bevier.	Edith Carlson.
Al Sarzin.	Irene Crosby.
Fred Borden.	Sophia Poser.
Marian White.	Elmo N. Stevenson.
Mabel Izant.	Lois Barton.
Evelyn Voge

For one reason or another the further establishment of scholarships has not been undertaken, but the desirability of founding a series of scholarships to be named in honor of some of the outstanding men and women who have made a deep impress upon this institution is now deeply felt, and indeed, one has already been raised and others are in contemplation.

The plan of Miss Gertrude Rowell for several thousand dollar scholarships is worthy of mention here and it is hoped may bear fruit in the future among some who read these lines and are impelled to generous action by reason of love for their Alma Mater or for some one of the faculty who were vital factors in their own lives.

This is the plan:

Gift of $1000	from 1 person.
Gift of 500	from 2 persons.
Gift of 250	from 4 persons.
Gift of 200	from 5 persons.
Gift of 100	from 10 persons.
Gift of 50	from 20 persons.
Gift of 25	from 40 persons.
Gift of 20	from 50 persons.
Gift of 10	from 100 persons.
Gift of 8	from 125 persons.
Gift of 5	from 200 persons.
Gift of 4	from 250 persons.
Gift of 2.50	from 400 persons.
Gift of 1.00	from 1000 persons.

The Allen Memorial Fund was created by friends of Charles H. Allen, beloved president of the school and outstanding educator in the early development of the state. The original plan contemplated the purchase of an organ for the assembly hall, which it was felt would be especially appropriate for him on account of his deep love of music. This, however, was found to be impractical, and the fund, now amounting to $1000, a part of the amount having been raised by the Citizenship class under Miss Gertrude Rowell, will undoubtedly be used as a scholarship, and will be named "The Allen Memorial Scholarship." It should be mentioned that the Allenian Society, as well as individual friends have contributed to this fund from time to time.

The Kindergarten-Primary group is now at work on a scholarship for Miss Isbel Mackenzie, who resigned from her duties at the college in June, 1928.

Another scholarship contemplated is to be raised by the Sappho Society.

LOAN FUNDS

In 1902 a movement was started to raise a fund which could be used to loan needy students. The movement bore immediate fruit, and several loans were made during the year, the borrower giving a personal note for the amount. It was known as the STUDENTS' LOAN FUND.

In 1912 the Board of Trustees set aside a sum of $737.92, money which had accumulated from the diploma fees, for a loan fund to be known as the STUDENTS' BENEFIT FUND. This was placed at interest and used as need came. During the influenza epidemic of 1918, $300 of this money was used in fitting up an emergency hospital, and the balance, as the loans were repaid, was merged into what is known as the STUDENTS' EMERGENCY FUND.

This fund was originated by the gift of the June, 1913 class of $147.45. The following year $500 was contributed by the Faculty Women's Club, from the proceeds of the Helen Keller lecture. This fund has been added to through gifts of different classes, interest paid in by borrowers, and other sources, until it amounts today to practically $2000. This fund is purely local and is not handled through the state department. It is loaned in sums of $10 to $100, and notes are given by the borrower. It has proved to be very helpful, and the amount is destined to increase from year to year, through interest and gifts.

In July, 1926, Mrs. Kate Cappler, who was graduated from the Normal School in 1884 as Kate McElwee, left a bequest of $2500 in her will to the San Jose State Teachers College for the purpose of providing a loan for needy students. This bequest is in legation with a reasonable prospect that it will be paid.

SCHOOL PUBLICATIONS

The urge for literary expression manifested itself early in the history of the institution, the records of 1867 disclosing the timid experiment of "The Acorn" in which appeared poems essays, jokes, literary, scientific and educational matter. This small sheet was entirely in manuscript, and not type-written manuscript, as this modern substitute for the pen was at that date unknown.

The title of this paper was significant, and evidenced the faith and hope of its founders. The esthetic element was also not lacking as the sheets were tied daintily together with ribbon bows, as were the graduating essays in those days, when art appreciation was only faintly glimpsed. "The Acorn" did not grow very rapidly into an oak tree; in fact, there is no record of an oak tree resulting from this seed; but it sprouted and developed after a few years into a printed sheet called "The Class Paper"; later it was named "The Senior Journal." The file of "The Senior Journal," dating from 1889 to 1885 shows it to be a semi-annual publication in the interests of the senior class. The last issue in December, 1885, appeared as a pamphlet of 12 large octavo pages.

As the school was growing it was felt that a paper representing wider interests should be launched, and it was under these circumstances that the "Index" was put forth. The senior class sponsored the sheet which was issued monthly. For three years there was a department edited by the students of the Los Angeles Normal School. The last issue of the "Index" on file is dated 1891.

In 1893 the publication of the "Telescope" was begun, a rather more ambitious undertaking published by Nicholas Bowden and Eli Wright, both at present attorneys in this city. The chief purpose of this paper, which was at first a four page sheet, and published monthly, was to further the interests of the school societies, notably the Young Men's Normal Debating Society (Y. M. N. D.), at this time a very flourishing organization. The scope of the paper was enlarged in order to have it represent the entire student body, and its form changed from a four page newspaper to an 18 page magazine.

Its advertising pages, which are meager, reveal interesting points in the life of this period when bicycles could be rented for 25 cents an hour.

In 1891, Mr. John G. Jury and Franklin K. Barthel, the former a well known attorney and writer, the latter an educator of note, began the publication of the "Pacific Coast Teacher," a magazine labelled "The Official Organ of the Alumni," of the S. J. S. N. S., a magazine of some 44 pages. It was published monthly and was distinctly in advance of anything heretofore undertaken by the school. It showed maturity of thought and wise and discriminating choice of material. It covered literary, scientific and educational fields, with poems, jokes and personal items to season its serious aspect. An address by Dr. Charles Eliot of Harvard was quoted, but most of the matter was first hand, and the names of Professor Earl Barnes of Stanford, and David Starr Jordan, G. Stanley Hall, Edward McGlynn, Dr. A. E. Winship, Professor Joseph LeConte show the type of paper which these young men ably published. In leafing through the pages the only illustrations noticeable were a few cuts of "The World's Fair Buildings in Chicago," in 1893. The magazine was dignified, serious, with a real literary touch, which one can easily understand in the light of the subsequent history of its gifted founders.

In February, 1898, the "Normal Pennant" was unfurled, a monthly magazine of 8 pages, with Harriet E. Quilty as editor in chief, Harry G. McCanney as business manager, and Henry H. Tracy, treasurer and assistant manager.

In appearance the "Pennant" was more artistic than anything which had been before attempted. The paper was heavy and creamy, the illustrations plentiful, and cartoons began to make their appearance. It contained articles from the pen of some of the instructors, letters from teachers who were travelling, book reviews, school society activities, alumni news, athletics, jokes, and graduation news. The "Pennant" showed marked advance in the technique of journalism, and its pages contain the names of many graduates who have reached distinction in many lines. Wm. H. Langdon was one of the contributors; Henry Suzzalo, James T. Preston, C. L. Phelps (the last three outstanding figures in the educational world) and Harry Wagner, editor of the "Sierra Educational Journal," were others. The book notices were significant of the literary thought of those days, and Drummond's "The Greatest Thing in the World" (which by the way can never grow old-fashioned), and "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" by Ian Maclaren, indicates a wholesomeness that is a pleasant thing to recall.

In 1909, "The Normal Times," a weekly paper began its career, and is at present going strong. It was originally a four page paper of five columns, but was later changed to magazine form and then again to newspaper size. It began with a publication of from 1000 to 1200 weekly and was distributed free to all students of the school.

Some of the early issues of the "Times" contain names of well known officers, Granville Wood, now Dr. Wood, Charles Flower, now Dr. Flower in the U. S. Navy at San Deigo and Jessica McManus, who has distinguished herself as an actress.

Much space was given to school activities as the Chico-San Jose annual debate and basket ball contest, and in the issues of 1914 the first rumbles of war appeared.

The "Times" at present (1928) has grown out of swaddling clothes and is a full fledged newspaper of 8 pages, published twice a week. It covers all the activities of the school, and in make-up, material and interest is a most creditable piece of work.

The "Short Story Magazine"—while not strictly a school publication was the concrete expression of the latent literary talent discerned by Dr. Henry Meade Bland in his classes. Its first number appeared in 1906.

It was under the auspices of the Pacific Short Story Club and was the literary vehicle for young writers of verse and stories.

"The Quill," published by the English Club, had its premier in June, 1925. The publication is in magazine form and contains short stories, poetry, jokes and other literary productions from the pens of members of the club. A foreword by Dean Helen Dimmick, and an appreciative dedication to Dr. Henry Meade Bland, the inspiration of this winged messenger, appeared in the first edition. Later numbers have appeared from time to time, and "The Quill" has been found to be an excellent medium for creative literary expression.

A copy of the "Pennant" was usually issued by each graduating class, but the special Senior Year Book of the June graduating class made its first appearance in 1910. It has appeared regularly since then, in 1916 the name being changed to "La Torre" (The Tower) which has been used as the symbol of the spirit of the graduates.

"La Torre" has been from the first, a most artistic production. It is handsomely and lavishly illustrated and focuses into a rich and elegant unity the entire scope of school thought, endeavor and accomplishment.

The first issue in 1910 was dedicated to "The Buildings," the new building at this time being very near completion. Later numbers were dedicated to "The Faculty" to "Miss Ruth Royce," the librarian, just before her resignation, to "Mr. L. B. Wilson" to "Dr. Bland," and in 1920 a memorial number to "Dr. Morris Elmer Dailey—faithful teacher, judicious advisor and beloved friend." One number was dedicated to Elizabeth McFadden, one to Miss Shoninger, one to Dr. Kemp and one to Dr. Snyder. One number in 1918 was dedicated to our boys in the service, and one in 1926 "To Fathers and Mothers, who in their enduring understanding, their unremitting toil, their ceaseless sympathy, their self-effacing love and their aspiring hopes for us have exemplified the noblest Spartan Spirit."

"Spartan Spasms" is a student publication which has appeared semi-annually since 1927 as a humorous magazine.

Professor Charles H. Allen, for many years president of this institution, is perhaps not known for his literary gifts, but he was an easy writer of verse, and a volume published by him gives an excellent idea of his fluent and graceful lines.

Mr. John H. Braly, one of the early instructors in the Normal School, and former vice-president, published, not long before his death, a very attractive volume called "Memory Pictures" in which the story of his life and of his pioneer ancestry is very graphically told.

There have been numerous faculty publications, some of them texts, and others dealing with educational topics in various lines.

Among them is "California Education," a magazine published first in 1905 with Dr. Margaret E. Schallenberger as the editor and Alexander Sherriffs, at that time principal of one of the San Jose schools, as Business Manager. The magazine appeared at irregular intervals until 1914. It contained articles from the pens of members of the faculty, and several of the numbers were monographs, one on Arithmetic, by Wm. H. Baker, one on Nature Study, by D. R. Wood, one on History, by Agnes E. Howe, a Manual Training monograph by E. R. Snyder and one on Arithmetic by Mrs. Adelia Hornbrook.

Other monographs had been planned but the devastating effects of the war and Dr. Schallenberger's removal to Sacramento made it impossible to continue this very excellent medium of educational ideas.

Miss Gertrude F. Rowell, through her classes in Social Ethics and Community Service, has published several valuable little booklets; one in 1921 called "Guide Book" contains many helpful and uplifting suggestions under the heading of "The Ideal," "The Leader," and "The Way." It was called "a friendly book his onward way to guide," and was followed by a similar offering, but larger and more comprehensive, called the "Guide Post on the Highways and Byways." For two years Miss Rowell's classes contributed this fine and thoughtful piece of work and it should be noted that the college print shop was the medium for its attractive and modish appearance.

Many of Dr. Bland's friends do not suspect that his thoughts at one time dwelt on scientific subjects, and so it is something of a surprise to come across "Studies in Entomology" by Henry Meade Bland, published in 1899, and "Entomological Excursions," in 1880.

In addition to articles and poems in well known magazines, such as SUNSET, OVERLAND, THE CRAFTSMAN, THE NAUTILUS, and others, and the publication of the SHORT STORY magazine, Dr. Bland has the following volumes to his credit: "A Song of Autumn and other poems," "Prose and Poetry for Children," three volumes of verse, (The poems of Henry Meade Bland, Poems by H. M. B., and In Yosemite and others), "Sierran Pan," "Stevenson's California," California and other Poems," The Search and other Poems." Dr. Bland has also edited "A Day of Poetry" and "A Day in the Hills."

"Suggestive Exercises in Bookkeeping," by Caroline H. Bradley, was used as a text.

"Everyday Errors," by Gertrude F. Payne, was used in her classes and is a compact treasury of information upon the common errors in pronunciation and spelling to which humankind is subject.

Other publications by members of the faculty at various times include a "Topical Outline of History," "Topical Outline of the Constitution," and "The Essentials of Bookkeeping," by Mr. C. W. Childs, former president.

Dr. W. W. Kemp is the author of "Support of the Schools in Colonial New York by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel," also of "Survey of Education in Hawaii."

Dr. George E. Freeland has published numerous magazine articles on educational thought, and a book entitled "Modern Elementary School Problems", and one called "Improvement in Teaching" are also children of his brain. In collaboration with Miss Katharine Hall and Miss Roxana Adams (Mrs. Hale) he has recently produced "Teaching in the Intermediate Grades,"

The Research Conference, which has been an annual affair since May, 1922, has since then published a full account of the proceedings of the conference which has covered the field of Mental Testing, Educational Measurements, and Psychological problems which have been, for some years past, engaging the earnest thought of educators.

A memorial to Morris Elmer Dailey, published by the March graduating Class of 1921, is a loving tribute to President Dailey's worth by those who knew him and valued him for his loyal friendship.

After the death of Dr. Edwin R. Snyder, in 1925, the California State Senate presented the faculty and students with an engrossed parchment and leather bound copy of the Senate resolutions presented by Senator Young and passed by the Senate body.

Miss Virginia Somes Sanderson, instructor in Public Speaking and Dramatics in the Teachers College, has published a charming book of verse called "Potpourri," the verses possessing an exquisite sense of poetic beauty and depth of feeling which place her in the front ranks of women who are gifted with poetic expression.

Clarence Urmy, an instructor in Voice and Music Appreciation, had a national reputation as a poet and produced several volumes of poetry, most of which appeared from time to time in the most exclusive and select magazine of the country. Among the volumes, "A Vintage of Verse," "A Rosary of Rhyme," and "A California Troubadour," testify to the finish and perfection of Mr. Urmy's work, exquisitely flawless like a polished gem, as well as noble and lofty in sentiment.

The Library of the Teachers College has, from time to time published leaflet containing valuable information in the line of booke and library notes.

A tribute to Henry Bruce Norton, a beloved teacher in the Normal School from 1875 to 1885, was published by the school, and included, besides the eulogies of friends and educators throughout the country, some extracts from Professor Norton's own addresses.

"The Training School Enterprise," the work of the elementary department, began in 1905, and is still published; also a recent sheet called "The Buzz" is a training school publication.

Mr. James Erwin Addicott has lectured quite extensively, on educational topics, and among his published articles are the following:

The Meaning of Manual Training.

Practical Education.

The Reconstruction of the Manual Training Teacher.

Manual Training—Its Purpose and Effect.

Correlation in Primary Handwork.

Household Arts and Sanitation.

Clay Modeling and Pottery.

The Need of Vocational Guidance and Training.

Also in 1918, appeared his report to the War Department (Committee on Education and Special Training of Soldiers in Army Trades in District number eleven, Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona and New Mexico). This includes a report on the organization and equipment of sixty-two technical institutions west of the Rockies.

Dr. Mary Arnold Snow is the author of "Mechanical Vibrations, Its Physiological Application in Therapeutics"—a book of nearly 500 pages. She has also written the following bulletins:

Bacteriological Study of School Utensils, 1899.
 The Treatment of Uterine Fibroids, and including a study of the Physiological Actions of X-Rays.
 Static Modalities and Their Therapeutic Applications.
 Status of Mechanical Vibration in the Practice of Medicine.
 Physical Therapeutics in the Medical Press.
 The Treatment of Lowered Nutrition as Present in Tuberculosis.
 The Relation of Mechanical Vibration to the Nervous System.
 Therapeutic Application of Mechanical Vibration.
 Mechanical Vibration in Diagnosis.
 Mechanical Vibration, Its Uses in Medicine.
 Vascular Relaxation of the Splanchnic Area and Its Effects Upon the Organs Involved.
 Physical Therapeutics in the Treatment of Trauma.
 Observations on Cardiovascular Diseases with Report of Cases.
 X-Ray Dermatitis.
 Splanchnic Neurasthenia, Causes, Symptoms and Treatment.
 X-Ray Therapy of Uterine Hemorrhage and Fibroids.
 Neuritis and Its Treatment;
 Electrotherapy in Gynecology.
 The Static Modalities in Gynecology.
 The Effect of Mechanical Vibration of the Spinal Reflexes.
 Vascular Relaxation of the Splanchnic Area.

Miss Caroline Hubbard Bailey, of the library staff is the author of a bulletin entitled "The Romantic and Historic Background of Agriculture and Plant Study."

Mr. Joseph Conrad Chamberlain of the Biology department is the author of a score of papers in the field of systematic entomology and arachnology.

Dr. James C. DeVoss has published numerous articles on the problems connected with educational research, educational measurements and educational testing.

Mr. Carl D. Duncan has published four scientific articles on "Insects" and one on "Crustaceae."

Dr. Jay C. Elder has published articles on "Marine Biology" and "Experimental Pathology."

Ervin Eugene Lewis, alumnus of this school and former instructor, has published numerous texts, "Common Word Speller," "Scales for Measuring English Compositions" (with J. B. Edmondson), "Problems in the Administration of a School System" (with Mary Clinton), "The Clinton Premier," "Problems in Administration of Junior High Schools," "Personal Problems of the Teaching Staff."

William S. Marten, former instructor in the Industrial Arts Department, has published some interesting and attractively illustrated texts, "Basketry" and "Manual Training Play Problems."

Mr. Raymond M. Mosher, alumnus of this school and a former instructor in the Music Department, published in 1925 "The Gray Method of Measurement of Sight Singing," and he is also the author of "Educative Seat Work," published in 1927.

Irving E. Outcalt, of the San Diego State Teachers College who exchanged with Dr. Bland for a year is the author of a poetic drama entitled "Admetus, a Thesalian Fantasy," published in 1915. He has also contributed poems and articles to magazines.

David S. Snedden, of Columbia University, who was a special lecturer in this institution in 1905, is the author of a large number of educational works.

Dr. Elwood P. Cubberly, special lecturer from 1905 to 1908, is the author of at least a score of educational books. His "Syllabus on the History of Education," in two volumes was used by the classes in this subject. Another extended piece of work by Dr. Cubberly was the editorship of "Monroe's Educational Cyclopedia."

Miss Virginia Somes Sanderson, besides the book of poems referred to, "Potpourri," has written a one-act play, "Bread Upon the Waters," which won the prize of the Drama League in 1925, and "It Happened Long Ago in Judea."

James Percy Stockton, Director of the Training Department in 1919 to 1921, is the author of several psychological publications, "The Nature of Intelligence," "Project Work in Education," and "Exact Measurement in Education," being among them, besides numerous magazine articles.

Dr. Henry Suzzalo was editor of "Riverside Educational Monographs" and contributed largely to various magazines.

Robert J. Leonard, distinguished alumnus of this school now connected with Columbia University, is the author of a large number of educational publications, many of them dealing with educational and vocational problems.

Mrs. Grace Conklin Williams, former librarian of the Training Department, is the author of "Little Book Shelf," and many children's stories.

James C. Wood published an article in THEATER AND SCHOOL on "Pageants and a Pageant."

Ida May Baker, (1907) collaborated in writing a book on Arithmetic and has published a Manual for Thorndyke's Arithmetic.

A book on woodwork was published by Mr. B. W. Spaulding in 1915.

A classified list of stories for story telling to children was published by Miss Mabel Mackenzie in 1913. The list included holiday stories, nonsense tales, fairy and folk lore, heroic tales, ethical and Bible stories.

It is quite possible that the publications here listed and many others by different members of the faculty who have made literary contributions equally worthy of mention if space could be spared, may be gathered together at some time to form a special group for historical purposes in connection with the college library.

ORGANIZATIONS

A lyceum for debate was held in 1864-65, but aside from this the Philomathean society is undoubtedly the oldest student organization known. Its early history is dim, but there is reason to believe it was founded about 1871. Its original purpose was literary—debate and oratory being the chief vehicle of expression. The Young Men's Normal Debating Club (Y. M. N. D.) was a later society founded by the young men for the purpose of debate, parliamentary law, etc., and the two were finally merged, although in 1876 both were a recognized feature of school life, and the bulletin issued on this date mentions "two thriving literary societies." The Y. M. N. D. spasmodic in its development, was reorganized in 1905, and continued to function until about 1908.

Some of the leading men of the state began their public appearance in the debates and oratorical contests which took place in the Normal Assembly Hall in the early years of the school's history.

The Nortonian Society, launched in the late eighties in memory of that beautiful and beloved soul, Henry Brace Norton, was, for some reason, never continued, nor was the Dailean Society, founded some twenty years ago and named for Morris Elmer Dailey, at that time and until 1919 the honored president.

The Senior Girls' Club and the Friday Afternoon Club (F. A. C.), also a strictly girls' society, were both literary, the latter being formed solely for the study of Shakespeare.

The Rambai Circle, sponsored by Miss Lucy Washburn and Miss Hudson (Mrs. E. R. Wagner), was in the interest of Missionary education and sought to aid Hindoo girl widows whose cause in this country was ably represented by Punditi Ramabai, an educated, Christian Hindoo widow and a woman of rare charm. Miss Bertola, well known physician and welfare worker, was president of this society, which numbered more than a hundred members.

The Knowledge Seekers Society, the Adelphian, and the L. O. L., (Lovers of Literature) all had literary aim, while the Cholian Harmonic Band brought together the music loving group.

Greek letter societies had their day in the earlier years. One, Sigma Theta Chi, planned to have chapters in other normal schools. Among the Greek letter societies which flourished were Chi Epsilon, Kappa Delta, Iota Phi. The Kappa Delta was a fraternity and had among its members Henry Suzzalo, William H. Langdon, W. H. Hanlon, W. B. Gould, and other men who later achieved distinction in various lines. Chi Epsilon was coeducational, and Sigma Theta Chi was a sorority as was Alpha Rho. Iota Pi was organized under the patronage of Dr. Arnold with a social objective.

The Authors' Club was mainly interested in the study of Shakespeare, the Emanon Club was mainly for amusement.

The Students' Art Club founded in 1900 was for the purpose of studying the great masters. Las Amigas was a fraternity, its object expressed by the name.

A Current Events Club flourished briefly. In the days when young men loomed more largely there was a healthy Y. M. C. A. organization. A Y. W. C. A. has from the eighties been a power.

The San Jose Normal Club formed in 1902 was in the interest of education, and a course of study was taken up which included educational problems, literature, nature study, and psychology. Perhaps no organization of the school was quite so broad in scope, so intensive in its activity, so scholarly and technical in its aims and achievements as the first annual report of its officers in 1901-02, printed and elaborately outlined as a part of the "Pennant" will show.

The Ne Plus Ultra was a rather temporary organization which took in the straggling members of the student body not included in the committees named to work for the big fair in 1902, numbering about 60.

So large a number of students from Oregon were enrolled in the school that an Oregon Society became a successful working unit.

A Dramatic Society functioned intermittently at various periods of the school's history. In 1812 the society presented some Shakespearean drama—modernized. In 1921 it took on new life, was called The Masque and Key, and presented some creditable dramas. Dramatic productions have always played a large part in the life of the school, but have not always been the output of the Dramatic Society, which for one reason or another has not until recently stood on a solid fundamental basis.

Copa de Ora was organized to affiliate with the Eastern Star.

The Senior Literary and Scientific Association is explained by its name. An Art Club was formed in 1910.

The Glee Club, Boys' Glee Club, Choral Society, and Mandolin Club have all had their period of prosperity, but some of the organizations have not been strong enough to stand after the spirit which launched them had withdrawn from the school.

The Student Body was first organized in 1898, through the efforts of the June graduating class, the first class to graduate after a four year course. The first president was Harriet E. Quilty, now Mrs. Frank Somers.

The activities of the student body were much the same as at present, but its power and influence were features which grew and developed with the passing of years, and in 1912 a constitution was adopted which has since been twice revised. A Cooperative store was an early dream, but the Board of Trustees in 1899 refused to sanction the undertaking, and so the fulfillment of the dream was left for later realization.

In 1922 the Cooperative Store was definitely established, and within a year had proved itself to be not only a useful adjunct to the college life, but also a financial prospect which promised future rewards.

The Student Body as it now functions has been outlined below by Mr. Neil O. Thomas, Controller.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

By Neil O. Thomas

The organization known as the Student Body was in 1923, reorganized and named the Associated Students. A new constitution based upon student representation in activities rather than on class division was adopted.

The Department of Student Affairs comprises all campus organizations that draw funds from the registration fees. These fees are all under the management of the controller who is appointed by the Student Control Committee. Mr. Neil O. Thomas, the first controller, was appointed in 1927.

The controller's office is located in what is known as the Spartan Union, a building which houses the Cooperative Store, Book Store, Times office, and all offices connected with student affairs.

In this office all purchase orders are issued, and all monies received and receipted for.

"The Spartans," a name which was applied to our athletic representatives, and has made the State Teachers College famous in athletic field for the past three years, was adopted, and the name "Spartan Union" is now accepted as the center of all student activities.

Some of these activities might be mentioned. One was the establishment of the Edwin Markham Health Cottage, a full account of which appears in another page of this book. Another achievement was the installation of a complete radio outfit in the Morris Elmer Dailey Assembly Hall.

A Rally Committee has accomplished much in the way of cooperation, interest, and a closer union between the Associated Students and Athletics.

It should be mentioned that funds for the Spartan Union building were greatly increased by gifts from the graduating class of 1926-27. At present this fund is entirely exhausted, but it is hoped that later contributions from future classes may make it possible to add another wing so that the overcrowded store may be enlarged and other campus organizations may be housed.

One accomplishment made by Mr. Paul Thomas in 1926 was the organization of California Student Presidents of California minor colleges. Much benefit has been derived from this association.

One other matter might be of interest, especially to old graduates of the school. A heated debate was held in 1925 over the effort of some students to change the school colors from gold and white to purple and white. At the end of a very spirited contest it was decided to hold to the traditional colors—Gold and White.

Among the more recent Greek letter societies are Kappa Delta Pi, Delta Pi, Iota Sigma Phi, Tau Delta Phi, Tau Gamma, Delta Phi Epsilon, Beta Gamma Chi, and Phi Kappa Pi.

At the present time there are some 18 or more organizations in addition to those above enumerated. Some of them new—some quite hoary with age, but most of them functioning more or less regularly. These will be reviewed by members of the faculty, former members of the faculty, alumni and student body whose close association and active participation in the history of these organizations fit them to "speak with tongues" to the thousands of graduates who remember so kindly and so tenderly the days when "Browning" meant more than a name and when "Sappho," "Allenian," and "Erosophian" call to mind associations and friendships never to be forgotten.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONS

By Clara Hinze

As one looks back over the pages of our Alumni Association's history from the vantage point of 1928, one seeks first to place in time, the individuals whose names are familiar even after a long course of years; the friends both among faculty and fellow-students; the good times; the work—all modified by the kindly spirit of time. Then one seeks to find the channels through which relations may be reestablished, news distributed, friendships renewed. Today our Alumni Association is such a channel and meets such a need. The question is, "has it always existed?"

Diligent search and many inquiries have resulted in the discovery of much that is of interest. In 1885 the "Index," a senior publication, printed alumni notes and voiced the desire for closer contact between the school and its graduates.

Unfortunately, it has been impossible to trace the early officers of the Association, and it is quite probable that for a term of years the Alumni existed only in the form of class reunions and reported news of graduates, or if a regularly officered organization existed, the minute books might have been in the possession of private individuals who did not realize any historical value in their preservation.

Be that as it may, the only available data other than casual references to the Alumni as given above is the minute book dated 1895 in which William H. Langdon (now Judge Langdon) is named as president and Alice Felker, secretary.

At this time we note a reunion at which all the classes from 1866 to 1895 were represented. At this meeting we find progress spelled in terms of the main topic under discussion. The Association voiced its approval of a reduction of the number of teachers who did not hold Normal School credentials.

An outstanding and striking fact in connection with these meetings is the scope of the programs presented. Not only were the new graduates entertained and social affairs enjoyed, but prominent speakers, among them Benjamin Ide Wheeler, David Starr Jordan, Henry Morse Stephens and John Dewey, were invited, and classes in session were visited.

Debates held a prominent place, and it is interesting to note that some of the debaters of the 90's were Sam Cohn and William Langdon, who discussed such weighty subjects as, "The Normal School Curriculum should be changed so as to allow High School certificates to those who pursue a special course."

The Association also sponsored education through other media as we note in the report that, in 1896, the "Teacher and Student" was selected, while at another time Margaret Schallenberger (now Mrs. McNaught) suggested "California Education" as professional help.

No program was considered complete without music. Nor should we omit drama. It holds a definite place in the reunions. Many variations of type appeared on the stage from that recognized in literature to that represented in popular "take-offs," especially aimed at the faculty.

Of reunions, prior to the present decade, stands out that of January 1, 1896. At this time, in conjunction with the C. T. A. meeting in Oakland, a hotel was rented as San Jose Normal School headquarters where "open-house" for our graduates was held. And here on January first was a point social reunion of the three prominent Normal School Alumni Associations—Chico, Los Angeles and San Jose.

Another notable reunion was held in 1903. At this time members of the class of 1878 met to renew old associations, and a booklet was afterwards published giving a full report of this meeting and a history of the members of the class as far as obtainable.

On Home Coming Day, June 9, 1928, this same class had another reunion—the 50th and there was a good representation.

It would be most desirable if every year on Home Coming Day the 10th anniversary of a class could be celebrated.

The San Jose State Teachers College, dating back to a war period in American history, has been a beacon light of peace carrying the torch of education, upheld in its daily tasks by a sympathetic faculty, an enthusiastic student group, and a loyal, well-organized Alumni Association.

Following is a list of the Presidents and Secretaries of the Alumni since 1895.

Year	President	Secretary
1895	Wm. J. Langdon.	Alice Felker.
1896	F. K. Barthel.	Alice Felker.

1925	Andrew P. Hill, Jr.	Marie Curtis.
1926	Walter Bachrodt.	Marie Curtis.
1927	Evelyn Miller.	Marie Curtis.
1928	Marjorie Bond Peake.	Marie Curtis.

It will be noted that for about six years no new officers were elected, and the aggressive work of the Alumni lapsed. Annual business meetings were scheduled, but the lack of a quorum made the election of officers impossible.

This was undoubtedly due to the benumbing effects of the war, but for six years past there has been renewed activity, and with the Appointment Bureau under Alumni sponsorship, a permanent secretary, the publication of the Alumni Bulletin, and the Annual Home Coming Event, there is no reason why the Alumni of the San Jose State Teachers College should not be one of the strongest factors in the life of the institution.

THE Y. W. C. A.

By Myrtle Hudson Wagner.

Our Y. W. C. A. was the first student Association in California. It had its beginning in 1886 when one of our Alumnae who had come to realize in the University of Michigan how much such a society could mean in a young woman's life, helped the girls to organize. The women of the faculty were most cordial, and sometimes conducted the weekly meetings. These gatherings met a real need and were gladly welcomed by a large group of students. As one of them has since said, "The Association was a laboratory where our religious life was worked over into concrete service." Among the young women who carried the new enterprise with ability and enthusiasm was Harriet Cory of San Jose, not only as one of the early presidents but later when as a member of the faculty she could be a strong adviser for a long period. It is impossible to mention the outstanding girls who promoted the Association through the years, but their contribution ranks as one of the important influences in the school.

In 1889 we were asked to send delegates to a conference in Berkeley to meet others from the College of the Pacific, Mills College, and the University of California. A state committee was organized, and one of our group elected chairman.

As the movement strengthened and the Pacific Coast had its own secretaries, the Normal Y. W. C. A. was put upon a stronger foundation through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Blasdel Moore, who had herself been a member of the faculty. She was a woman of rare gifts and personality. Her talent for music and cheer won out everywhere, and the tribute at her death was that "the beauty of her character was a reflection of the radiant character of her Lord." With the leisure and wealth that came with her marriage she became a very prominent Y. W. C. A. worker. By pledging a part of the salary she made it possible for nine years for our Association to have a resident secretary. Room 27 became a popular center, a place for rest and inspiration and work under the capable young secretaries. The pioneer coming in 1912, was Miss Grace Steinbeck, now occupying a place of great responsibility in China. She was followed by Charlotte Neely, Ruth Bacon, Marion Pears, Katherine Springborg, Dorothy Pennell, and now by Lucille Stacy.

At the time a resident secretary was provided, an Advisory Committee was created, made up of women from the Faculty and of the city, most of them Alumnae of the College. Among those who have served longest are Mrs.

Mary Post Miller, Mrs. Estelle Hammond Greathead, Mrs. Mary Wilson George, Mrs. Walter Trinkler, Mrs. Daniel Wood, Mrs. Mary Baker Burgess, Mrs. Myrtle Hudson Wagner, and Miss Sarah Rich.

Membership in the Y. W. C. A. has sometimes included more than half of the enrollment of the school. At present there are over 200. The Association is a recognized part of the Community Chest, and has contributed to the Community life on the playground and wherever in the institutions of the city the young women can be helpful to the children. Through regular meetings, carefully supervised Standing Committees with definite programs, through its cabinets, its Discussion Groups, and luncheons addressed by prominent speakers with a vital message, the Y. W. C. A. ministers to its own College and keeps in close touch with the State and National movements, constantly introducing methods and features best adapted to meet the enlarging opportunities of a Teachers College in this rapidly developing West.

O. K. CLUB

The O. K. Club was an organization of eighteen members of the class which was graduated in 1899. It consisted of girls who entered the school together and after graduation kept up their interest in each other by chain letters which continued until the world war in some fashion broke the links in the chain, and it has only recently been repaired and is starting on another decade of life.

Mrs. Agnes Halsey of Santa Cruz writes of their reunion, their group photographs, the humorous stories, and the varied interests of the club as life carried them on.

ALLENIAN SOCIETY

By Katherine H. Hall

The Allenian Rhetorical Society was organized in November, 1896. It absorbed the "K. S." or "Knowledge Seekers" and the "Philomathean Society" (or as the name indicates, "Lovers of Learning"), which societies, recognizing the high purpose or promise of the "A. R. S." turned over their minute books and funds.

A committee consisting of Miss Schultz, Miss Miller, Mr. Cobb, and Mr. Bancroft drew up the Constitution and By-Laws wherein is stated the purpose of the society: To gain a knowledge of parliamentary usage, to acquire fluency for public speaking, to prepare for duties of citizenship, to cultivate a love for decorum in public places, and otherwise work for mutual benefit and instruction. At the suggestion of Professor Condit of the Normal School the society included the additional purpose of perpetuating the honor and name of Professor Charles H. Allen, President of the Normal School at San Jose for sixteen years (1873-1899), to whom the Normal Schools of California owe more of their spirit, growth and strength than to any other one person.

On November 10, 1896, the name Allenian Rhetorical Society was formally adopted and the following officers elected:

President—Helene Schultz.
 Vice-President—Effie Hawkins.
 Secretary—Catherine Reardon.
 Corresponding Secretary—Clara Boyce.
 Treasurer—Mr. Hugh Frazer.
 Sergeant-at-Arms—Charlotte Douglas.
 Asst. Sergeant-at-Arms—Nellie McMahon.
 Reporter—Grace Culbertson.

In June, 1897, two shades of green were determined upon as the society colors. In September of the same year, the motto. "He can conquer who thinks he can," proposed by Mr. Coffey, was adopted.

The following are honorary members.

Prof. C. H. Allen.	Harry R. Painton.
Miss E. Kinney.	Dr. Mary Arnold.
Prof. Condit.	Dillia Gabler.
Mr. C. D. Cobb.	Alma Plumb.
Prof. J. E. Addicott.	Mabel Bowsher.
Prof. T. L. Bolton.	Edith Edwards.
Mr. Suzzalo.	Helene Schultz.
Gertrude Payne.	Ysibel Daly.
Ruth E. Oliver.	Blanche Fry.
Emma J. Addicott.	Edna Hyde.
Carmella M. Hughes.	Hugh Sturtevant.
Olivia E. Lovell.	Effie Hawkins.
Miss Howe.	Jessie Cuthbertson.

An interesting custom was the annual commemoration of Professor Allen's birthday on February 11. His favorite flower, the violet, symbolized his ideals in society gatherings.

Throughout the early publications of the Normal wherever Allenians are mentioned, it is evident that they, as a society and as individuals, emulate the educator whose memory they honor. They have consistently endeavored to stand for friendliness, loyalty, good fellowship, and enthusiastic support of the best interests of the school.

Keeping pace with the changing standards of times and the school, the Allenian from being a formal literary society gradually enlarged its social activities and dropped the title Rhetorical.

It continues loyal to its early spirit as expressed in the oft-quoted quatrain of Professor Allen:

"With much love for the old friends, much love for the new,
 We give you a handclasp, and this watchword, too:
 Be true to yourselves, to the Normal be true."

THE EROSOPHIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

By Harriet Cory Hummel.

The Erosophian Literary Society was organized in the spring of 1900. I called a number of girls together and asked them if they would like to form a literary society. They said they would. The following girls were among the first members:

Anna Ward (Mrs. Joe Sherrer, Placerville).
Ethel Wayne (Mrs. H. T. Rogers, Bakersfield).
Nell Thompson.
Nellie Steele.
Pearl Sherburne.
Onie Ross.
Florence Vandervoort (Mrs. Harry Murray, Santa Cruz).
Pearl Sutton (Mrs. A. J. Fouch, Maxwell).
Alice Chalfant (Mrs. C. G. Allen, Stanford).
Ethel Gray.
Martha Anderson (Mrs. John Dinsmore, Eureka).
Jennie McGillivray (a teacher in Oakland).
Greta Wood.
Alice Cain.
Ethel Morefort.

The first seven were charter members and perhaps some of the others. There were probably other charter members whose names I have forgotten. In the "Normal Pennant" of June, 1900, there is a group picture of the early members.

After organizing the club, we asked Mr. Bennett, the psychology professor in the school, if he could suggest a name. He said that a literary society to which he had belonged in the University at Nashville, Tennessee, was called Erosophian, meaning "lovers of wisdom." We liked the name and adopted it.

Up to the time I severed my connection with the school in 1907, the society flourished and had a prominent place in the social and literary activities of the Normal.

Early in 1906, the society decided that they would give "As You Like It" on the lawn as a part of Commencement week festivities. Then came the earthquake! We were without a building. All activities stopped. Classes were held in the Training School building. We were terribly crowded. Some classes were held on the lawn. We gave up the idea of giving "As You Like It." There was no place to practice, and we had no heart for it if there had been. But President Dailey insisted that all activities go on as usual in order to keep up the morale of the school. To please him, we decided to go on with the play. The rehearsals took place in the back yard of my home, 435 South Second Street. A stage was erected on the lawn a week before the play was to be given. It was in demand, not only for our play, but for other final rehearsals of Commencement, entertainments (several wanting it at the same time). But finally "As You Like It" was twice successfully given, in spite of the fact that the electricity went off during the evening performance. Professor Wilson finally got it going again. One of my treasures is a picture of the players in costume.

I am glad that the Erosophian Society has flourished during these past years. It was a pleasure to me to be present at a bridge tea given by the society at Hotel Sainte Claire last June, and to know that an Alumni association of Erosophians has been formed.

SAPPHO

The Sappho Club has always upheld the highest ideals. Its membership being carefully guarded, to be a Sappho is the fond hope of many an entering freshman. The Sappho Club Alumni is an active organization holding an annual banquet in San Jose where old friendships are renewed and old ties cemented. The present president is Mrs. Leonard Edwards.

The Sappho Club at the College has for its president, Miss Betty Williams, and the secretary is Miss Myrne Shephard.

The first president of the Sappho Society, Mrs. Mary Corkery Dornberger, has given the following account of the original organization.

The Sappho Club was organized in October, 1898, by a small group of young women, most of whom had been friends in the Training School before entering the Normal Proper.

While a good time socially has always been enjoyed, the object of the club was primarily to study literature, art, drama, and parliamentary law.

The first officers were: Mary Corkery Dornberger, Clifton Swisher Kooser, Christine Zoffman, Ethel Cragin, and Georgia Rattan.

BROWNING (BETA GAMMA CHI)

By Helen Mignon and Maybyl E. Benson.

The Browning Literary Club had its origin in some studies of Browning's poems done in connection with a course in grammar under Dr. Henry Meade Bland in the year 1900. A number of students wishing to devote more time to the studies than the class time allowed, met in room X on Thursday afternoons. The work done was so interesting that the membership increased to sixty. Both young men and young women joined, many of them now ranking as very prominent alumni of the college.

Debates were included in the programs, and the graduates received a diploma upon the completion of so many points of work. The first officers elected were: Sadie M. Holmes, President; Norine Connelly, Vice-President; Beatrice June Johnson, Secretary; Jessie Harrel, Treasurer; Dr. Bland, Helen L. Mignon, and Sadie M. Holmes, Program Committee.

Each year on May 7th, an outing was fostered in memory of Browning's birthday. These outings have gone down in history in the minds of members of that day. Browning became known for its good programs and high ideals as well as its good times for the members.

The idea of literary programs and graduations gradually passed out among the school societies. During this period the Browning Club changed its pin from an old English "B" to a Greek letter pin with the letters indicating a change of name to Browning Society. By 1908 the club was more nearly social, with a limited membership of young ladies only. An annual Browning Day program in which Dr. Bland, the "Father of the Browning Club," participated remained as the only relic of the literary tendency. At the present period of publication of this history the name of the society has been changed to Beta Gamma Chi in keeping with the changing conditions in the affairs of the college.

The alumni of Browning are now forming an organization under the name of Beta Gamma Chi Alumni, having meetings in San Jose every month for those who can attend. It is planned to hold one affair each year at some place selected by the members where all the alumni of Browning and Beta Gamma Chi may join for a reunion.

The aims of the present society are interest in the affairs of the school, promotion of scholarship, friendship, and social values. The original club motto taken from Browning might still be considered the inspiration of the present active members: "Best be thyself; imperial, plain and true."

THE NEWMAN CLUB

By Nell O'Brien

Throughout the United States and England, in many of the universities there are large Newman Clubs, some made up entirely of men as in Columbia, some having both men and women, as in Berkeley. These organizations, named in honor of Cardinal Newman of England, are primarily to take care of the Catholic students and to provide a wholesome place for religious instruction, study and recreation.

About twenty years ago the Knights of Columbus, then organized in San Jose, suggested that a Newman Club be formed in the old Normal School. Long before this time, Dr. Anne Nicholson, now secretary for the National Catholic Women's Association in Washington, mothered the Catholic girls in the Normal. They met with her regularly for good times. She shared their joys and sorrows, and guided them as best she could, but their small organization had no name.

The Knights of Columbus invited this group to participate in their receptions and other forms of entertainment during 1908 when Dr. Nicholson was obtaining her doctorate in Columbia University. As soon as she returned the Newman Club was organized.

The place for regular directed meetings was the next problem. Dr. Nicholson worked to interest various groups of Catholic men and women in the enterprise. A committee composed of Dr. Nicholson, Miss Mary Tormey, Misses Julia and Katherine Murphy approached Archbishop Riordan to ask for help. The Archbishop was easily convinced of the crying need; so he agreed to erect a suitable building provided that a lot near the Normal could be procured.

Not many months later, the desired lot was bought, and the plans for the building commenced. In 1914 the present attractive Newman Hall on Fifth street, a half block from the grounds of Teachers College, was completed, and since then has been the scene of many happy times.

The resident secretary, Miss Evelyn Murphy, receives her salary from Archbishop Hanna who has been only too glad to further the work of his predecessor. The upkeep of the building is the responsibility of Newman Council, an organization made up of Catholic women who realize the necessity of providing this opportunity for the Catholic girls away from home.

Lectures, popular and religious, dramatic readings, and musical programs are presented from time to time, and the hall is always open to the students who care to go there and rest, or to study in the well equipped library.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

(A. W. S.)

The Associated Women Students is an organization established in 1922 by Dean Jones to foster more effectively a friendly and kindly over-sight of the women students.

The method which had prevailed for years of dividing the incoming freshman class into groups of twenty or twenty-five with a faculty adviser who "mothered" them from the time they entered until they were given their diplomas and sent into the world was felt to be somewhat unsatisfactory, especially in view of the school having entered upon a collegiate standing, and accordingly the manner of groupings was changed; the young men were not included, a constitution was adopted; and the faculty advisers acted upon plans and programs definitely arranged through cooperation and advice from the Dean of women.

As the college grew in numbers and as there was an increasing tendency towards development along special lines of interest, a further change was made, necessitating a revision of the constitution which would establish a basis of representation in the governing council upon the class registration, as Freshmen, Sophomore, Junior, Seniors, etc.

This is the system in operation today, but as the college is soon to adopt the quarter system a further change becomes imperative, and revision of the constitution will undoubtedly be made.

Out of the Associated Women Students organization has developed several smaller groups which have effectively sponsored special needs and the Big Sisters, Girls' Jinx, Co-ed Capers and Mothers Ten, have served to fill the gaps in the wall as occasion demanded.

In order to help the timid and often times homesick girls through their first few weeks of loneliness and readjustment Dean Jones organized the Big Sister group, in 1922, consisting of seasoned veterans who were supposed by experiences to be aware of the needs of the incoming girls and could offer help and comfort in their new surroundings. Very effective work is done during the days of registration, and a need is met with kindness and understanding.

The definite aims towards which the A. W. S. is working are as follows:

1. To cooperate with the student body in all matters pertaining to the student's life at the college.
2. To strengthen the spirit of unity and good fellowship among the women students.
3. To provide a medium through which the women students may express opinions on matters of interest to them.
4. To provide a medium through which the social standards of the women will be made and kept high.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

By Margaret Hoenck

"The promotion of physical efficiency and an interest in athletics among the women of San Jose State Teachers College by providing an opportunity for every girl to participate in some form of activity" is the ideal of the Women's Athletic Association.

In the spring of 1921, under the presidency of Wilda Mette (Carter), the organization held its first meeting. The first business to be brought up for consideration was a heated discussion of whether the pins should be square or triangular. From this small beginning, the association has grown to include all women of the college. Its progress has been steady and continuous.

In 1925 when national opinion banned interschool sports, W. A. A. adopted a plan of intermural, intersport and interclass athletics which provided opportunities for the majority of women.

Previous to this time athletic contests were held all over the state, in which San Jose won many honors. The Spartan women, under Miss Herron's coaching, placed second in a National Telegraphic Track meet in 1924. However, with the joining of the Athletic Conference of American College Women 1925, and the National Amateur Athletic Federation in 1927, all this was dropped, and "Sports for All" became the slogan.

Play days with San Francisco Teachers College supplemented the old type of interscholastic competition. These were later enlarged to include nearby Junior Colleges. Sports played under these programs are baseball, tennis, volleyball, swimming, archery, hockey, speedball, and basketball. Nearly everyone participates in one activity or another, not for the desire of victory, but for the sheer love of the game. The Annual Field Day closes the local sports program. The interclass and intermural championships are played off; the swimming meet is held; and there are archery, bowling, and horseshoe tournaments, all of which are climaxed by a supper on the lawn and presentation of awards.

The organization has also been socially active. The Tea given in conjunction with Tau Gamma, as a housewarming for the new women's gymnasium, was one of the most brilliant affairs of the 1928 season. The Physical Education instructors of all the Bay region high schools, Mills College, Stanford University, the University of California, and the Junior Colleges; State Officials, Miss Van Hagen and Mr. Neilson, San Jose State graduates, and city and county officials were present on this occasion.

The traditional Christmas banquets are always enjoyed. Sport spreads and Team picnics feature the close of each activity's season. Skating parties are frequent.

Never having sponsored material awards, W. A. A. offers membership to "J" society, with a Block S. J. and sweater as its highest honor. W. A. A. maintains a "Silver Interclass Championship Cup" upon which the class winning the most interclass sports each year is permitted to engrave its numerals. Each intermural sport has a pennant upon which the captain's name of the winning teams are written. Other awards include the Circle S. J. numeral, and pin.

Every girl enrolled in college is either an active or an inactive member of the association. After playing on a first interclass team a girl becomes an active voting member, eligible to hold office. Financial support is maintained by the Student Body.

Past Presidents include Wilda Mette (Carter), Mildred Sutherland, Neva Duncan (Williams), Lucile Clark, Miriam Lynn, Aurelia Brown, Bernice Graham and Elizabeth Rowe.

"J" SOCIETY

By Margaret Hoenck

"J" Society was formed under the auspices of the Women's Athletic Association in 1924, by the women who wore the Block letters.

It is purely an honor organization. The original membership list of six members has been increased to twenty.

The semi-annual initiation ceremonies followed by dinner and entertainment at the "Hobby House" constitute its main business.

Its tradition of not allowing neophytes to speak to each other or to old members for the two days preceeding initiation has caused much amusement.

Past presidents include Alice Bradeen, Geraldine Delbon, Aurelia Brown and Mary Conforti.

THE MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club, like Topsy, "was not born, it just grewed," under Dr. Dailey's administration, the over-feminization which had previously been somewhat emphasized, was slightly checked in the effort to bring the men to the front, or at least to organize them sufficiently so that they could assert themselves if occasion presented itself. After more or less frequent informal gatherings of the men of the faculty and students for social purposes, a more serious professional spirit was evidenced, and an effort was made to reach out the young men who had left school and unite them in a bond of mutual helpfulness and mutual aims, centering about the Normal School. The organization, which at that time, was known as the Normal Men's Club was officered in 1915 and the following were elected:

President—Herbert L. Humm.

Vice-president—Cyril Frost.

Recording Secretary—Bryan Hall.

Corresponding Secretary—M. Lloyd Morgan.

Treasurer—James Kirby.

Reporter—Geo. Boyd.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Leland Lancaster.

Meetings were rather sporadic, and the ebb and flow of student life had the usual deterrent effect upon the usefulness of the organization, but when Mr. Robert A. Lee, principal of the Lowell Grammar School of San Jose and one of the older graduates, took the leadership of it there was an added interest and impetus. Many interesting meetings were held, the men graduates of the school were listed and reached by letter and a professional spirit was encouraged. After the death of Dr. Dailey the interest lagged, and the organization finally lapsed to be later reorganized after the school assumed collegiate standing.

Following is an account of the new organization by the club reporter, Joe Amori:

Just as other things have evolved so has the San Jose State College Men's Club. The organization originated in the fall of 1921, having as its first president Al Sarzin and as secretary Fred Zimmerman.

The club's total number of chartered members was forty-five. It is of interest to note that in the initial year twenty-four out of the twenty-five men turned out for football—what a "powerful" grid squad they must have had. Things have changed considerably since then. Today there are enrolled at San Jose State Teachers College nearly five hundred men students as compared with the meager handful back in the days of '21.

Many of the present activities of the Men's Club, such as the annual feed the frosh commandments, kangaroo court, etc., were originated by the organization in 1921. At the present time there exist at San Jose State Teachers College, the same functions as in the days of yesterday but on a much larger scale. As years pass, the organization will continue to expand; both in its enrollment and club activities.

The 1928 Men's Club officers include the following:

President—Victor Herman.

Vice-President—Carl Carr.

Secretary—Arthur Carr.

Treasurer—Dan Linstead.

Reporter—Joe Amori.

DEBATES

By R. W. Barry.

The Central California Intercollegiate Debating Federation was organized in the autumn of 1924. The charter members were San Jose State Teachers College, Fresno State Teachers College, University of Santa Clara, College of the Pacific, San Mateo Junior College, Santa Rosa Junior College, Modesto Junior College and Bakersfield Junior College.

During the school year of 1924-25, San Jose won five out of six debates.

In the fall of 1925 the league was divided. One half was composed of the three four-year colleges, and the other half was made up of the four two-year junior colleges. Each of these divisions debated first for a winner of the division, and later the division winners debated for a championship. San Jose held its first debate for the school year 1925-26 on December 18, 1925.

On February 2, 1926, a debate before the assembly was held with the Stanford varsity debaters. The question was, "Resolved that young America's assertion of freedom of thought and action is detrimental to society."

During the school year 1926-27, San Jose won six out of eight debates.

Debating was discontinued because of the lack of interest on the part of the student body. Audiences were so small that thorough preparation for the contests was discouraged.

THE SAN JOSE PLAYERS

By Virginia Soames Sanderson

In the spring of 1924 the San Jose Players of the San Jose State Teachers College came into existence with the expressed purpose of furthering dramatic activity in the college and maintaining high standards of production. The small group which, meeting with Miss Virginia Sanderson, dramatic coach of the college, planned the organization and wrote the constitution, felt that above all, the club should be democratic in spirit, unlimited so far as number of members was concerned, and should work to further the reputation of San Jose State Teachers College as a dramatic center.

The Charter members were: Julia Wyckoff, Anne Elizabeth Short, Leonia Kerwin, Doris Marks, Eleanor Zelman, Neil Thomas, Milton Watson, Cathrine Wallace, Helen Maslin and Ernest Williams.

Membership to the club is gained through tryouts of which there is a great variety. Realizing that dramatic art includes allied arts, admittance to membership is made possible through successful acting tryouts or written or oral tryouts in lighting, costuming, stagecraft, dramatic dancing, pantomime, dramatic music, or stage direction. Tryouts have been held at the beginning of each semester and since establishment of the organization over two hundred members have joined Players, only seven of whom have been dropped from the group for lack of cooperation. At first the entering members were few in comparison with the number trying out, but with the growth of the college and the establishment on a firm constitutional and financial basis, all those trying out who show talent or possibilities for dramatic work are welcomed. During 1927-28 ninety students passed the tryouts.

It is impossible to make a list of all the three-act and one-act plays produced by the group, from its first presentation of BELLE AND BEAU, by Constance Smedley, to its last enormous undertaking of the Fiesta de las Rosas play pageant, "The Piper," by Josephine Preston Peabody. Three is the average number of full-length plays a year while the one-act plays produced have ranged as high as fifteen during one year. Many of these one-act plays had four and five performances on various community programs and for special gatherings. An interesting effort of the Players is to help high school and community by presenting programs for groups who desire them. The Association of American University Women, Eastern Star, Parent-Teacher Association, Women's Club, County Hospital, and various sanitoriums have had San Jose Player programs, while an exchange of one-act plays has been made with other schools. The annual three-act Christmas play, given without charge, is The Players gift to the community.

Regular meetings are held once every three weeks during the lunch hour, though recently the movement to make every third meeting an evening dinner meeting, at which noted people in the dramatic field are present, has been made a constitutional by-law. Since the club pays a per cent of luncheon and dinner expenses, the dues may be said to revert to the individuals during the semester provided they attend meetings regularly. Three consecutive absences from regular meetings drops one from membership and formal application with adequate excuse must be made to secure re-admittance.

To be a worthy representative of the State Teachers College, to arise and uphold high dramatic standards—with these ideals San Jose Players began. Now, proud of its membership, which includes so many of the outstanding members of the student body, the Players look forward to an increasingly successful future.

With the exception of one year while Miss Sanderson was in Europe and Miss Viola Mae Powell took charge, the club has had but one director, Miss Virginia Sanderson. Honorary members include the following: Dr. T. W. MacQuarrie, Dr. Henry Meade Bland, Miss Helen Sprague, Miss Helen Dimmick, Miss Dorothy Caton, and Mr. Norman Hackett.

MUSICAL CLUBS

Musical societies have, like empires, risen and fallen—Glee Clubs, Orchestras, Bands, Choral Societies have all flourished and had their joyous, tuneful place in the life of this institution, presenting at various times concerts, operettas, and musical skits.

The ebb and flow of the two-year classes caused a fluctuating prosperity and frequent reorganization was found desirable.

Miss Fisher's untiring inspiration has certainly been evidenced and her insistence upon high class compositions in which she was strongly upheld by Mr. Clarence Urmy and other members of the faculty has been an excellent background for later musical instructors who have followed.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The men's Glee Club, organized in 1924 under direction of Mr. George Matthews, and the San Jose State Teachers College Band have made themselves heard quite effectively in concert and radio programs. The band uniform of white duck trousers with orange and white striped blazers is quite as colorful as the music they present, and their future plans contemplate a reaching out to distant points in the state for the presentation of musical programs.

At various times in the history of the school there has been organized an orchestra, but as the student membership has necessarily been fluidic, and musical experts on the violin, or other musical instruments are not easily found, the orchestra has not been a static "institution" and must necessarily be periodically reorganized.

Such a reorganization took place in 1923, and Mr. Miles Dreskell, acting head of the music department, has presented programs of real merit in the college auditorium and over the radio.

BEL CANTO

Bel Canto is the beautiful Italian name for the women's musical club at the college. The name signifies beautiful singing, and under the leadership of Miss Alma Williams the club has presented during the year 1927-28 some very ambitious undertakings.

A Chinese Opera by Grenville Pettis, "The Betrothal of Sukke" was one of the productions of the club, besides broadcasting carols, giving several sacred concerts and participating in some of the dramatic programs of the college.

ENGLISH CLUB

The English Club under the leadership of Dr. Bland is one of the most constructive organizations in the school. With creative, literary expression as the aim, it has gathered together a group of young people of literary talent and skill. Contests are held from time to time and prizes offered. The results have drawn into the light a considerable number of young people whose gifts promise later fruitage.

Besides literary self expression the English Club has for one of its aims literary appreciation, and its social gatherings have honored men and women of note at various times, its most notable and beloved guest being the distinguished alumnus of the school, Edwin Markham.

"The Quill," is the concrete expression of the activities of the club, a magazine published semi-annually.

The executive board during the past semester is as follows: Ruth Williams, president; Martha Noll, vice-president; Marion Goodman, secretary; Wm. Finley, Treasurer; Caroline Stevenson, Editor of the Quill; Gladys Hares, business manager; and Elliot Evans, publicity manager.

Senator James Phelan has entertained the English Club several times at his beautiful Saratoga home and has shown appreciation and encouragement for the efforts they are making towards poetic expression.

SPARTAN KNIGHTS

By Robert T. Rhodes

Feeling that the ever-increasing number of men students at San Jose State needed an organization to promote spirit and uphold traditions, the Spartan Knights were founded in the spring of 1924 by Paul D. Thomas, then president of the Associated Students. Since that time membership in the group has been a coveted honor among under-classmen, and the members, limited to twenty, pledge themselves to serve the school unselfishly.

Activities of the Knights include entertainment of visiting teams, maintenance of order at student meetings, ushering at games and entertainments, and the upholding of the campus traditions. More recently the Knights have taken over the duties of the Rally Committee, with the cheer-leader who is always an honorary member of the organization, in charge. This has insured timely, well-organized rallies for all important games and at least one big night rally for the football series.

By upholding these aims of unselfish cooperation the Spartan Knights have firmly established themselves at San Jose State Teachers College in less than two years time. The Spartan head on the gold and purple shield has become a symbol of achievement of which the wearers are proud, while the organization has proven its right to the principles represented in its name—the Spartan Spirit of San Jose State Teachers College and the unselfishness of the Knight of Chivalry.

SMOCK 'N TAM

In 1923 The Smock 'n Tam was organized by the art group in the effort to stimulate creative achievement, in various lines of artistic development. With not too serious a purpose the club hopes to keep in touch with the Art exhibits of other institutions and of individual artists and to stimulate its own members to worthwhile achievement. It does not confine its artistic area nor its artistic skill to any narrow boundaries but seeks to develop all hand skill by means of social contact, mutual understanding and sympathetic appreciation.

OC-HO-MEC

By B. W. Spaulding

The Oc-Ho-Mec club was originally organized in the spring of 1925, with a charter membership of fifteen, for the purpose of creating a working unit within the school and establishing a line of communication between the men who were taking work in the shop department and those who had already gone out into the teaching field.

William Mette was the first president of the club, and he has been followed by five others, namely, Lear, Dermody, Merson, Fox, and the present president, O'Dell.

The number of men in the club is about forty, and they work together very readily.

During December, 1927 the name of the club was changed to Iota Sigma Phi, which stands for "Industry, Service and Fellowship." A new constitution was drawn up and adopted, by means of which the club will be able to function more powerfully, and it provides for a definite means of communication with the men of the department who are now teaching. The club stands for improvement of the morale and general working of the shop department, and at the same time furnishes a reasonable amount of recreational activity for the men of the department.

THE PHILIPPINO CLUB

The Philippino Society was founded in 1922 for the purpose of promoting friendly relations between the Philippino and American students through a closer sympathy in educational and social aims.

Five young Philippino men formed the nucleus of this club which has grown to the number of 30 including two young women.

The first president was Isidro Alejandro, who after securing his degree, returned to his native land and is now teaching in the Normal school at Albay.

A social objective binds together these wanderers from a far land who are fitting themselves to carry back to their homes the best pedagogical principles we are able to give them, and so the traditions of this college are scattered on the soil of our neighbors and foster-brothers in the far east.

TAU DELTA PHI

By P. Victor Peterson

In 1916 a group of faculty men and students met and organized Tau Delta Phi as a men's honor educational fraternity. The aims and ideals of this society are to promote and sponsor interest in the various fields of educational endeavor. Tau Delta Phi is a service as well as honor fraternity.

Professional and business meetings are held twice each month. The organization has always been active in the work which will build for a greater San Jose State Teachers College.

Membership is selected on the basis of scholarship and service to the college. During the past semester its membership, active and honorary, has grown to forty-four. Three honorary members of this group, namely, H. F. Minssen, K. S. Hazeltine, and B. W. Spaulding, took part in its organization in 1916. To these men and to Reverend Fred Morrison of the local Congregational church, Tau Delta Phi is greatly indebted for its present position and influence.

SIGMA MU AND KAPPA DELTA PI

By Helen Dimmick

About 1925 the council of the Associated Women Students began to look into the matter of organizing an honor society in this college.

During the administration of Miss Marion Bambauer a committee was formed and a very thorough study of the matter was undertaken in conferences with the Dean of Women, Miss Helen Dimmick, and with Dr. De Voss, who, as a member of a National honor society, was in a position to give considerable help.

In May or June, 1926, the new organization called Sigma Mu, came into existence with 37 charter members. A small but enthusiastic group carried the work through the summer season of 1926, and in the fall about 41 new members were taken in. The basis for membership was Junior and Senior standing, and the recommendation of the membership committee of which the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men were ex-officio members.

The first president was Mrs. Elizabeth Whaley who was succeeded by Miss Georgiana Hoenck. The year's work was carried on in a dignified and sincere manner, and the enthusiasm shown proved to the satisfaction of all concerned that the club was representative of the best interests in the educational field of the college.

In the late spring of 1927 it was discovered that the National society, toward which Sigma Mu was working, was also the goal of another organization in the college, Sigma Tau Kappa. Many discussions were held to find out how the two organizations were overlapping in their fields.

In the fall of 1927 it was decided that under present conditions each organization was tending to defeat the work of the other. Since Sigma Tau Kappa had been in existence longer and had become an established organization here but it had considerable prior right. On the other hand, Sigma Mu required a scholarship standing far above that of Sigma Tau Kappa and it, therefore had more chances along other lines.

Shortly before Christmas a joint meeting was held at which it was unanimously decided that both organizations should dissolve and that a new organization composed of the present members of both clubs should be formed and that the new organization should make application to the National society. Hence the new society known as Kappa Delta Pi became an established factor in the college.

LECTURES—ENTERTAINMENTS

The custom has always been more or less in force of bringing before the student body men and women, who because of being skilled in some technical line or privileged because of travel, were able to furnish intellectual and cultural stimulus to the regular curriculum.

The proximity of Stanford University, made it possible in the early nineties to secure some of the brightest minds in the educational field, and a series of University Extension Courses, sponsored by the Normal School but open to any and all who cared to avail themselves of these cultural advantages opened a door to literary, scientific and historical thought, which to many had heretofore been closed, locked and bolted.

Among the many names appearing in this list, are those of Prince and Princess Lazarovitch, the former of the royal line of Serbia and his wife, Eleanor Calhoun, a San Jose girl who achieved considerable fame as an actress. The appearance of this distinguished pair was not for the purpose of exploiting their royal title, but was in the interest of the Serbian people who were sufferers in the world war.

Another and most thrilling speaker was Helen Keller, the blind girl, and her teacher, Miss Sullivan, both of them modern miracles, whose appearance was an event never to be forgotten.

Following is a list of the various people who have occupied the platform during the last thirty or forty years, many of them people of note and distinction in their several lines:

David Starr Jordan	A. E. Winship
Governor Markham	Annie Jenness Miller
George Kennan	Dr. Brannan of Stanford
James Whitcomb Riley	Colonel Henry Watterson
Jane Adams	General Lew Wallace
Frederick Warde	Dr. Mara L. Pratt
Erward Howard Griggs	Dr. Henry Morse Stevens
Dr. Josiah Royce	Ellwood O. Cubberley
Mary Austin	Col. E. Emerson of N. Y. World
Wm. George of George Jr. Republic	Dr. Henry Suzzalo
Ida Tarbell	Mrs. Herbert Hoover
Maria L. Sanford "Grand Old Woman"	Ben Greet Players
Patty Hill	Edwin Markham
Thomas Edison	Aurelia H. Reinhardt

It will be seen from this list—which is not by any means exhaustive—that many eminent people have contributed to the cultural uplift of this teacher training institution, and it is a temptation which must be resisted to dilate and enlarge upon the thrilling personalities mentioned.

Space may be perhaps spared to recall the silvery moonlight evening in October when Ellen Beach Yaw (the lark) stood on the north vine embowered balcony of the quad and charmed a spell-bound audience with her incomparable interpretation of Juliet's song.

CHICO—SAN JOSE CONTESTS

From 1901 until 1919, with some lapses in dates, it was customary to hold annual debates, and basket ball games, for both men and women, with the Chico Normal School. These events, which were very spirited took place, usually about February of each year, alternately in Chico and San Jose.

The debates have been discontinued, but, since the systematic organization of athletics, after the school attained a college basis, athletic contests with Chico as well as with other colleges and universities have assumed very considerable proportions.

FAIRS, FETES, PAGEANTS

Fairs, fetes, pageants and carnivals have at various times in the history of the school been given, but there are two in the early days quite worthy of mention because of their wide and gracious influence, their wholesomeness and their symbolic value.

The May fete, mention of which is made in another page of this review, was, perhaps, a by-product of the great earthquake. Miss MacKenzie of the Kindergarten department, being almost pushed out of doors by the catastrophe, saw in the seeming disaster an opportunity big with promise, and as a result the May fete—an out-of-door festival built upon the old time frolic of May Day and shared in by young and old—became an annual event, and attracted the attention not only of the townspeople, who delighted in its simple beauty and joyousness, but of educators in the other parts of the state and country who were quick to discern its educational value.

May pole dances, folk-lore, singing games, chariot races by wee champions, decked in flower garlands, but amply adorable in their infant chubbiness, all expressed the joy of spring-time, of play-time, of opening buds and childhood, and one of its chief values was the spontaneous outburst of youthful zest which was encouraged rather than the arduous and tiresome drill which often accompanies such public productions.

The Junior-Senior farewell, as it is known, was the result of a plan formulated by Miss Anne NicholSEN to embody in song, dance and pantomime, the emotions and memories of the outgoing class. The entire gamut of student life was expressed in this beautiful symbolic pageant which ended in a silent farewell to the science and library wings, and the removal of the white and gold garlands from the Seniors to the kneeling Juniors, before they marched slowly through the archway leading into the world. It was a colorful and moving bit of pageantry and is rich in memory.

The Music Department, the Art Department, the Home Making Department, the San Jose Players, the Senior Class, and other organizations have, each year, produced some colorful and spectacular stage offerings. Operettas, musical comedies, one-act plays and symbolic pageants have added color and life to the humdrum of college class work. "The Piper," given by the San Jose Players in June, 1928 was quite in keeping with other productions given by this talented group.

But quite the most ambitious and all-embracing undertaking before attempted was given during the Fiesta de las Rosas in May, 1926. This rose festival—an annual affair, is a community enterprise, and the contribution of the Teachers College to this lovely spring fete was an elaborate pageant entitled "The Nightingale and the Rose."

It was a spectacular and dramatic production, ablaze with color, athrob with romance, and vibrant with symbolism.

The pageant was based on a legend of the Alhambra by Washington Irving and a later imaginative conception by Oscar Wilde. Some idea of its magnitude may be gained by the consideration of its twenty-four committees and its 1400 participants.

Of course educational values are necessarily computed in these splendid spectacles, and when one remembers that the Manual Arts department was commandeered for temporary castles and towers, the Physical Education worked feverishly in the study and practice of Spanish dances, the Art and Home Making departments designed and fashioned the costumes, the Science department studied and worked out lighting plans, the History department searched for historical authorities, the Music department was under the spell of Spanish melodies;—in fact when it is remembered that every department of the college was drawn in with the determination to make the pageant a historically consistent interpretation of Moorish splendor, its value can hardly be questioned.

A large space in the beautiful north lawn, temporarily fenced, was the setting and the dim outlines of the library building and the Spanish arcades draped in their ivy garments might have been constructed intentionally for a suitable stage effect.

This, in brief, is the story of "The Nightingale and the Rose"—a spectacular pageant, rich in legend, steeped in romance, alluring in exquisite melody, gay with fairy-like, dancing Spanish señoritas; the whole scene outlined in gorgeous lighting effects against the background of night.

DISTINGUISHED GRADUATES

It is impossible to list in any complete fashion the outstanding personalities which have made a notable impress upon the life of this state and of other sections of the country where the graduates have gone.

It will readily be seen that such a task must necessarily be more or less imperfect, but an attempt will be made to point out some of the notable figures that have honored their Alma Mater in various lines and to list without comment others whose achievements have been less prominent.

Undoubtedly the most distinguished living graduate is Edwin Markham, internationally famed poet author, literary critic, and lecturer, who, always a poet at heart, singing over the California hill sides while he was a teacher, leaped suddenly into fame when his poem, "The Man With the Hoe," published in 1898, touched a responsive chord in the hearts of everyone who has a pitying sense of the injustices and cruelties of the world. His visits to San Jose—his former home—are hailed by students and faculty as a notable event, and his perennial bouyancy and kindly optimism—the optimism of a seer—are keenly enjoyed, not only by his Alma Mater, but by the city which claims him as its own, for it was here in San Jose he had his home, and here he spent many years of his young manhood. His old home at 432 South Eighth street is a permanent literary shrine to the San Jose Normal School's most distinguished graduate.

EDWIN MARKHAM

FROM THE COLLECTION OF HENRY MEADE BLAND

In the field of education Dr. Henry Suzzalo stands out preeminently, as one of the leading educators of the country. His impress upon education has been far reaching. His published writings have been thoughtfully considered, his public utterances have been eagerly heard; his counsel widely sought, and he is now on a mission abroad where he is endeavoring to interpret to the nations of Europe, American educational concepts. Dr. Suzzalo is another product of San Jose, as it is here he was born and here he received his elementary education.

Among the women graduates who have achieved notable success along educational lines, Dr. Margaret Schallenberger McNaught has shone brilliantly as a school administrator and thoughtful writer on educational ideas. When the educational system of the state was reorganized in 1913 and a commissioner of elementary education was needed, Mrs. McNaught, then Miss Schallenberger, was considered most ideally fitted for the new office. Her keen grasp of the rural school problems and her farsighted methods for their solution demonstrated the wisdom of placing her in this responsible position, and her conduct in office, combined with her previous achievements, place her in the ranks of able women educators.

Dr. Robert J. Leonard is another outstanding figure in the field of education. His connections with the educational department of the U. of C. brought him into prominence, and his later achievements in the line of industrial, vocational research in the East and Middle West, have added to his standing. As a professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, he has brought a wide and discriminating wealth of thought.

Among those holding public office, the Honorable Albert Carter, of Oakland has been a representative in Congress for several terms. Mr. Carter has always been most loyal to his Alma Mater, and each year in May a class reunion is held at his beautiful country home where he gathers together a group of classmates and faculty for a genuinely good time.

It has been for many decades a notable fact that teaching has been a stepping stone to the legal profession, and so it is not strange that the bench and bar have claimed a large number of graduates of this school. Among them Judge Wm. H. Langdon and Judge Milton Farmer are pre-eminent.

Neither, it may be noted, have the men carried off all the legal honors—Miss Laura M. Tilden (Mrs. Ray) has made a distinguished record at the bar, as also has Gussie Wright (Mrs. Stevens).

In welfare work, Miss Helen Swett, (Mrs. Artieda), daughter of John Swett, pioneer educator, has been most active and efficient. Miss Lou Henry (Mrs. Herbert Hoover), is a worthy companion to her distinguished husband. Her activities in Y. W. C. A. and Girl Reserve movements have shown her to be as capable as she is gracious.

Among physicians there is probably no one who has achieved more notable success than Dr. Mariana Bertola. Not only in her profession is she notable, but for her welfare and club work she has achieved equal distinction. She holds a fellowship in the American Medical Association and is Physician Emeritus at Mills College. She has been identified with every important movement for child welfare in California during the past decade and has occupied a score or more of responsible executive positions in different organizations which have had for their goal, physical, moral and spiritual uplift. She is a native of California, and her activities seem to accord with the abundant fruitage of the state she has honored. Governor Young has recently appointed her to serve as a member of the commission to study juvenile delinquency in California, an appointment which is peculiarly fitting in view of her past achievements and valuable experience.

The religious field has not been without its representatives. Frank G. Tyrell, minister, lawyer, editor and lecturer when last heard from was a pastor of a Los Angeles church.

The Missionary field has claimed quite a number, some of whom are still laboring in Africa, China, Central America and other foreign territory. Ortha Castlio (Mrs. Dana Thomas) was for many years with her husband in missionary labors in Alaska.

Miss Ruth Finney has established a name as one of the foremost women newspaper reporters among the bright and clever group assigned to political preferment in the National Capitol.

Below are listed the names of others who have left the humdrum of the school room and have achieved success in professional and business careers.

It would be, perhaps, not quite accurate to label all in this roster as distinguished, but the initiative and perseverance, the ambition and far-sightedness that have characterized all who have left beaten paths entitle them to special mention, and right here it is quite in order to say that there is little doubt that the attorneys and physicians, the business men and women, and all who are included in this list owe a large measure of their success in the professions they have chosen to the training they received within these walls, and the invaluable contacts made while here.

In writing finis to this chapter of distinguished graduates the writer would like to take this opportunity of paying a special tribute to the thousands of unnamed heroes and heroines whose unselfish devotion to the needs of childhood has reacted on the growing generations in large and liberal measure. Without thought of reward, devoid of self-seeking, in many cases removed from centers of culture and from opportunities for self-advancement, these loyal souls have labored unremittingly for the youth of this state. Their names are inscribed in the hearts of thousands of men and women scattered throughout California who remember them gratefully for their inspiration and encouragement.

CLASS GIFTS

What better memorial of itself could a class leave than to plant a tree—a living, fragrant memory? It was this thought that led to the custom, common in many universities and colleges, and put in operation at the San Jose State Normal School in the year 1874—the first class graduating under Charles H. Allen's administration.

The tree was very tiny, but it had a resounding name. It was the Grovilia Robusta and was the first of a long list of class trees, for the custom continued as late as 1899.

Unfortunately the trees, although planted with much ceremony, including dedicatory poems, original songs and speeches, were not marked, and the passage of years has erased from the memory the particular tree and even its location. There is one beautiful Redwood tree that is claimed by two of the early classes, representatives of each class being equally positive of the correctness of their claim.

After the grounds had been landscaped and the need of trees was not so apparent, the graduating classes turned to other means of expressing their gratitude and affection toward their Alma Mater. Some of them left framed group photographs of the class, which hung upon the walls in the corridors of the old wooden building. Many of these were rescued from the flames and took their places on the walls of the brick building, much to the surprise and dismay of the originals who, after the lapse of ten, twenty or thirty years, were moved to unholy merriment by those quaint relics of a past age, which they felt posterity could well afford to lose.

Banners containing the words of the class motto were popular as gifts, and hung in the assembly hall, some them being very elaborate and colorful.

An engraved copy of the blind poet, Milton, was presented by the class of 1877. The class of 1880 presented a pedestal for the Bible which formerly was read daily by the president. A flag was presented by the class of 1881.

Framed photographs of several of the presidents were presented and also pictures of beloved teachers. Pictures of Charles H. Allen, A. H. Randal and C. W. Childs were class gifts. Framed photographs of Henry Brace Norton, of J. H. Elwood and of Miss Helen Wright were also presented, and on Home Coming days these pictures furnish a concrete link with old times and old memories. Undoubtedly the time will come when these treasured mementos will occupy a permanent place upon the walls, because, although they are not works of art they are fairly good representatives of some of the outstanding personalities which have moulded this institution and given it the standing it has today in the field of education.

One class gave a bronze vase, another a stained glass window. The classes of 1912 furnished a rest room with attractive willow furniture and a grass rug. One of Keith's paintings was a valued gift of the Art Club. A graph-anola was presented by the class of 1911, and the pair of concrete flower pots at the main entrance to the quad was the gift of the June, 1914, class.

On April, 4, 1912, the Anna Ella Carroll Circle No. 1 Ladies presented to the school a beautiful silk flag in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Normal School—a gracious gift and one that was deeply appreciated.

The class of March, 1919, presented a bronze plaque in dedication of one of the splendid Redwood trees to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt. The plaque is embedded in the concrete sidewalk on the north side of the campus and the tree stands south and a little east of the Carnegie Library.

The inspiration and counsel of Miss Calthea Vivian, head of the Art department, led to the presentation of a beautiful frieze in the assembly hall and also to the copy of the Aurora which now hangs in the library. These works of art represent the accumulated contributions of money from a large number of classes, and aside from their sentimental value as class memorials, have an intrinsic worth based upon a historical foundation of the beautiful in the world of art.

Another gift of a large number of classes—a gift which began as a dream, and at last became true, is the Health Cottage. Those of the graduates who recall the Kirmess—the County Fair, the Carnival, and other big schemes for raising money are now able, on Home Coming Day, to see materialized the fruit of those years of waiting and hoping, as the Health Cottage is no longer a myth or a mirage, but an actuality and a most vital part of the college life.

The name has been changed to Health Cottage and psychologists, it is certain, would consider the name more conducive to well being than the word "rest."

The Parthenon, presented to the school in 1909 by the art department, deserves more than passing notice. It was a replica in poplar wood, of the famous work of art constructed on the Acropolis at Athens in the days of Grecian glory. So far as it is known it was the only copy in the world of wood. The only other copy known is of plaster, and is in the Metropolitan Museum in New York. Mr. Andrew P. Hill Jr., drew to reduced scale the friezes and metopes, Mr. Leslie Abeel made the bronze doors and Mr. Earle W. Barker did the woodwork. It was made exactly one-fiftieth of the size of the original building.

Miss Vivian modeled the beautiful statue of Athene, and the building, when completed, was mounted on a pedestal representing the steps which led to the bronze portals. It was a part of the California Educational exhibit in the Alaska-Yukon exposition in 1909 and was awarded first prize and a gold medal. It attracted wide attention and enthusiastic comment, and the University of Washington made a strong effort to secure it for its museum.

It is a source of deep regret that this exquisite model of Athens' most notable piece of architecture should have been destroyed by the fire which burned "the shacks" in April, 1916.

The story of the Aurora is an interesting one and deserves to be given some detail. When Miss Calthea Vivian, head of the Art department, was in Europe in 1905 and the time for choosing a class gift drew near, the suggestion was made that some celebrated work of art be selected by her for the assembly hall, and $200 was sent her to use as she thought fit for this purpose, although it was conveyed to Miss Vivian that a copy of the Aurora was the choice of the class.

The amount sent was altogether too much for the largest print procurable and woefully inadequate for a painted copy. Suggestions from Miss Vivian for a group of prints for famous painters which she considered a fitting decoration for the assembly hall met with no responsive chord, and the more impossible a copy of the Aurora became, the more emphatic were the demands from each outgoing class for this particular painting. Meantime the earthquake came, and the assembly hall was wrecked, but the desire for a copy of the Aurora persisted, and each outgoing class contributed a sum of money toward it. Miss Vivian made a thorough search in Rome for an artist who was a strong copyist, and finally, while in Paris, was introduced to an American, Mr. Robert Hale, whose work had received favorable notice and whose copies, she, together with other artist friends from New York, inspected at his studio in Rome with the result that a contract with Mr. Hale was made, and later contributions from outgoing classes were added until the beautiful copy of Guido Reni's Aurora, which graces the ceiling of the Rospiglio gallery in Rome was completed, and after many nagging details and much correspondence was packed and shipped to the United States.

By the time it reached here, while the new building was completed, the assembly hall was still nothing but an unrealized hope, and the Aurora had no abiding place, no one being quite certain how it should be framed nor where it should be hung. When the assembly hall was completed it was quite apparent that it held no suitable space for the Aurora, and it was not until 1925 that it was at last fittingly framed in a simple moulding, which harmonized with the walls and was sufficiently inconspicuous not to detract from the loveliness and charm of the picture, and was hung on the west wall of the spacious library, where its beauty strikes the eye of everyone who enters the doors and wakes response that is spontaneously given to harmony of line and color and form.

Following is a list of the works of art presented to the school:

Reproductions of Works of Art Secured by the State Normal School

By Calthea C. Vivian

The one-time dream for the Auditorium of the Normal was:

1st. An encircling band around the whole room of all the best preserved slabs from the old Parthenon frieze in the Acropolis in Athens. Most of the original slabs are now in the British Museum in London. Caproni and Co. of Boston have reproduced these in plaster the exact size of the originals, giving the color and texture as near as possible of the marble slabs.

2nd. Then single figures or groups in the round of famous pieces of statuary from the world's greatest epochs of art—Egyptian, Greek, Byzantine, Italian, French, English, American, et al, were to complete the dream which was only realized in part.

We now have in the Auditorium some reproductions of the best preserved slabs in the British museums.

The Parthenon, that incomparable thing of beauty, was completed four hundred years before Christ. For two decades Attica had yielded her rarest marbles to hundreds of workmen to materialize the vision of those great souls—Pericles and Phidias. At last it was done, crowning in its pristine beauty the sacred hill of Athens, symbolizing "the glory that was Greece." Travelers and historians tell us down the long ages the wonder of it—of its unspoiled, untarnished beauty.

But alas, in a war between Christian and Turk, the latter learned that powder had been stored in the Parthenon (then used as a Byzantine Church). The Turk ordered his cannoneer to turn his gun upon the sacred edifice. An explosion, and it became the ruin it is to-day.

In 1802 Lord Elgin carried off the greater part of the sculptures to England. There they are today, the pride of the British Museum—the woe or sullen resentment of the Greek.

The friezes made a continuous band around the cella or temple—over five hundred feet long, three deep. Many of the slabs were totally destroyed in the explosion as were most of the colossal figures of the gods and goddesses in the pediments. We have some of the finest of the former.

Another art possession of the Normal School was a frieze some twenty-five feet long of the "Singing Boys," so called. This represents a skip of over two thousand years after the Parthenon was completed. It is the work of Donatello, a Florentine of the fifteenth century and one of the supreme masters of all time. The bas-relief of the "Singing Boys" was sculptured for the balustrade of the boys choir in the great Duomo of Florence. Here one sees the vivid naturalism (which Donatello always sought in his work) combined with the joyousness and charm of childhood.

One other piece of sculpture, the gift also of a graduating class, was a piece of modern French art by Mercie. It is the youthful David after his triumph over Goliath—not a great piece of art, but it illustrates a group of gifted men, neo-classics, who show the French spirit of distinction.

EDWIN MARKHAM HEALTH COTTAGE

For many years prior to the starting of the fund, the Health Department of the Normal School recognized the need of a rest cottage where students, who were not ill enough to go to a hospital and yet not able to be at work could be cared for.

In May, 1915, the Young Women's Christian Association of the Normal School gave $100 as a nucleus for the establishment of a rest cottage for students.

The student body took up the project and in November, 1916, with the encouragement of Dr. Morris E. Dailey, a kirmess was held in which every member of the student body and faculty took part. The kirmess netted over $1600, and this was placed at interest in a local savings bank. The account grew steadily. School organizations held sales; graduating classes left gifts of money; and the student body organizations turned over their surplus. The faculty did its part by holding sales and auctions, and giving entertainments. In 1920 another kirmess and senior circus netted $1200.

Plans were under way for the construction of a building when the war broke out. The entire amount collected was then invested in government bonds, and plans were temporarily abandoned. With interest from these bonds and other contributions, the fund had reached the sum of $6500 by 1924.

At this time with the encouragement of Dr. Snyder, president of the Teachers College, a house was rented at 319 South Fifth Street, for a year, in order to try out the project and demonstrate the real needs before investing in a permanent building. This house was renovated by students, faculty and janitors, and finally opened for use the first of October, 1925. In May, 1925, the students had voted to assess themselves $2 per student each semester for the maintenance of the Health Cottage.

In December, 1925, Dr. Snyder offered the Summer School class in carpentering as workers to build a new home for the institution. Dr. Bland, as representative of the Edwin Markham Home Landmark Association, offered the Edwin Markham home at 432 South Eighth Street, as it stood, for $1864, provided Markham's name be preserved in naming the cottage, and the room in which "The Man With the Hoe" was written, be kept intact and open to the public.

In April, 1925, the final papers covering the transaction were turned over to the Health Board of the Associated Students. As there was not money enough available to pay for the lot and build a suitable cottage, the deed was placed in escrow and a contract drawn by which the Department of Occupations and Home Mechanics drew the building and staked off the ground. A special class in carpentering during the Summer season of 1925 put up the frame, enclosed it and boarded up the roof. The rest of the work was done under contracts with San Jose firms. The cottage was finished in November and occupied December 1, 1925. The complete project cost in the neighborhood of $10,300.

In June, 1925, there had accumulated $6014.27 besides what had been spent for furniture and renovations of the house at 319 South Fifth Street. Fifteen hundred dollars was borrowed from the student body, the faculty raised $56 and the Alumni $100. Former faculty members sent $150. Class fees not used were turned over to the fund and lecturers at several times donated their fee. Miss Rowell's Citizenship classes for a period of two years raised money to buy furniture, pictures, besides tables, etc. The remainder of this $10,300 came from regular fees voted by the students for the maintenance of the cottage.

In November, 1927, the last money was paid on the lot and the deeds delivered. A non-profit sharing corporation was established in order to legally hold the deed. The charter was granted by the state on November 14, 1927. This charter calls for a board of directors consisting of five members. The president is the head of the College Health department. The vice-president, the financial adviser of the Associated Students; the secretary-treasurer, the comptroller of the Associated Students; the president of the Associated Students, and one member of the board chosen at large annually completes the board. This board is given the right to transact all business concerning the Edwin Markham Health Cottage, Incorporated.

The first officers were: President, Elizabeth McFadden; vice-president, P. Victor Peterson; secretary-treasurer, Neil O. Thomas; director at large, Christine Otis; student body president, Wm. Sweeney.

The Health Cottage is not a hospital. It is a home where an ailing student can get good care and good food when needed. A review of cases since opening shows some of the cases cared for to be colds, influenza, measles, mumps, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, injuries in athletics and gymnasium, recoveries from operations, and many cases where there is no definite illness but just "tired out" and needing rest.

The Health Cottage is entirely a student body institution. Its management is in charge of the board of directors established under the student body constitution. At present a housekeeper and full time nurse are kept on monthly salary. Any full time member of the student body is entitled to two weeks free care. If he needs a physician he employs his own physician and pays the bill.

Those interested in this project went to work wondering if it would work as a student project. They saw the need but waited to see the result. Within three years from a questionable project the Health Cottage has become a necessity.

CLASS MOTTOES

When Napoleon, during his Italian campaign desired to renew the flagging spirit of his troops, he pronounced that notable epigram—"Beyond the Alps lies Italy," and in every historical crisis an epigram has leaped to the lips of some poetically minded prophet which has interpreted the emotional feelings of the public. So perhaps it was somewhat an outlet of the emotional turmoil experience by the crisis of graduation that led to the custom of adopting a fine and splendid sentiment held to be the composite purpose of the retiring class and left as a memorial of its deeds and hopes and ideals.

That these high and noble sentiments did not make a lasting impress on the minds of the promulgators has been revealed by an unsuccessful effort to trace some of the missing aphorisms, but the most of them have been preserved and are given below as an interesting phase of the life during the decades of the last century.

Many of these mottoes, as they were called, were elaborately embroidered on velvet and were fashioned at considerable expense. They were representative of exquisite skill in artistic needlework, and in color and workmanship were very lovely, but the havoc wrought by the earthquake was responsible for the disappearance of these other relics which would be interesting to study.

THE OLD BELL

The old bell which hangs in the small tower at the right of the main entrance is worthy of a brief eulogy in these pages.

It was bought and installed in the brick building in 1881 at a cost of $1217.13 and was rung regularly at 8 o'clock each morning until the earthquake stilled its voice. When the new building was constructed in 1909-10, a specially designed tower was built to house the bell, and is occasionally rung now for special events, although age has somewhat roughened its youthful bouyancy of tone, and it has retired from active service, spending its declining years in solitude in its lonely vine-wreathed tower home.

On the day of Dr. Dailey's funeral, as the cortege slowly moved by the grounds, the old bell was heard to toll sadly, thus sounding the knell of a passing regime.

In imagination one can personify the old bell as the spirit of the past looking serenely upon the youthful throngs, thinking of the thousands of young men and maidens, at one time obedient to its summons, now out in the world, while another generation has taken their place in the unending procession which the old bell gazes upon in its safe anchorage up in the ivy-green tower.

SCHOOL SONGS

In the early years of this institution, while music was stressed and glee clubs had their prominent place in school activities, the songs were entirely impersonal and it did not occur to any one, musically minded, that original music might be produced.

However, when debate and basketball contests began to rouse student cooperative spirit, the expression of emotional enthusiasm naturally led to the creation of jolly-up songs, some of them having original words adopted to well known and "catchy" music and some of them having both words and music original.

Through the initiative of Miss Fisher, contests were held at various times and for special occasions when prizes were offered which resulted in the adoption and popularizing of several melodious ditties, now accepted as links in the chain that binds the Alumni of this school indissolubly together. They bring to the memories faculty members and students who are ineffably related to the different ones.

Who, for example, can think of "Our hearts are filled with pride," without recalling Dr. Dailey's tall figure as he stood in his splendid strength and pride before the school.

Then there were Mary McDermott who fairly scintillated melody and Ruth and Grace Kinney, both of them experts with the keys. These songs will recall many a familiar face and figure. Below are given the words of those best known and loved.

Praise to You, Normal.

Mrs. Frank Herrman

Our hearts are filled with pride, our eyes with tears o'er swell;
When we rise and sing our homage to the School we love so well.
The quad, arcades and elms will live with us through life
With remembrances of comradeship that overcame all strife.

Your praise is sung by graduates who hold you dear,
'Twill be sung by men and women who will take our places here;
You hold the love forever of your legions true,
Who will ever raise their voices and sing this song to you.

Chorus: ..

Old Normal, how we love you, hear us sing to you our praise,
'Tis from you we're gaining knowledge, us to guide through future days.
This knowledge from our books and from true friendship's Golden rule,
Will make us long remember San Jose State Normal School.

Praises We Sing

Ethel Hutton

Praises we sing.
Our noble Gold and White;
In thee, our Alma Mater,
Is wisdom, truth and light.
To thee will be strength.
All honor, pow'r and might Forever will be praises
To the Gold and White.

Praises we sing,
For lo! the sun shines bright
Upon the glorious colors,
The college Gold and White.
And when at last we reach that final goal,
All glory will be due
To the Gold and White.

Tune—Solomon Levy

O San Jose Normal

We're members of a Normal School
 Adown in San Jose,
 And there we learn from pedagogues
 To teach the proper way.
 We cram ourselves with methods and
 We master every rule,
 And then we cross the Bridge of Sighs
 And run the training school.

Chorus:

O San Jose Normal!
 Normal! tra la la la!
 Dear San Jose Normal!
 Tra la la la la la la la.
 We're—(repeat first, all four parts).

We lead all other Normal Schools,
 In games and in debate.
 We're biggest and we're smartest and
 We're everything up-to-date.
 We do our poor opponents up
 So bad it makes them ache
 For we tell you what the Normal School
 Of San Jose takes the cake.

Yip-aye-addie, aye-a, aye-a
 Yip-aye-addie, aye-a
 Chico we are feeling fine;
 Chico, we'll beat you surely this time,
 Yip-aye-addie, aye-a, aye-a,
 Yip-aye-addie, aye-a
 Our team, its supreme;
 It's the cream, a la cream,
 Yip-aye-addie, aye-a.

Have you got another team at home, poor Chico?
 Another little team you think that we can beat,
 If you've got another team at home, poor Chico,
 Why, that little team——— we'd like to meet.

Put up your right hand, Normal, if you beat them;
 Put up your left hand if you don't
 But if you don't win, Normal, let us tell you
 That we'll all feel sorry,
 But we'll love you just the same.
 So win the day and show the proper spirit;
 And do your best to glorify its name,
 For we can't afford to lose,
 So to win is what we choose—
 Put both—hands up.

Has anybody here seen Chico?
Don't you see us smile?
Their teams are good, and ours true blue
We have met them squarely, too.
Has anybody here seen Chico?
C-H-I-C-O.

(Tune Heidelberg)

Here's to our friends from Chico land,
Here's to their school so fine;
Here's to the teams they send us;
Give them a right good time.
Here's to their games of strength and might;
Here's to their speech and song;
Here's to our friends who dare and do;
Here's to the Chico team.

Rah! Rah! Rah!
Gold and White.
S. J. Normal,
It's all right.

The Gold and White

Andrew P. Hill

Grace Kinney-Towner

Come let us sing
A song for the Gold and White,
Our voices ring
The praises of her might;
Oh, Normal, 'tis to you
Our hearts are staunch and true,
We'll give our cheers,
The Gold and White forevermore.

Here's to your strength,
Your spirit brave and free,
Long may you thrive
Oh, school of destiny;
Our Alma Mater, now
In rev'rence to thee bow
While the spirit light
Of the Gold and White
Shall lead us on forevermore.

School Hymn

S. Estelle Greathead

Ida M. Fisher

O, Thou who art the source and spring of every kindly deed,
The universe Thy temple is, eternal love Thy creed;
We crave Thy spirit's might and power, for Thy uplift we long,
That every act may be a prayer and every prayer a song.

So show your pep, team,
Just watch your step, team,
For we're behind you
With all our might!
You do the scoring,
We'll do the roaring,
Come, now, win the day
For San Jose, You Know the way
You boys can play,
So, come on, team, and tight, fight, fight.

What is the Reason?

Mary McDermott

What is the reason that we love to sing her praise,
A glad song raise, throughout our days,
What is the reason that we sing our joyous lays,
To this school in San Jose?
Simply because the Normal is fine and strong,
And thousands throng to join our song
In Rah! Rah! Rah! We'll give three cheers for San Jose.

Spartan Song

We pledge to the Gold and White
The badge of Spartan's might,
A pledge of loyalty to good old San Jose!
May we be always right
And put to instant flight
All foes who block the way to San Jose!

CLASS REUNIONS

The class of May, 1878, has made a notable record in the matter of reunions. Twenty-five years after graduation, in 1903, a reunion was held which continued for three days and was attended by 19 of the 58 graduates.

The first day, June 18, was spent on the campus, noting the changes, greeting those of the faculty still left and wandering about the grounds. The second day was devoted to a picnic at Alum Rock Park, and the crowning glory of the gathering was an evening in the home of Professor and Mrs. Charles H. Allen, whose hospitality they had enjoyed so many times in the past. Each of these assemblages furnished an opportunity for dissemination of news about those who were absent, many of whom sent letters of greeting. Among the former faculty members were: Professor Allen, Miss Norton, Miss Royce, Mrs. George and Miss Washburn.

A booklet giving all the details of this interesting event was published, and it is now part of the historical memorabilia in the college library. A fiftieth reunion of this class was held June 9, 1928, on Home Coming Day.

In the evening of June 8, a more intimate gathering was held at the home of Mrs. Alice Blythe Wilson, 196 S. 13th Street, San Jose, at which twelve of the fifty-eight graduates were present. Miss Lucy Washburn and Mrs. Jessica Thompson Washburn were also at the gathering. Following is a list of those who enjoyed the resurrection of a youthful past and added to the reminiscent chatter:

Mrs. Alice Blythe Washburn.	Mrs. Iantha Kelso Cooke.
Mrs. Annie Boyes Cozzens.	Mrs. Maggie Kent Dunlap.
Mrs. Emma Cearley Angelotti.	Mr. Evan T. Petit.
Mrs. Fannie Daniels Stuart.	Mrs. Clara Richardson Clarke.
Miss Jennie Hammond.	Miss Hattie Warring.
Mrs. Myrtle Hudson Wagner.

FACULTY FUN

In June, 1901, a Rose Carnival was held in San Jose, and the Normal School was asked for a float. Extensive preparations were made. The art department, under the direction of Miss Vivian, designed the plan and the color scheme. The float was to be drawn in the parade by four beautiful, white horses, with shining coats and flowing manes. Professor Dailey and Mr. Wilson were chosen by the art committee to scour the country for the perfect specimens of equine beauty and grace which were required to complete the elaborately decorated float the committee had mentally visualized.

The opportunity of creating a little fun at the expense of the women of the faculty who were laboring frantically to achieve an artistic triumph was too good to miss by this pair of jokesters, who assured their victims that they would leave no stone unturned and spare no expense in order to secure the precise color desired, and the graceful proportions fitting for a team which was to transport the float through the streets of San Jose.

Finally upon the repeated and insistent demands of the faculty women to produce these prodigies of equine perfection, the two arch-plotters succeeded in finding a pair of the most abject and bony specimens of horse flesh obtainable, bleary of eye, ragged of mane, short and stubby of tail—as spiritless and dejected a pair as could be found outside of a bone yard, the ultimate destiny of aged steeds. They were led to the campus for the approval of the women, who were keyed up by hard work and anxiety near to the breaking point—and who were made to believe that they must not only make the best of the beasts chosen but must contribute of their substance for the expense of having them brought to the campus for inspection.

Of course when the joke was carried far enough, a magnificent quartette of cream colored horses was produced and the float was one of the chief hits of the parade.

Another achievement of this versatile pair was the manipulation of the thermometer in Miss Howe's class room. Upon her bitter complaint of lack of heat the thermometer was adjusted at summer temperature with the result of entirely satisfying her demands. This story is not vouched for, as it bears the impress of fictional braggadocio on the part of the chief actors, but it is a good story, and they enjoy telling it.

One other performance by the ingenious couple must be mentioned. At one of the evening entertainments, calling for a faculty stunt—two frock-coated, black bearded artists, Messrs. Hammerfast and Hammerhard, gave a piano duet, which for verve and dash and expert manipulation of the keys, has probably never been equalled, and its mirth-provoking, side-splitting reaction upon the convulsed audience was remembered for many days.

Lest these stories of faculty pranks should appear frivolous in the years to come when the past is supposed to be invested with the dignity which inheres in all dehumanized bodies, kindly bear in mind that these joyful episodes were not of daily occurrence but that they were occasional episodes and served to season the monotony of hard work with a sauce that made for greater mental activity and richer living. They are happy memories and are a part of the joy encouraged by the executive head, as a necessary ingredient in a sane, well-balanced life.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC EMERGENCY RELIEF

In 1918 the world-wide scourge of influenza struck San Jose with the same terrifying force that had accompanied its presence in other parts of the world. The hospitals were crowded. Nurses and physicians worked tirelessly; deaths were frequent and students were called home by apprehensive parents. In this emergency it was decided to close the school temporarily to lessen the danger of contagion. The faculty was directed to be within call and very shortly, under the leadership of Dr. Bullock, Miss McFadden and Miss Twombly, an emergency hospital was established in the intermediate building, with a diet kitchen in the cafeteria (now a part of the Student Center). In the Home Making department, hospital garments for soldiers were cut out and made, the faculty being detailed into regular shifts and alternating between the sewing rooms and the diet kitchen. The established hospitals in San Jose were relieved and faculty members in white uniforms did valiant service until the tension began to lessen.

MT. HAMILTON TRIPS

In 1891 the custom was inaugurated of taking the Senior Class for a trip to Lick Observatory. A Saturday night in June was always chosen during the full moon, and the entire staff of astronomers acted as hosts to the gay crowds who were given every courtesy and allowed a view of the "Man in the Moon" while the intricacies of the huge telescope were explained in language devoid of technical obscureness. These trips were for many years taken in large horse-drawn vehicles and consumed all day and more than half of the night, with a picnic luncheon and supper, but when motor vehicles came into their own the trip was shortened.

FACULTY EUROPEAN TRIP

The Faculty European trip in the summer of 1909 was an event which is perhaps worth while to chronicle, because in those days a trip abroad was a real event and because the party was planned and the trip carried through by the executive skill of President Dailey, who first proposed it.

Sailing from New York on July 3, 1909, an itinerary was followed which included England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Paris with a day on the Rhine, and a glimpse of Heidelberg and a few other German cities. The personnel of this party was as follows:

Mr. M. E. Dailey, President.

Miss Alice Bassler.

Miss Flora E. Beal.

Miss Ethel Blythe.

Miss Bessie McCabe.

Miss Elizabeth McFadden.

Miss Anne Nicholson.

Miss Genevieve Nicholson.

Miss Carolyn H. Bradley.

Mrs. A. F. Dailey.

Mr. H. F. Dusing.

Miss R. F. English.

Miss Ida M. Fisher.

Mrs. M. W. George.

Mrs. E. Greathead.

Miss Agnes E. Howe.

Miss Etta Kinney.

Miss Enid Kinney.

Miss Edith O'Brien.

Miss Nell O'Brien.

Miss Henrietta E. Riebsam.

Miss Edna Rowell.

Miss Gertrude Rowell.

Miss Margaret Schallenberger.

Mr. Henry Suzzalo.

Miss Calthea Vivian.

Mr. L. B. Wilson.

Mrs. L. B. Wilson.

Miss Jessie Wilson.

PERSONALITIES

This history would not be complete without a friendly resume of the outstanding personalities who, in their own special line have contributed to the comfort and safety of Faculty and Students.

It will not be the endeavor to mention these public servitors chronologically but in a rambling fashion to call to mind the associations of faculty and students with some of the men who cared for our grounds, those whose tools were the dust pan and the brush, and others who did their part to make the "wheels go 'round."

A look into the past brings to mind Bill Morris, the efficient gardener, who reveled in the big beds of Canna and whose hot-house was filled with small promises of future bloom. Bill always had a ready Irish tongue, and it is to be regretted that his witty "mots" have not been preserved for inclusion here. He still lives in San Jose, in a cottage with an immaculate garden, which indicates that he has not yet lost his skill with growing things.

Mr. Ashworth, the janitor, in the old wooden building, who was living in the basement at the time of the fire and did valiant service in removing to safety many valuable records, will be remembered by a few—and his successors and assistants, John Littler and Enoch Crook.

Perhaps there are a few who remember Mr. Gilbrath, the watchman, but many will recall Mr. Emser, an old soldier, infirm of body but stout of soul. No marauder ever succeeded in slipping through his peremptory, if somewhat profane challenge, and when he laid down his menacing club for the last time there were tender thoughts of his faithful and efficient service.

Mr. John Eckhart, engineer for many years, was always ready to respond to a call for more heat. He was a familiar figure about the grounds and buildings until ill health compelled him to retire, and his death occurred some years later. For some years, his assistant, Mike, was a notable character, one not to be forgotten. Mr. Pierce, his successor, is happily remembered as an upstanding, intelligent and expert manipulator of the engine technique.

Mr. Hollingsworth, head gardener, and Mr. Juarez, his assistant, and now his successor, will be remembered by their generous contributions of flowers to the offices and the various fetes and pageants which they were called upon to beautify. Mr. Juarez still propels old Dobbin across the lawn, which is kept so immaculately close and green.

Rosie is a whole story in herself and deserves a Roy Cohen to recount her exceptionally keen and timely aphorisms—a little darkey woman, dusting and scrubbing all day, unable to read or write, Rose had an uncanny sense of the foibles and hypocrisies of human nature. Professor Dailey was in her eyes without flaw, a god whom she humbly worshipped, but there was not a member of the faculty whose frailties of character she was unable to diagnose correctly. "Don't always carry your coffin around with you," was one of her epigrams which indicated a happy philosophy.

"Joe Stillwell," custodian and superintendent of the grounds, still keeps a penetrating eye on supplies but is always most willing and ready to accommodate a needy applicant for stationery and other articles in his store-room.

"Charlie," whose unusual musical gifts are an accompaniment to his broom and scrub brush, must never be omitted from this history. Charlie has other accomplishments besides singing and scrubbing.

This picture would not be complete without Mr. Mulholland, for a number of years the little carpenter, and if only his twangful voice and distinctive dialect could be reproduced, his individuality would stand out as it deserves.

Then there is Mr. Willson, the watchman, (an omniverous reader of the best literature) who still goes about with his pointed stick on which he impales every recalcitrant bit of paper that dares encumber the beautiful grounds and well-kept walks.

These are a few of the many personalities which might be mentioned that have contributed to this institution. The thread of each life has been irrevocably woven into the warp and woof and has helped to make the fabric strong and beautiful and colorful.

CHARLES H. ALLEN

The Man for the Hour

By Lucy M. Washburn

Charles H. Allen was the man for the epoch in the educational growth of California. Under his principalship the Normal School developed rapidly into a power for the whole Pacific Coast.

After a varied educational career in the east, including the presidency of the first Normal School in Wisconsin, he was called to the California State Normal School, newly removed from San Francisco to permanent situation in San Jose.

His careful and wise selection built up a memorable faculty, of which his strong personality, sound methods, and sane, broad vision kept him the vigorous head. Especially he sought widely and was remarkably successful in filling the two most influential positions, those of Associate Institute Lecturer and of Preceptress, or, as the position is now termed, Dean of Women.

A born teacher and lecturer, whether in his classes, or in the briefer sessions of county institutes throughout the state, Mr. Allen never failed to communicate his own enthusiasm for teaching, and discrimination as to real values in education. The State Normal School and the quality of its training were thus personally extended throughout the state, and attracted to the course of study the most earnest and ambitious young teachers, leaders in a remarkable body of students rapidly increasing in numbers.

Like all true educators, back of his success was his personality. In him a granite strength was played over by the brightness of sympathy, appreciation and humor. Unswerving in the right, his buoyant, sunny optimism was based on faith in God and in human possibilities. He loved little children; he touched the springs of purpose in the young men and women developing under his charge; earnest students struggling against poverty or other limitations received his special encouragement and generous, practical help.

An outdoor man who loved nature and its inspiration, he climbed California's great mountains and tramped its primeval forests in joyous company with John Muir, his friend and former pupil, and brought into the school room, too often pent and confined, a fresher air and broader outlook.

He set the key of his school days with the eternal verities. His tall figure, his noble head and features, the power of his glance and the deep tones of his voice as he read naturally and impressively some inspiring portion of the Bible, the reverent chanting of the Lord's prayer, and then the strong chorus that followed,—these were a revelation of the man and his ideals, and became an abiding memory with thousands of his students who had found through him "education for life."

JOHN HYDE BRALY

Business Man, Social Worker, Educator

By Cornelia Walker

None who knew him well could fail to love this Christian educator, this loyally devoted friend.

John Hyde Braly, born in Missouri, of Scotch ancestry, came with his parents by the Oregon Trail to Whitman's Mission, Oregon, leaving on account of his mother's premonition of coming calamity, ten days before the historic Indian massacre there. The Bralys reached California in 1849, and John began his belated college studies at the University of the Pacific, six years later graduating, valedictorian from Cumberland University, Tennessee. He taught eleven years in Academies and public schools of California, was Superintendent and Normal Trustee in Santa Clara County, and for two years substituted as pastor in his father's church.

In 1883 he resigned from the Normal School to enter banking and realty business in southern California. A keen and far-sighted business man, full of initiative and optimistic courage, he rallied quickly from sorrows and crushing defeats, with increasing courage and zeal.

Altogether he founded or reorganized upon stable foundations six banks, and started the first school savings department in California. A twelve-story building, the first sky-scraper in Los Angeles, stands as a monument to his enterprising spirit.

In 1906, with ample competence, he retired from business, to devote the remainder of his days to social and civic betterment, world-wide travel and the writing of his "Memory Pictures"—an autobiography, so modestly simple, but graphically portraying his eventful time and career, as to make it of real historic value.

In Southern California he became known as the "Father of Woman's Suffrage" for he fanned into renewed life its expiring embers, and gave generously of his time, social influence and means to that and other worthy causes.

At the age of eighty-seven he motored from Glendale to San Francisco to reason with powerful political acquaintances in behalf of better law enforcement throughout the state.

A slight accident, ignored for a time, led to the end of the long, long trail of eighty-nine years so marked by kind deeds and noble work, and, still courageously smiling through, he passed on October 6, 1923 to his new field of labor beyond.

HENRY BRACE NORTON

Teacher, Pastor and Friend

Excerpts from a tribute written for this volume by Mrs. Anna Catherine Markham (Mrs. Edwin Markham).

Only the last ten years of Henry Brace Norton's life were spent in California, but they were great and outgiving years, profoundly moving all within the sway of his magnetic personality. As neighbor, teacher, pastor, he was a genius in loving and doing, dispensing a dynamic influence passed on in turn by receivers of his inspiration.

Struggling in his youth against ill health, poverty, how did this slender quiet man grow to be for so many a tower of strength, a treasury of wisdom, and a pivot of fate?

The outer facts of his early life are those of hundreds of old American families. Through the gates of gift at birth he came with a New England inheritance of ideality and intelligence, with a sense of duty and with fortitude to back his convictions.

In the Normal University at Bloomington, young Norton, poor, ill-dressed, retiring, not caring for place and honors, still took first rank as a student, leading in the scientific lines he enjoyed so well as in the mathematical lines which he only endured.

His first important assignment was at Emporia, Kansas, his keen influence going far beyond the school walls with friends rising everywhere and loving him to the end. Later, to better establish his health, and live closer to the earth, he went alone into Indian Territory. One year he lived entirely isolated among the tribes. The Indians honored his honor as he theirs. They shared their food with him, cared for him when he was ill, and showed him their most secret and sacred ceremonials. Cut off from civilization, free from all problems, close to rich, wild beauty, healing by and by came to his body, and he came back to his waiting work and his family. In that long pondering in the quiet, there came a strengthening of all his powers of the spirit and of the flesh. As in the light of eternity, he there reviewed all his learning and meditated on the meaning of life and time and destiny. He emerged with a firmer understanding of values, as well as a deeper love and tenderness for humanity.

Soon now occurred his Pentacostal coming to California, called to the San Jose Normal School because rumor of his wonderful work had preceded him. Here, for another ten years he left only blessing dispensed freely as sunlight.

Not since Thomas Starr King "the foremost citizen of California," known in lumber camp, mining camp, farm and city, did any new-comer in the far west win a place so large, or a power so far-reaching, as did Henry Brace Norton. In a decade the whole state seemed to become this stranger's larger home.

Though Professor Norton ever kept firm foot-hold on our earth, there was for him a charm in peering into that dim, debatable borderland between heaven and earth. Sometimes he seemed half a seer. "Surely" wrote one friend, "the human veil which hid his soul from ours was at times almost transparent." Once he wrote to me, "The Celts have the thin shells that let occult wonders through."

At one teachers institute, I, a mountain-born, mountain-taught young teacher, had been asked to prepare an address. I had chosen a large inclusive theme,—“Words and Books.” There were good passages in the ambitious pages, for I had involved many quotations from great writers, from Montaigne down to Emerson, and counsel was safe. He must have been amused by the temerity and the crudity, but he gave the most courteous attention, and arose, approving certain points and supplementing others. Afterwards he had several little conferences with me, asking about my education and my reading, and my preparation for teaching, and my plans. He urged me to come to the Normal School to make ready for higher work. I made my decision and promised to arrive as soon as I could save money to go. I was in many of his classes, each a joy and a blessing. There was no shirking, no skimping. There seemed to be no haste in the class room; there was time for discourse and parable.

I was too inexperienced in living, then, to realize how vastly superior he was to other teachers held by perfunctory routine, teachers parsimonious of self. There seemed to him no task but only happy adventure, with great thoughts and themes. How many tracks of thought he started; how many great books he opened for us!

I happened to be in San Francisco that mid-summer day when the sun was darkened by the news of his sudden death. The incredible, the impossible had happened. The irreplaceable had gone forever; and this holds true throughout the years for all who really knew Henry Brace Norton.

Many sorrowing students, the shocked and saddened Faculty, and other grieving friends, from far and near, gathered for that outdoor service at his leafy mountain home, Skyland. I can do no better than to quote in closing the little verse he often quoted from Paul Hamilton Haybe, words typical of the spiritual yearning of a great soul.

From the ravage of life and its riot,
What marvel I yearn for the quiet,
Which bides in the harbor at last;
For the lights with their welcoming quiver,
That throb o'er the sanctified river
Which girdles the harbor at last—
The heavenly harbor at last.

ELIZA W. HOUGHTON

By Mrs. Mary W. George

It seems peculiarly fitting that the first scholarship offered to the students of the San Jose State Normal School should be a memorial to one of the most honored and beloved teachers in the long list of noble men and women who, during the last fifty years, have composed the teaching force of this institution.

Eliza W. Houghton, in honor of whom this scholarship is founded, became a member of the Normal faculty in 1864, when the school was entering on its third year with only three teachers and an attendance of less than one hundred students. It was pioneer work, but Miss Houghton had the best training America could boast, for she was a graduate of the famous Mt. Holyoke Seminary and brought to the Pacific Coast the high ideals of America's greatest woman teacher, Mary Lyon. In those early days, when conditions in California were unsettled and somewhat crude, this culture was invaluable in the training of teachers.

I think I have never seen any other woman who was always so suitably dressed and in such perfect harmony. Tall and graceful in carriage, with a beautiful well-modulated voice, she was faultless in speech and manners, and the students admired and imitated her. But back of these externals, upon which all her students love to dwell, was a sound scholarship and skill in teaching, which won their admiration and respect.

As precentress, Miss Houghton was a sympathetic friend to all the girls, never hesitating to correct their faults, but sharing their joys and sorrows like a mother. Who can measure the influence of such a woman?

In 1877 failing health led to Miss Houghton's resignation, but for fourteen years longer she made her home in San Jose, always a warm friend of faculty and school.

About 1891, Miss Houghton returned to the family home at Waltham, Massachusetts, and there, in the home where she was born, she passed the last years of her life, passing to the other side in 1905, but leaving with us all that was most lovely and beautiful in her character, the imperishable part of any life.

She had two brothers on this coast, General J. F. Houghton, of Oakland, a member of the first Normal School Board of Trustees, and Cornelius B. Houghton of Benicia, who was particularly dear to her and whose home she always considered her own. His wife was her girlhood companion and best beloved friend, and no record of Miss Houghton's life would be complete without mention of this abiding friendship of which the present memorial is the latest expression.

HELEN S. WRIGHT

Lover of Humanity

By Mary W. George

Among the talented men and women who, in pioneer days, laid the foundations and established the ideals of our beloved college, Helen S. Wright holds a unique place. A lovely gracious woman, she brought to us the scholarship, culture and idealism of the best eastern institutions of learning and at once became a leader, not only in the school, but also in the community.

Her enthusiasm for California was unbounded and won all our hearts. She loved the mountains and the sea, the forests and the flowers, and sought out many almost unknown beauty spots. From her many excursions she brought back collections of rare plants and curious specimens of the sea life along our coast.

She was an artist as well as a scientist, and through her we were led to a deeper appreciation of our familiar environment.

But over and above her scholarship and culture was her love for humanity and her faith in mankind. To her the ignoble did not exist. Every life expressed something of the divine, and there was always a radiance in her face as if she had an insight into spiritual depths hidden from other eyes. We went to her for sympathy and inspiration, and she never failed us.

No wonder that her memory is cherished by all who felt her influence and that we can say that Helen S. Wright holds a unique place in the history of this College.

ALICE FELKER

By Gertrude P. Shelley (Miss Gertrude O'Connell)

Brightly outstanding amidst the memories of old "Normal School Days" are those concerning graduation. In connection with these I shall ever remember with pleasure the helpful hints given her students by Miss Felker as she spoke cheerily with us about our future work and told us how best to handle and control our pupils. The suggestions she gave us I found to be of untold value to me as I confronted my first classes.

A. H. RANDALL

Professor A. H. Randall, who was an instructor in physics and geometry from 1884 until he assumed the presidency upon the resignation of C. W. Childs, was a typical college professor according to the standards of the eighties and nineties. By this is meant, he possessed a seriousness and dignity, a benevolence and high-souled stateliness that seemed to mark a man of his educational qualifications.

A man of quiet poise, free from all pretense or self-esteem, he commanded the respect of all students and faculty, carrying on the traditions and standards of the school according to the pathway already marked out, antagonizing no one, and carrying all with him because of his innate rightness and because of a deep Christian foundational character.

One thinks of Professor Randall as an educator rather than an executive, but the three years of his administration were years of steady, faithful development, free from aggressive excursions into experimental pathways. He was sane, and safe.

FANNY MAY ESTABROOK YARD

By Jennie DeLameter Enfight

Fanny May Estabrook (Mrs. Fanny May Estabrook Yard)—teacher of Elocution, Oratory and Delsarte—is well remembered by faculty and students of the State Normal School from 1884 to 1890 when she was one of the school's efficient instructors.

She possessed a forceful personality and untiring patience in instructing and guiding in voice use, body grace and poise. As she appeared with rapid glancing, sparkling eyes that keenly observed and expressed deep interest, humor and understanding, and with firmly set lips enunciating each word clearly and perfectly in well placed modulated voice, she is vividly remembered and made a lasting impression upon her pupils.

Miss Estabrook was a noteworthy part of the State Normal School in those early days.

R. S. HOLWAY

Tribute from a Friend

George R. Kleeberger

Mr. Holway's early education was received in Iowa where he was born, but after coming to California in 1884, where he spent the remainder of his life in educational work, he took his Bachelor's Degree (in Geology) from Stanford University and his M. S. Degree (in Geography) from the University of California.

Mr. Holway was an enthusiastic and profound student along his special lines or research—Geology and Geography—and attained high standing among American Scientists. His thorough knowledge of subjects, his keen insight into pedagogical principles and methods, his deep sympathy with all students, and his estimable qualities of mind and heart made him one of California's most popular and successful educators.

LIZZIE P. SARGENT (Mrs. Wilson)

No one who knew Lizzie P. Sargent could associate her with death. Her perennial response to joy and happiness belonged to life. The laughter that bubbled up in her heart and overflowed upon her face was the expression of her aliveness, and so it seemed impossible that the long illness which she bravely fought should at last conquer her.

She left a precious memory to those who knew and loved her, and to the training school she so ably administered.

TRIBUTE TO IRA MORE

By Jessica Thompson Washburn.

Before coming west, Professor Moore had had large experience in several normal schools both as principal and teacher.

As a teacher he inspired in his pupils a desire for higher attainment in scholarship and clean independent thinking. As a man, broad, just and tolerant, he gave his pupils a living example of true culture, and of a rare personality which quickened their ideals for all time.

He was a high minded man whose unconscious influence knew no bounds, and when the call came for one of the San Jose faculty to organize the second normal school of California, he was unhesitatingly chosen, and his main California record is to be found in his development of that great school.

JESSICA ALLEN (Mrs. Pascoe)

Jessie Allen was one of few people free from all pretense. She possessed very marked characteristics and made no attempt to pose as other than herself. One knew exactly where to find her. One knew that whatever she said she sincerely meant. There was no effort whatever to veneer, or camouflage or smooth over.

That was Jessie, and with this directness and sincerity there was as stout and valiant a heart as ever breathed in a human breast.

Faced with grievous physical affliction in her later years, she never failed to present a gallant face to the world. She was of the heroic type, never admitting defeat.

MARY E. B. NORTON

By Myrtle Hudson Wagner

Tall, dignified, cultured, gentle, the very embodiment of our ideals of what a woman could be, so sweet it seemed as if Elizabeth Barrett Browning herself had suddenly appeared among us! Her lustrous hair just touched with grey, the curl that strayed almost lovingly beside her neck, the dreamy eyes deep in thought and tenderness, strength in every feature, and a poise that indicated mastery, not alone of herself, but of the highest living—this was Mary Norton. The gracious presence, the ripe scholarship, the reverent scientific spirit that could interpret nature, and the meaning of life, drew us with irresistible charm to be eager learners together with her.

“So others shall

Take patience, labor to their heart and hand
From thy hand, and thy heart, and thy brave cheer,
And God's grace fructify through thee to all.”

Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

LAURA BTHELL—A Beloved Friend

By Gertrude Payne Bridgford

Laura Bethell was my friend. Our friendship extended over many years, and the tie grew stronger with the passage of time.

Hers was a rare spirit. The rasping cares and irritations of human contact with the world seemed not to exist for her. Her serenity of spirit in a little world of her own, with her music, her books, her thoughts and her Bible, seemed to suffice her; although she longed for the companionship of those she loved.

Her love for children and beautiful influence with them came to my knowledge and appreciation only in recent years. She seemed inspired with them, and they adored her. Surely a crown of glory!

In these last years the spirit moved her to write poetry and music, and she left many compositions that are worthy of publication.

Refinement in its truest sense and highest significance was her predominant trait. Her thoughts were not allowed to dwell upon the ignoble, and in her friendships she recognized only the best qualities.

Her passing was a loss to me. Her memory is and ever shall be fragrant and precious.

A TRIBUTE TO J. H. ELLWOOD

Small of stature, Professor Ellwood was a man of such dynamic personality that no one thought of him in terms of physical limitations.

His whole life grouped itself about music, and every faculty of his being was concentrated upon the task of drawing music from the material gathered before him in his classes.

He had not, however, one of those artistically over-balanced minds, lacking practicality in every day emergencies, and his coolness and poise, his quick response to a critical situation was manifested upon the occasion of one of the early graduating programs.

The auditorium in the new wooden building not being quite completed, the graduation was held in what was known as the California theatre, located on South Second Street. It was an evening affair and the large hall was crowded to capacity. A large chorus had been drilled by Professor Ellwood and occupied seats just below the stage. In the middle of the program an alarm of fire was heard. The terrifying noise of hurrying fire engines, the cries of people in the street, caused consternation in the audience. The program was halted; people began to crowd; a panic was imminent, and the voice of President Charles Allen could not be heard in the din and the excitement. Suddenly at a quiet signal, the chorus rose to their feet; a piano was struck, and there burst upon the ears of the frightened crowd a joyous rollicking tuneful song. Immediately the disorder ceased, the people resumed their seats, and the program was carried out.

From this time on, Professor Ellwood was stamped as a man who was not only distinguished in his special art but as a man who knew how to turn his art to practical purposes in a critical emergency.

Such was Professor Ellwood, beloved teacher of music during more than a score of years.

TRIBUTE TO PROF. C. J. C. BENNETT

By Alexander M. Cuthbertson

Very well do I remember Prof. Bennett; he stands out as one of my favorite teachers. He aroused my interest in psychology, made the study of it attractive, and kept my interest alive throughout the course, which should be proof enough that he was a good teacher so far as I am concerned. Psychology and Prof. Bennett are twins in my memory; I never think of the one without the other.

He was broad minded and generous in his criticisms. I heard him not only in his classes on week days but also on Sundays in his Sunday school class, and I can say that my impression has always been that he was a man of unusually high motive and exemplary conduct. He was always thoughtful of his aged mother, with whom he was then living, and interested in the members of his classes, which interest did not lag after they had left school.

Second only to one other. Prof. Volney Rattan, do I remember the things he said and did which have given me pleasure in contemplation.

L. B. WILSON

A Tribute of Love and Appreciation

By Gertrude Rowell

When thinking of life I like to think of it as a journey in which there are ever higher and higher mountains to be ascended. I like to find a place in which there is a view of the road traveled. Such a view is now before me, but it is not the road that holds my attention, but my fellow-traveler, Mr. Wilson.

I can never be grateful enough for the day our roads met and I had the privilege of his companionship. He was an ideal traveling companion. First of all he was thoughtful and competent, unpretentious and straightforward. You knew that he was sure of his purpose and of his road; so you had a feeling of safety and comfort in following the same path.

Then he was friendly and helpful, cheerful and sociable, kind and considerate; so you were always sure of good will, generous acts and courteous treatment no matter whether the traveling was good or bad.

Lastly he was a willing worker, patient and persevering no matter how heavy the burden was.

We fain would travel to the journey's end.”

Mr. Wilson had those qualities which we all so much admire and which make for strength of character,—clear-headedness, warm-heartedness, firmness of will. All life was made better by his life,—even the great out-of-doors which he loved. Faculty and students loved him; fellow townsmen and neighbors respected and liked him; his family adored him. He practiced in his daily life the Golden Rule.

For over twenty years I traveled much on the same road with him, and not one unkind word or one unjust act can I recall. My memory is filled with good deeds and generous thoughts. His spirit lives in the lives of many people and is one of the richest heritages of our college life.

Thousands of others, who like myself, claim the San Jose Teachers College as their Alma Mater, bring their tribute and bow their heads in reverent thought, lift up their hearts with deepest gratitude, dearest love, and sincerest appreciation of the beautiful spirit and generous life of their kind friend and capable teacher. L. B. Wilson.

EFFIE IZAH HAWKINS

By Agnes Howe

Effie Izah Hawkins was born in Indiana near Old Vincennes. Coming to California while a young girl, she graduated from the San Jose Normal in February, 1898, from Stanford, May, 1914, and won her M. A. degree from Stanford, January, 1923.

The above shows her preparation but tells nothing of the energy and determination with which she tackled problems as they presented themselves. Whether in her first school in the Salinas Valley it was dissecting lizards and snakes for nature study; in the Santa Cruz Mountains making her dingy little schoolroom a bower of beauty and her pupils enthusiastic seekers for the mysteries of plants and flowers; in Palo Alto as teacher and principal, meeting the music and other difficulties; in the high school at Berkeley with all the problems of the adolescent; in the Junior College inspiring and directing,—all were met in her sympathetic loving way.

As a student she was a joy to her teachers and professors, a devoted sister and daughter, a true friend, a social success with her ready wit and wide culture—in every relation she was loved.

Few knew the handicaps under which she worked nor the sacrifices she made. Never very strong, her frail body succumbed and she gave way at the height of her usefulness at her post in the midst of the students she loved so well.

Results live after her. Had the San Jose Normal never done more than give California one such teacher, that would have been ample repayment for its entire cost.

An unusual teacher, woman, friend passed from the circles that knew her. Who shall dare say that her influence does not live on in the grateful remembrance of those whose privilege it was to know her and be touched by the love, sympathy, insight and understanding, which gave a new vision of endeavor and a new determination of purpose to each and all. Surely such a life was not lived in vain.

TRIBUTE TO CLARENCE URMY

It is seldom that a distinctly artistic nature is combined with traits of pronounced exactitude and system, but such was the unusual combination in the make-up of Clarence Urmay, musician of rare talents, poet of note, and teacher par excellence.

His artistry was his most prominent trait, but his precise insistence upon accuracy went hand in hand with his creative output. There were no ragged edges to gather up, no slipshod workmanship, no omissions, no last-minute flaws to rectify. Everything that passed through his capable hands had the stamp of punctilious and scrupulous attention, be the product a group of singers, who knew, from his instruction, how to follow all the little niceties of public appearance, or an exquisite lyric penned by him; all was in order.

Mr. Urmay was a man of rare spiritual gifts. He was devoutly religious in his thoughts, and his idealism was manifested in the volume of verse which he published, for it is in these melodious and rythmical lyrics that Clarence Urmy's memory is enshrined in the hearts of those who knew him best.

A TRIBUTE TO DANIEL R. WOOD, (Instructor of Nature Study)

Dear old Dan, big and bluff, blustering and breezy. With a heart as tender as a woman's, and as sensitive to suffering underneath a crust of brusquerie, which deceived no one, for those who knew him realized that he would harm no living creature and that his sympathies were always on the side of the weak, the old and the very young. Dan was a diamond in the rough. He loved birds and flowers and trees. He loved little children and was tender and thoughtful to old people. He loved young men and sought ways to help them. He invited the confidence and many a story of difficulty and of financial or domestic perplexities found in him a responsive interest and a ready and generous helping hand. Every one of his co-workers prized his friendship.

The women of the faculty ordered him about. The men exchanged verbal witticisms with him and all loved him. He was not fashioned from a mold. There was no one just like Dan.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. E. R. SNYDER

From One Who Knew Him

To the educational institutions he served, he contributed a philosophy, practical in wisdom, liberal in scope and democratic in spirit, which will leave an impress for all time. He was a leader of recognized ability, hewing a path with a steadfast purpose to higher levels of human betterment.

To society he contributed high ideals of citizenship through his unselfish service to duty, his trust in his fellow man, his tolerance of the frailties of others, his loyalty to individuals and institutions and through his fine sense of justice.

To his family and friends who knew him best, he has left a heritage of memories. Through keen grey eyes there shone a noble and lovable soul. His loyalty to his family and friends was constant and expressed in unselfish service throughout the years. He looked for the good in everyone. In thought and deed he was tender, kind and charitable, for he harbored no malice in his heart.

The welfare and concern of his family was his constant concern to the last. Although not a ritualist, he was essentially a religious man in that he lived and practiced the standards of a spiritual life in his family and social relationships, and held an enduring faith in the destiny of man.

REBECCA F. ENGLISH—UNFAILING FRIEND

Died August 27, 1924

By Flora E. Beal

Unselfish service expresses the chief trait of Rebecca F. English's character. Although in childhood the opportunity for an only daughter among five sons to develop such a trait must have been small, the time for that development came in later years in her intercourse with family and pupils and students.

The long period of professional work was marked by another strong impulse, the determination that whatever the teacher offered should be of the best. Neither outworn nor fairly good methods sufficed, no matter how great the expenditure of time and effort and money required in attaining later and better ones. Personal sacrifice never counted as against a friend's advantage. All who knew her for what she really was will cherish her memory with unfailing interest and lasting affection.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF PRESIDENTSAHIRA HOLMES*Principal from July, 1862, to June, 1865

Ahira Holmes, the first principal of the first Normal School established in California, was born in Plymouth, Massachusetts, in 1823, and received his primary educational training in the public schools of that historical and puritanical town. He entered the State Normal School of Bridgewater, Massachusetts, in 1843, and taught in the public school of his native town during the winter months before graduating.

In the early part of 1852 Mr. Holmes came to California, and in the following June received from the Board of Education of San Francisco an appointment as principal of the Union Street public school.

In 1861 Mr. Holmes removed to Los Angeles where he was elected principal of the only grammar school then opened in that city. Here he continued one year, when in June, 1862, he received from the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School an appointment as principal of that institution.

After resigning his position in the State Normal School in 1865 Mr. Holmes was elected principal of the Mission Grammar School in San Francisco and labored in that capacity during two years.

Later he lived in retirement on a fruit farm in the suburbs of San Jose until his death in December, 1902.

An interesting fact in connection with Mr. Holmes' activities, and one that is not generally known is that during his residence in San Francisco in the early days of the state's history, he was a member of the famous vigilance committee.

GEORGE W. MINNSPrincipal from June, 1865, to June, 1866.

George W. Minns was born in the city of Boston in 1813, and received his early education in a private primary school and in the public Grammar and English High School of that city. He was fitted, under private tuition, for Harvard University, from which he graduated in 1836. For two years he attended the Howard Dane Law School, receiving the degree of LL. B. He then entered the office of the Honorable Rufus Choate, where he remained for two years, and was admitted to practice in all the Courts of the State.

In 1854 he came to California, via Cape Horn, and was connected with the newly established High School in San Francisco about ten years,—as long as both sexes attended. On the separation and the establishment of the Girls' High School, he was offered the choice of the Principalships, and chose that of the Boys' High School, being its first principal. After holding the position one year, he was called to the principalship of the State Normal School, then in San Francisco, but held the principalship only one year, when he returned to Boston, and for nearly fourteen years taught in the east.

At the instance of John Swett, his intimate friend, he was invited to a position in the Girl's High School of San Francisco in 1880. Thinking a change of climate might be beneficial to the health of his children, he accepted this position, which he held until 1888. During the latter part of this time he was visited by a serious calamity, viz., a cataract in each eye. An operation was performed and both crystalline lenses removed. His eyes were afterwards so strong that he could read fine print.

His residence in the town bearing the distinguished name of Newton, Massachusetts, continued until his death.

HENRY P. CARLTON

Principal from June, 1866, to July, 1867, and from February to May 1868.

Henry P. Carlton was born in Andover, Massachusetts. His education up to the age of twenty was confined to the district school, which, after the manner of his time and place, was kept open only during the winter months. His work was that of a New England farmer's boy. For five or six winters, beginning with that of his eighteenth birthday, he taught a district school. He was twenty-one years old when he entered the South Andover High School, where he fitted for the classical course in the Vermont University.

On account of his ability as a writer and speaker, he was given, at the close of the sophomore year, the place of honor on the program of the public exercises of his class. Ill health compelled him to leave college, never to return.

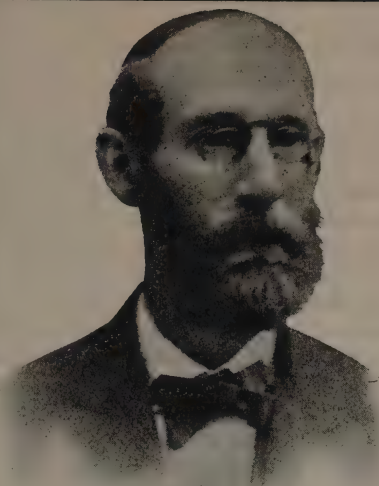

After a six months' sea voyage, he was engaged for several years in an insurance business in Philadelphia.

In 1853 he came "round the horn" to California, and in the fall of that year, was made principal of the North Beach Grammar School in San Francisco, and later of the Powell Street Grammar School. This position he resigned in 1861 to go east. Upon his return he accepted the offer of a deputyship in the office of John Swett, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, where he remained until October, 1863, when he was elected assistant in the State Normal School. Here he labored as vice-principal and principal until March, 1873. His special work in the school was Physiology, Natural History and Mental Philosophy, applied to teaching. While he was connected with the Normal School he made a collection of nearly all the then known species of land and fresh water shells of the Pacific Coast.

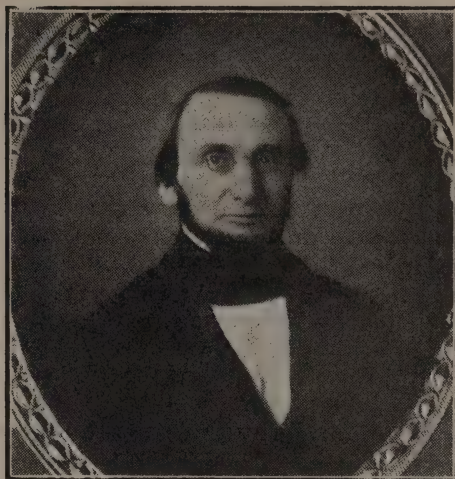

Mr. Carlton was awarded one of the first honorary degrees granted by the University of California for his work among the schools, and for his scholarly attainments. Later on he became associated in the publication and management of the "Pacific School and Home Journal," and still later, editorially, with the San Francisco "Chronicle."

He was largely instrumental in establishing the first Kindergarten in San Francisco with Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper; it was opened on Silver Street, and was taught by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

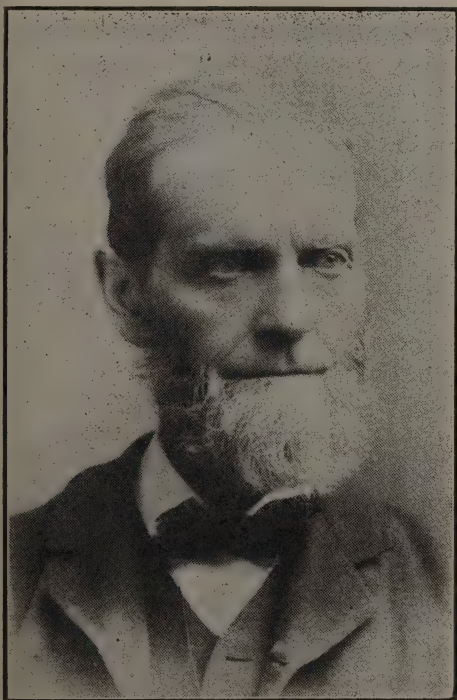

His death occurred in Oakland, January 30, 1909.

C. H. ALLEN

GEORGE TAIT

Principal from July 1867, to February, 1868.

George Tait was born in 1831 in the city of New York, and was reared in the state of Virginia. He received his education in the University of Virginia, then in the most flourishing period of its history. He began his career as a teacher in Virginia before he was twenty-one, and in 1853 came to California, going into the French Bank of San Francisco and teaching in the evening. In 1857 he was appointed principal of the Denman School of San Francisco, and served until 1861 when he was elected City Superintendent of Schools.

During his term of office he advocated many reforms, particularly in the interest of the primary schools, which he thought should, in the character of their teachers, their buildings and other appliances of education, rank first in every school department. In his efforts to better the conditions of the schools and to raise their standards, he sought inspiration in the wisdom and experience of the leading educators of the East, and in his views on the subject he was supported by the Board of Education.

He also was a warm advocate of religion in the school, and thought the banishment of all religious instruction from the class-room a slur on the morals of the community. He insisted strongly upon the moral effect of reading the Scriptures, though without comment on the part of the teacher. During the years of his incumbency the practice prevailed in New York and Boston and was made compulsory by the law; and in fact, prevailed in this State—at least in the schools of San Francisco, in 1852, but soon after fell into disuse.

He also believed in the American system of co-education, but at the same time, he advised the introduction of the European system into a certain number of schools, in view of the strong predudice of our foreign element against the former system. He thought this concession necessary in order to extend to the greatest possible number the inestimable benefits of a common school education.

In 1867 he was appointed Principal of the State Normal School, then located in San Francisco. His connection with that institution, however, was brief, for stress of private business necessitated his resignation in 1868. He moved to Oakland intending to devote himself exclusively to business interests, but was prevailed upon by friends to undertake the task of organizing the schools of the young city. He was connected with Braytons' College School, and when the College of California became the University of California, he was made one of its professors. He resigned in 1873 and after traveling in Europe for many years, died suddenly in 1888 at Alameda, California.

DR. WILLIAM T. LUCKY

Principal from May 1868, to August, 1873.

Dr. William T. Lucky was born in Elizabethtown, Kentucky, April 14, 1821. At the age of sixteen he went to McKendrie College, Lebandon, Illinois, from which he graduated with the honors of the class in August, 1842. On the same day on which he received his diploma, he was elected professor of mathematics in his Alma Mater, and after teaching two years his resignation was accepted with deep regret.

In 1847 Dr. Lucky was ordained a regular minister in the Methodist church, but did not receive special appointments as a pastor.

After coming to California in 1861 he accepted the position of president in the Pacific Methodist College where he remained five years, and through many discouragements was successful in building up a fine school.

In 1868 he was elected principal of the State Normal School, of which he had charge five years, three years in San Francisco and two years after the school was moved to San Jose.

While living in San Francisco Dr. Lucky became interested in the moral and spiritual welfare of the many prisoners in San Quentin, and volunteered his services as chaplain for two Sabbaths in each month, and for two years he was faithful to his new post of duty, employing every means possible to cultivate the better principles of the prisoners, and induce them to reform their lives and become honest men. It was largely the result of his individual effort and labor that a chapel was built when the prison was enlarged, and quite a large library of books was donated by the different churches of the city.

After leaving the Normal School Dr. Lucky became principal of the High School in Los Angeles, and City Superintendent, in both of which positions he was successful and popular.

His death occurred in San Francisco, August 21, 1876.

CHARLES H. ALLEN

Principal from August, 1873, to July, 1889.

Charles H. Allen was born in Mansfield, Pennsylvania, February 11, 1828. He received his early education in the common schools. From Condersport Academy he went to Jamestown, New York with the idea of continuing his education, but illness made it necessary for him to give up all mental labor, and he entered a workshop and learned a trade. Being of a strongly mechanical turn he rapidly acquired skill in the various departments, and was soon an expert cutler. His taste for mechanics followed him all through his life, and a "workshop" was his principal place of amusement.

Mr. Allen taught in the common schools of western New York for several years, working at his trade during vacations.

His health failing from overwork, he became a land surveyor for a few years. He held the position of surveyor for the German Colony which settled upon the tract of land first purchased by Ole Bull for a Danish Colony.

At the invitation of Chancellor Barnard he went to Wisconsin to take charge of several Teachers' Institutes. Tiring of the perpetual strain of this Institute work, he opened a private Normal Class in Madison High School building. About this time he was made Superintendent of Schools. Before the expiration of a year he was invited by the Regents of the University to take charge of the Normal Department in the University. He accepted the position, and to him belongs the credit of opening the doors of the university to women. While holding the professorship in the university Mr. Allen raised a company of students, and went to Memphis as captain of the company. His company formed a part of the "hundred day men" of whom so much was said and written. Returning, honorably discharged he resumed his work, but again failing health compelled him for a time to give up teaching, until his strength returned, when he became president of the first Normal School in Wisconsin at Platteville.

A severe attack of bronchitis compelled him to seek the benefit of another climate, and after his health was restored in Portland, Oregon he returned to Wisconsin to resume his institute work, from which he was called to the Normal School in San Jose as professor of natural science. After serving one year he was elected in August, 1873, as principal of the school.

Of Mr. Allen's work in California, both as head of the Normal School and in Institutes, little need be said. His educational ability may be best estimated by a study of the growth of the school, and his method of work, by the extracts from his reports.

After his retirement from the school in 1889, Mr. Allen was for some years assistant postmaster of San Jose, and it was while serving in this capacity that he was taken ill, and died at his home on Third Street, September 11, 1904.

The resolutions passed by the Board of Trustees, when failing health compelled him to relinquish the educational work he loved, voiced sentiments of deep appreciation.

"California," they said, "Indeed, the whole Pacific Coast owes him a debt of gratitude that can never be repaid."

C. W. CHILDS

Principal from July 1, 1889, to 1896.

C. W. Childs was born in 1844 in Geneseo, New York, and graduated from the Wauwatosa High School, Wisconsin in 1860. At the outbreak of the rebellion he served for a short time in the army. Subsequently he came to California, and began his life work of teaching at Cold Springs, El Dorado County. After teaching for several years he entered the Normal School and was graduated in 1867. He later took a commercial course in San Francisco and then became principal of the High School at Suisun, where he won a reputation as a brilliant educator and gained for the school the honor of being one of the best high schools in the state.

In recognition of his work he was made County Superintendent of Schools of Solano County, a position which he held for two successive terms almost without opposition. At the close of this term of office in 1878, Mr. Childs was elected to a position in the State Normal School in San Jose, and in 1886 was made vice-principal, becoming a principal in 1889 upon the resignation of Mr. Charles Allen.

Although not a college man, Mr. Childs was an untiring student and won the esteem and confidence of faculty, students and citizens. He is the author of "Topical Outlines of History", and "Topical Outlines of the Constitutions", also the "Essentials of Bookkeeping," three exceedingly valuable handbooks for the use of teacher and student.

He was genial, courteous, affable, modest and unassuming.

After severing his connection with the Normal School, Mr. Childs moved to Oakland, and was identified with the city school department which he served for a number of years until his death in May, 1922.

A. H. RANDALL

Principal from 1896 to 1899

A. H. Randall was a native of Maine and was educated in Maine Wesleyan College and in the Maine Normal Schools. He was principal of the Stockton High School for about sixteen years, and in 1884 came to the San Jose State Normal School as a teacher of physics and geometry.

He was married in 1869 to Miss Fannie H. Moore, a lady of much refinement and charm. They had no children.

In 1896 he was elected principal of the Normal School, a position he held with credit for three years.

Mr. Randall was a man of great personal dignity. Tall and bearded, he was a typical college professor and his handling of the school as principal endeared him to the student body who respected him as a man of high ideals and lofty purposes. He died not long after his retirement, in 1900.

Kindness, gentleness, and love were his prominent traits, and many of the students received not only his advice and council but financial aid which enabled them to complete their education.

In the memorial services which were held at the school September 18, 1900, Mr. Frank Russell, City Superintendent of Schools, gave him this tribute:

"Professor Randall was a child of nature. He loved the woods, flowers and brooks, and it was when under the shade of the trees, or by the blazing camp-fire that those who knew him learned to know him best. It was then he opened his heart and poured forth the riches thereof in stories and reminiscences."

JAMES MCNAUGHTON

President from 1899 to 1900

James McNaughton, who followed Professor Randall as president of the San Jose Normal School received his higher education in Alleghany College and in the University of Michigan. From these institutions he was given his master's degree, and also a degree as doctor of philosophy, and with this ample equipment he became superintendent of schools at Council Bluffs, Iowa, a position he held for about eight years.

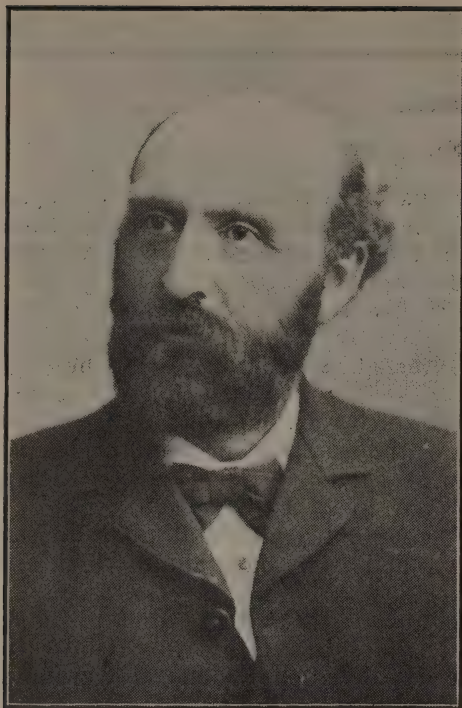

The principalship of a North Dakota Normal School lured him to the great northwest where he remained for three years. From North Dakota he went to Tempe, Arizona, and took the presidency of the Arizona Normal School at this place. Dr. McNaughton had held this position for about four years when he was elected president of the San Jose State Normal School and remained from 1899 until the close of the school year in 1900.

He died some years ago in Arizona.

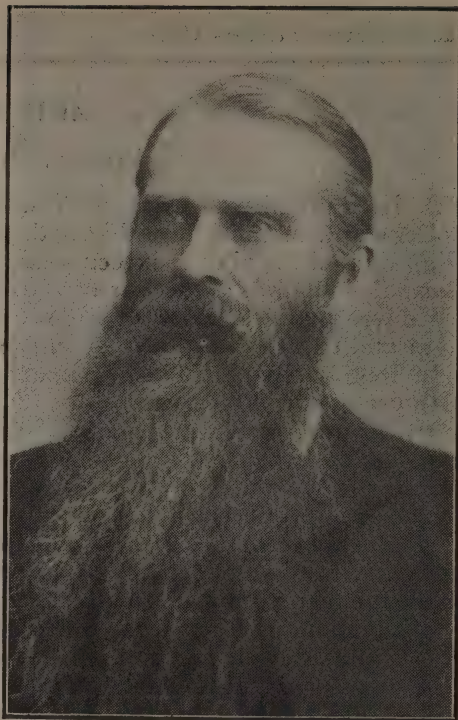

MORRIS ELMER DAILEY

President 1900—1919

Morris Elmer Dailey was born in Warwick County, Indiana, on the 14th of April, 1867, the only child of Dr. William and Ann Dailey. He was deprived of a father's influence when a small child, and to his mother fell the responsibility of his education and up bringing. Her all enfolding love recognized no sacrifice too great, no work too heavy, no effort too wearisome if only her purpose could be accomplished of giving the boy the educational advantages she felt he should have in order to fit him for life. It is gratifying to know that she lived to enjoy his triumphs, and to watch with pardonable pride his position in the world of men. The strongest affection existed between Morris Elmer Dailey and his mother, and one of the most outstanding traits of his character was his loyalty to her and his oft voiced words of appreciation for her love and her sacrifices.

The press of poverty prevented his achieving his early ambition to become a lawyer, though the time spent in legal study he found was of inestimable value, later, in his life work. Teaching offering the surest and quickest path to independence, he found it so much to his liking that he fitted himself for this calling. A bachelor's degree from Simpson College, Indiana, and a master's degree from the University of Indiana were followed by a degree of LL.D. from Drake University in 1901. He entered the normal school as an instructor in mathematics in 1894, but accepted a call to the superintendency of the city schools in Fresno until he was recalled to the San Jose Normal School to become its head in 1900. This position he held for nineteen years, and under his able direction the school grew steadily in power, influence, and prestige until its standing as an educational institution for teacher training was recognized throughout the country as second to none.

Dr. Dailey was known, not only as an able educator whose abilities were acknowledged by all the leading men in the educational field, but also as essentially a man among men, and his advice was sought by men prominent in business and industrial pursuits. Many opportunities came to him, not only of high educational advancement but of a financial nature, to all of which he turned a deaf ear in order to continue his plans for the school he loved and whose interest he placed above personal gain.

As an administrator he was unexcelled. As an educator his rulings were never questioned. He was dominant, but never dominating. His decisions were quick, but invariably correct. He grasped the unknown quantity of every problem and held to it tenaciously until it was solved. If he needed expert advice he knew instinctively where to lay his hand upon it. Although there was not a department of the school that did not feel his touch, he left to the individual teacher the working of his or her specific plans. His personality was so strong that it permeated the school like a tangible substance. His cheer and his joyous optimism were contagious. When he was absent everything sagged. When he returned, the school's circulatory system responded with renewed life zest.

Dr. Dailey's loyalty to his friends was one of the outstanding traits of a well-rounded character. While not blind to his friends' faults he was indeed blind and deaf to any lure that might lead him away from the path of loyal affection. A big man in every sense of the word was Morris Elmer Dailey. When he fell so suddenly in his sleep on July 5, 1919, at Pacific Grove, he went down like Lincoln, "As when a kingly cedar green with boughs goes down with a great shout among the hills, and leaves a lonesome place against the sky."

Dr. Dailey's sudden death was felt to be an irreparable loss to the state. At the annual meeting of the State Board of Education and State Normal Presidents held in July at Santa Barbara, to which he was planning to go on the day of his death, the following resolution was passed by his colleagues who were shocked and saddened by the unbelievable news that this strong, vivid personality was to be no more among them:

"In the death of Dr. Morris Elmer Dailey, California has lost a leading educator, a splendid school administrator, a public servant with a statesman's vision.

With all the honors that came to him, both as an educator and as a citizen, Dr. Dailey was always democratic. He was a man among men, simple and unaffected in manner.

Morris Elmer Dailey has gone, but he lives in the hearts of thousands of persons whom he has helped in thousands of ways. He has fought the good fight, bravely, honestly, forcefully, joyfully, and left behind him a clean record of noble deeds."

The Board of Trustees of the Normal School spread on their minutes the following tribute: Whereas Dr. Morris Elmer Dailey, President the State Normal at San Jose, California, died on the 5th day of July, 1919 and

Whereas the Board of Trustees of the Normal School desire that an expression of the high regard in which Dr. Dailey was universally held be made a part of the records of this institution, therefore be it,

Resolved that the Board of Trustees of the State Normal School at San Jose, California, feels keenly the loss of a true personal friend, a wise administrator, a leading educator, and a splendid Christian man.

No one can estimate the service he has rendered to the citizenship of our State, not only through personal contact, but through the influence of normal graduates, who are, in their profession, reflecting his lofty ideals and his unselfish devotion to the training of future citizens.

Dr. Dailey was married in 1912 to Frances O. Jones, a graduate of this school. Four beautiful children were born to them, Morris Elmer, Alice, Margaret, and Edith Ann.

It is hoped that this brief biographical sketch may give to those who love this college some clear conception of the man whose administration in point of time exceeded that of any other president, and that this imperfect silhouette of one of the strong, vital personalities which have made this college what it is today may stimulate those who read this sketch to lives of unselfish devotion.

It is cheering to think that there is, perhaps, not one of the thousands who passed through this institution between 1900 and 1919 who was not in some way influenced in greater or less degree by the personality of Morris Elmer Dailey.

LEWIS B. WILSON

Acting President 1919—1920

Lewis B. Wilson (Louie Ben as he was affectionally called) took up the reins laid down by Dr. Dailey in 1919 and continued as acting president until the appointment of Dr. Kemp in June, 1920.

He was born in Pennsylvania and received his early education in that state. He later came to California and attended the San Jose Normal School from which he was graduated in 1878, soon afterwards marrying one of his classmates, Alice Blythe. He taught in this county and was principal of one of the San Jose grammar schools. The principalship of the high school called him, and he held this position until he was elected as science teacher in the Normal School in 1895. Upon the retirement of R. C. Holway in 1900, Mr. Wilson became vice-president, an office he held until he became acting president in 1919.

Although possessed of no college degree, Mr. Wilson was no laggard in educational progress and studied at Stanford and at the University of California, besides following the trend of scientific thought through extensive and thorough reading.

But aside from his work, and his official duties in connection with the school mechanism which he kept oiled and co-ordinated by his unfailing tact, it was the joyous spirit of the man, his kindness, his optimism, his ready and unfailing wit, his instant and cordial response to anyone in difficulties, his insight into the innate goodness of every human soul, and his refusal to see or to acknowledge the evil, which will be longest remembered by the thousands of young men and young women who passed through the San Jose Normal School and came under the influence of his genial and happy personality.

His death in May, 1924, followed an illness of several months, left a sadness and a void in the school where he labored so long and faithfully and so well.

WILLIAM WEBB KEMP

President 1920—1923

William Webb Kemp is the only president of the Teachers College who has the distinction of being a native of California. He was born in Placerville and received his education in the schools of this state with the exception of his work at Columbia University which gave him his doctor's degree in 1912, and his research work in London during the summer of 1911. Stanford University gave him a bachelor's degree, and graduate work at Stanford and at the University of California were included in the thorough equipment he had for his educational career.

He has Phi Delta Kappa honors, and has been on the summer school staff of Stanford and of the University of California, and was at one time a member of the Board of Education of Berkeley. His educational qualifications have rendered his service helpful in various lines of research, and the concrete result of his labors in this direction have been the publication of the "Support of Schools in Colonial New York by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel", and the joint authorship of "Survey of Education in Hawaii."

He was made president of the San Jose Normal School in 1920, and it was during his administration and largely by his efforts that the Normal School was given collegiate standing in 1921. In 1923 he resigned from the presidency of the Teachers College and has since been dean of education of the University of California.

ALEXANDER RICHARD HERON

Acting President from July to September, 1923

A Canadian by birth, Mr. Heron was educated in the Southwestern University of Los Angeles, a school of commerce which bestowed upon him a degree of Bachelor of Commercial Science, together with a marvelous skill in dealing with the intricacies of finance.

He was assistant superintendent of Public Instruction under Mr. Will C. Wood, and was deputy director of education in charge of the administration of state teachers colleges and special schools.

Mr. Heron is at present Director of Finance of the State of California, a position for which he is eminently fitted.

During the interim between the departure of Dr. Kemp and the administration of Dr. Snyder, Mr. Heron conducted the summer session, and handled the various problems that called for immediate settlement with tact and skill.

EDWIN R. SNYDER

President from 1923 to January, 1925

Edwin Reginald Snyder was a product of the "little red school house". Born of Scotch-Irish parentage in Pennsylvania, his early education was received in that state, but in 1891 he went to the Teachers College of Greeley, Colorado, of which his brother, Z. X. Snyder was head, and after his graduation from this institution he for five years taught at Bald Mountain and New Winsor, Colorado, as principal.

When he came to California in 1900, he took charge of the industrial work in the Alameda schools and remained until 1902, when Dr. Dailey secured his service for the Manual Arts Department of the Normal School. Feeling the need of higher training, Mr. Snyder enrolled at Stanford and in 1905 received his bachelor's degree. Graduate work followed, for his ambition was insatiable and his diligence won him a scholarship in education from Teachers College. While a student at Stanford he was also a special lecturer, and during the absence of Dr. Cubberley carried his work in education. Ever reaching out for something better, Dr. Snyder accepted the vice-presidency of the Fresno Normal School, and was assistant superintendent of the Fresno City schools until he was called to the superintendency of the Santa Barbara City schools. He had been in Santa Barbara but six months when he was offered the newly created position of commissioner of vocational education in 1914, a post he filled with distinction until he was called to the presidency of the San Jose State Teachers College in 1923.

This, in brief, is the story of Edwin R. Snyder, a lovable man, an ambitious man, and one who constantly fought against a rather frail physique. His aspirations always outran his strength. In spite of these physical limitations which might have discouraged a less valiant nature, Dr. Snyder's educational career challenged the attention of the leaders of educational thought throughout the state, and his power and force and vision were among the vital influences in reorganizing the state's educational concepts.

After an illness of several weeks, which no one connected with the college allowed himself to think would have any but a favorable end, he died January 13, 1925.

During the two years he was president Dr. Snyder's work was constructive and far seeing. His connection with the state department of education, which extended over a period of nearly ten years, widened his vision of educational needs, and gave him a view point which was free from local and pusillanimous procedure. The stone which he built into the foundation of this school was enduring and strong.

H. F. MINSSSEN

Acting President. January, 1925 —September 1927

H. F. Minssen is a pleasing example of the newer generation. Young enough to be fully in sympathy with the modern point of view, he is old enough, and wise enough and sane enough to recognize the value of tradition, and it is this combination which made him the efficient head of this college after the death of Dr. Snyder in 1925.

Mr. Minssen received his early education in Illinois. After graduating from De Kalb State Teachers College he came to California and completed the work for his bachelor's and master's degree at Stanford. Dr. Dailey, with his shrewd insight into personal values, found him to be an ideal man for the mathematics department of the Normal School, and persuaded him to come to this institution in 1916.

His spirit of loyalty has been a dominating trait during the entire period of his connection with this college. He has been loyal to the faculty, loyal to the students, loyal to the state, and loyal to his own best and truest instincts.

As business secretary Mr. Minssen was unfailingly accurate, and his wise disbursement of the state funds, while not always popular with those who had inflated ideas of the needs of some special department, were so wisely and so carefully administered that the highest praise was merited by state officials, who came to place implicit confidence in his judgment and his fairness.

The administrative workmanship of Mr. Minssen during his term as vice-president and assistant to Dr. Snyder made him an ideal candidate for the position of acting president which he held for over two years with such distinct success that the machinery of the school functioned steadily and development and progress went forward.

THOMAS WILLIAM MACQUARRIE

September 1927—

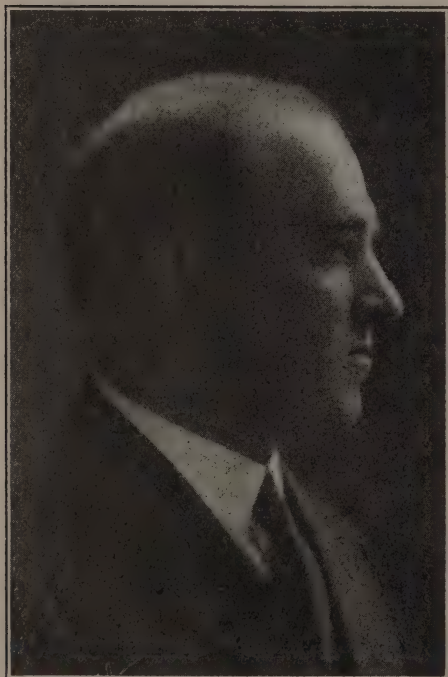

Dr. MacQuarrie's life, although brief in the span of years is long when measured by activity and achievement. It may be his Scotch ancestry is in part responsible for the fulness and plentitude of his years, which began in Woodham, Ontario, between forty and fifty years ago.

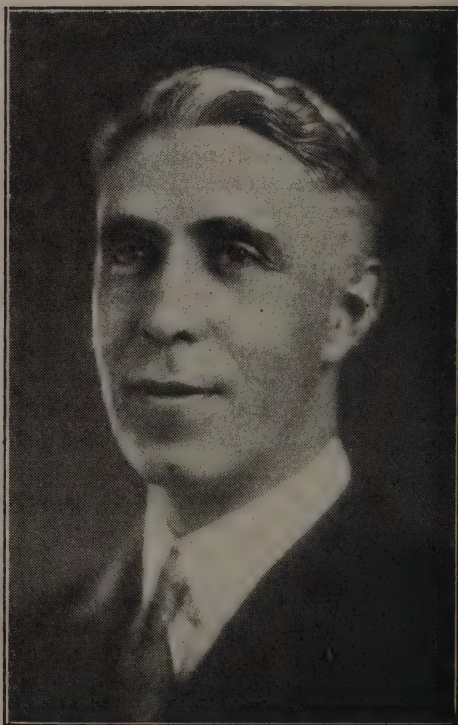

W. W. KEMP

T. W. MacQUARRIE

H. F. MINSEN

A. R. HERON

While he was still a small boy, the family moved to Wisconsin, and there he was educated, graduating in 1900 from a four year normal course.

He immediately entered upon the work of teaching, first in a rural school, afterwards in a graded city school where he became principal, and later assumed a more important position at the head of a boys' boarding school. Meantime his summers were spent in hard work at Columbia University until the great war gathered the best and brightest of the country's manhood and he enlisted as a student in the United States Army Corps at Ft. Snelling, Minnesota, in May, 1917. Graduating as captain he went with the 88th Division, 350th Infantry, to Camp Dodge, Iowa. Here he became major and was ordered to France in July, 1918. He was a student in the U. S. Army staff college at Langres, France, until the end of the year when he went on an inspection tour of the battlefields, as a member of the Inspection and Classification Board. He was also one of a group of American Army Students in British Universities and was assigned to the department of psychology in Kings College, London.

Upon his return to the United States, he received his discharge from the Service, August, 1919, in San Francisco, and joined the vast army of young men who had sacrificed their careers at the call of their country.

No immediate opening in his chosen profession of teaching being available, he worked as a carpenter in Glendale for a year, then became supervisor of vocational education in the U. S. Army schools at Camp Lewis until he entered Stanford University in 1921. His value to the educational department of the federal government was by this time so generally recognized that he was appointed co-ordinator of the Veteran's bureau during his enrollment at the university, and upon completing his course in 1924, with his bachelor's, master's, and doctor's degrees honorably earned, he became assistant professor in the University of Southern California until the following year, when he was made full professor and director of the University College of the University of Southern California. However, the lure of southern California was not strong enough to hold him when he was called to the presidency of the San Jose State Teachers College, where he entered upon his duties in September, 1927.

Dr. MacQuarrie's special field of research is an interesting one, the nature and measurement of mechanical ability, and he is the author of a test in this line.

His marriage to Winifred Dean of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, occurred in 1908, and three children, John L., William D., and Ruth, complete the family circle which has become a part of the life of this institution.

Unassuming, genuine, wholesome, and with a broad, far-seeing plan of the needs of this college, Dr. MacQuarrie, the sixteenth president, has entered upon his duties with the loyal support of the entire faculty and student body who are ready to follow his lead onward and upward.

Since taking the office of president in September, Dr. MacQuarrie has refused a highly attractive offer in a most desirable community, with every advantage of climate, congenial surroundings, and a wealth of opportunity for service along educational lines, besides a financial reward far in excess of his present salary. A man whose evaluation of life is not measured by mere worldly standards is a safe guide to lead the destinies of this great school.

FACULTY MEMBERS

Biographical Sketches

Allen H. Abbott, A. M., Professor of History and Political Science and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at the College of the Pacific, gave a course in Social Science at the summer session in 1922. Deceased.

Alice Adams was first grade supervisor from September, 1927, to June, 1928. She is a graduate of the De Kalb State Normal School and has a Ph. B. degree from the University of Chicago.

Mary P. Adams. Native of Wisconsin. Educated in public schools and San Jose Normal School, from which she graduated May, 1879. Taught one year in public schools; as assistant in Training Department, August, 1882, to March, 1884; as teacher of music and critic teacher in Intermediate Class of Training Department, from August, 1887, to 1894.

After spending some years with her sister in Australia, Miss Adams married Mr. Martin Abernethy and resides in Claremont, California, where a beautiful home, a large circle of friends, and a wide interest in the welfare of young women and their problems make a rich and useful life.

Roxana M. Adams entered the Teachers College in 1921 as principal of the intermediate grades. She has her A. B. degree from Denver University and has done graduate work at Columbia. Miss Adams has written rather extensively on educational subjects, some of her articles appearing in Journal of Geography, Journal of Educational Method, Los Angeles School Journal, and Sunset. She is also co-author of a recent publication, "Teaching in Intermediate Grades".

Her teaching in the college, in addition to sixth grade supervision of teacher training has been along educational lines, including curriculum, project, and human geography.

She was married in December, 1927 to Bert Lee Hale.

James Edwin Addicott was in charge of the manual training department from 1891 to 1902. In addition to this he taught Geometry, Algebra, Astronomy, History, and Reading Methods.

He is a graduate of this school, and has a diploma from the Manual Training School of Washington University at St. Louis.

He has a Bachelor's diploma in Education from Columbia Teachers' College, and a B. S. degree from Columbia. He also has a Master's diploma in education, (Manual Training) and his M. A. degree from Columbia.

Mr. Addicott was for four years supervising principal of the Manual Training School in New Orleans where he organized the course of study, installed equipment, and selected all the teachers. He has lectured extensively on educational and industrial topics, has conducted a summer institute of mechanic arts at Mt. Hermon, was principal of the Prescott School, Oakland, and an active member of the Vocational Council in Oakland. He has published quite extensively along educational and technical lines.

At present, (1927) he is principal of the Polytechnic High School in San Francisco.

Glenn Allen was a part time instructor in Physics during the year 1919.

Jessica G. Allen. Daughter of Charles H. Allen. Native of New York. Educated in public schools and State Normal Schools, Platteville, Wisconsin, and San Jose, Calif. Graduated in 1877. Taught in public schools of California one year; in Junior Class of Normal School, spring term, 1880. Taught in Hester School, San Jose. Married July 20, 1880 to William J. Pascoe.

After the death of her husband Mrs. Pascoe spent some years in the Hawaiian Islands as teacher in the Chinese, Japanese Mission school at Honolulu. Later, returning to California she resided in San Francisco until her death in 1923.

A brave, unconquered spirit.

Richard Hodges Allen has taken courses in the University of California, the Samuel Hume Dramatic School, and has studied architecture extensively in Boston. His training has consisted largely of contacts with artists rather than with institutions, and for this reason perhaps, he has not become hide-bound. His subjects are Interior Decorating, Color and Design, Stage Craft, and Home and School Art.

At San Jose State Teachers College since 1925.

Mrs. Warren Allen took charge of the Music in 1915 during the absence of Miss Fisher who was taking a year of study in Pittsburg. She had had very thorough voice training in this country and in Europe. She has continued her musical work since leaving and has appeared in opera and oratorio roles at various times. Residence 31 Alvarado Campus, Palo Alto, California.

John C. Almack, Ph. D., formerly assistant Director of Extension Division of the University of Oregon, gave a course in education during the summer session of 1922. He is at present Professor of Education at Stanford University.

Jessie B. Anderson, A. B., Director of Physical Education in Long Beach schools, was on the instructional staff during the summer session of 1922.

Ethel J. Armstrong became Critic Teacher in the Training Department in 1893 for a few months. She was a graduate of the school.

She is now Mrs. Ethel Armstrong Drake, 3800 Pasadena Ave., Los Angeles.

Mary L. H. Arnold entered the school in 1897 and remained until the close of the 1899 school year, teaching mathematics.

After leaving this institution Miss Arnold took a year at the University of California and later graduated from the Cooper Medical College.

She has written more than a score of bulletins on medical subjects, and is also the author of an elaborate medical work entitled "Mechanical Vibration, its Physiological Application in Therapeutics". She was married to Dr. Snow and is at this writing (1927) practicing in New York City. Her address is 1650 Broadway.

Sarah Arnold, now Mrs. Martin Flavin, was director of the art department from 1915 to 1918.

A graduate of Mt. Holyoke College she also has post graduate work to her credit and a year at the Chicago School of Applied Arts.

Since her marriage, she has traveled and spent some time in Paris but later returned to her home at Carmel Highlands, where she resides with her husband and two children.

Inis Ashby has taken work at the San Francisco Teachers College of San Francisco, Butler University and the University of California. She is a graduate of the San Jose Teachers College. From 1924 to 1927 she was assistant financial secretary.

Dorothy Augustine was a graduate of this normal school and later received her degree in education from the college. She was an assistant in the education department during 1923-1925 and is now teaching in Flagstaff, Arizona, in the training department of the Teachers College. Address 323 Beaver St.

Villa Augur was a kindergarten assistant during 1909 and 1910. After her resignation she was married and resided in Albany, N.Y.

Walter L. Bachrodt has been on the staff of special lecturers at the summer session since 1926. He is a graduate of the San Jose State Normal School, and has received his master's degree from Stanford University. He was president of the Teachers College Alumni, and president Bay Section of the California Teachers Association. He is city superintendent of the San Jose City schools and is an outstanding figure in education in the state.

Address 590 South 15th Street.

Joyce Backus has been in charge of the library since 1923. She is a graduate of the Washington Normal School, has had work in the University of Washington, and has a B. S. degree from the school of Library Science, Simmons College.

Ida May Baker was on the instructional staff in the summer session of 1925. She is a graduate of this normal school and has done notably strong work in mathematics. She has written a manual for Thorndyke's Arithmetic and is at the present time teaching in the Cleveland School of Education.

Matilda S. Baker was teacher of Drawing and Clay Modeling during the year 1896-97.

William Howard Baker, A. M., served this college in the department of mathematics for twenty-two years, coming in 1900 and leaving July, 1922. He is a graduate of the State Normal School at Kirksville, Missouri. He is the author of a Monograph entitled "Arithmetic and Methods" published by California Education in 1909, and had forty-nine years of teaching before retiring to his home in Huntington Park, California.

Katherine F. Ball was an assistant in the music department in 1918—19, teaching music methods, orchestration, and supervising the music in the training school. Miss Ball has a music certificate from the music department of the University of Pittsburg and a degree from Pomona College. At present, (1927), she is librarian in the State Teachers College at Santa Barbara.

Caroline Hubbard Bailey has been a member of the Library staff since 1926. Previous to coming to this institution Miss Bailey had charge of the Los Gatos Public Library. Her education included a course at Mills College, and she has had considerable experience in literary activities, at one time doing editorial work for the Bar Association Library of San Francisco. She also compiled a bulletin for the Riverside Library entitled "The Romantic and Historic Background of Agriculture and Plant Study".

Earle W. Barker served as an assistant in the Manual Arts Department from 1911 to 1913. He afterwards entered Stanford University and received his degree in 1915. He was connected with the educational department of the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, and taught for a few years in the Seattle schools. He married Nellie F. Douglas and has three children, two girls and a boy. He is now teaching mechanical drawing in the Galileo High School, San Francisco, and lives at 240 Carl Street.

Eliza B. Barnes. Native of Rhode Island. Educated in public schools of Rhode Island. Taught in public schools of Rhode Island, nine years, in public schools of San Francisco, six years; in Normal School, San Jose, from January, 1881, to resignation, May, 1884. Specialty, drawing. After a prolonged visit in the Eastern State, returned to California, and resumed teaching.

Raymond Walker Barry entered the English department in 1924. His A. B. degree was received from the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1915, his A. M. was earned at Stanford in 1916, and to Stanford also, he owes his Ph. D. received in 1925. He is head of the English department in the College.

Alice Bassler, since 1902 has been a faithful exponent of her art in the Physical Training Department, and a concrete example of physical perfection in its finest sense. Her education includes training in the California School of Methods, in the University of Vienna and in the University of California. It also includes travel and study in Europe.

Mrs. Rovilla Bates was an assistant in the Music Department from 1920 until 1922. At this writing (1927) she is a teacher of music in the Central Grammar School, Salinas.

Mrs. Edith C. Beal has been part time assistant in the Art Department since 1926.

Flora Eleanor Beal, who began her work in this institution in 1899, has been connected almost continuously with the English department. She has a B. L. degree from the University of California and an A. B. from Stanford. She has studied in the summer sessions at the Fresno State Teachers College, at the University of California, and has had extensive study and travel in Europe. Miss Beal is an active member of the San Jose branch of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. C. R. Beale. Assistant in Normal Department, July, 1866, to June, 1867. Resigned to take a position in Girls' High School, San Francisco.

Mary I. Bean was an assistant supervisor in the Training department from 1919 until 1921. She is an alumna of the University of California and a graduate of the San Jose State Normal School.

Miss Bean is at present teaching in the Theodore Roosevelt Junior High School, San Jose.

Emelyn A. Beattie has been an assistant in the children's library since 1926.

Mrs. A. S. Bennett was an assistant in the kindergarten department during the latter part of 1903.

Mrs. Myra B. Bennett was an assistant in the library in 1911-12.

Charles Josephus C. Bennett was a teacher of psychology from 1898 until 1905, when ill health compelled him to resign. He was a native of West Virginia and took his degree from Nashville University, afterwards teaching in the Buckhannon Conference seminary for two years. After coming to California he entered Stanford University and received an A. M. degree, and later took a degree from Chicago University, and his doctor's degree from Columbia. Dean Russell of the Teachers College, Columbia University, rated Mr. Bennett as one of the brightest men who had ever graduated from that institution.

After his health was sufficiently recovered, he accepted the professorship of philosophy and psychology at the Louisiana State University, and received while there, many flattering offers from universities throughout the west and south but accepted, in 1907, the Presidency of the Fairmont State Normal School of West Virginia.

In 1910, Mr. Bennett took the position of Dean of Education in the University of Oregon at Eugene and was professor of Psychology and Education until illness compelled his resignation.

A year of European travel and study in Leipzig, Germany, gave breadth to his educational outlook, but he was unable to regain his health and returned to his home in California where he lived quietly in the country until his death.

He was a man of brilliant intellect and much personal charm.

Gloria F. Bennett was a valued member of the faculty for nearly eleven years, entering in 1881 and resigning in 1892. Her professional training was acquired in the state normal schools of New York, at Brockport and at Geneseo. At Geneseo she was a member of the faculty for two years after receiving her diploma of graduation from this institution. Seven years were served in the high school and grammar grades before entering the normal school, where her work was principally English.

After her resignation Miss Bennett was married to Mr. Bernhart and moved to San Francisco. She is now a widow.

Maybyl E. Benson entered the Registrar's department as assistant in July, 1924.

Jane M. Bernhardt, M. A., Director of Kindergarten, University Elementary School, Berkeley, was an instructor in education at the summer session of 1923.

Laura Bethell, Native of Indiana. Educated in public schools of Indiana, at convent, and in California State Normal School. Graduated December, 1887. Taught Language and Mathematics in Normal School from January, 1888, until 1898. After leaving this normal school, Miss Bethell devoted much time to the study of music and did private teaching and coaching. She resided in Berkeley until her death in March, 1928.

Vivian Bigelow, B. S., University of Wisconsin, gave a course in Home Making at the summer session of 1924.

Henry Meade Bland, widely recognized poet and since 1899 a member of the faculty of San Jose State Teachers College, was born in Fairfield, Solano County, California, April 21, 1863.

Receiving his elementary education in the public schools of California, Mr. Bland later attended the College of the Pacific, taking the A. B. degree in 1887, the A.M. in 1888, and the Ph. D. in 1890. He also received the A. M. degree at Stanford University, majoring in English philology, in 1895, with the pioneer class, of which Herbert Hoover was also a member. He has done further graduate work at the University of California, keeping abreast of the times educationally.

After serving as teacher and principal for fifteen years in various public schools of California, including those of Los Gatos, Santa Clara, and San Jose, Mr. Bland has, since 1899, been the guiding literary spirit of the Teachers College. In conjunction with his teaching, he has given generously of his time and energy, not only to critical and inspirational aid to individual writers, but also to public service, for twelve years as a member of the Santa Clara County board of education, and more recently, as a member of the committee of seventy for the revision of the California school law.

A list of Dr. Bland's most important and best known literary works will be found elsewhere in this volume. He is preeminently a poet of California, and will be put forward, at the next session of the state legislature as a candidate for the honor of poet-laureateship of the state. As his poetry shows, his conservative but adaptive genius has mastered and moulded to modern thought the time-tried forms of verse. The general esteem in which Dr. Bland is held may be summed up by the following personal tribute by Robert Couchman, San Jose Newspaper-man:

"Poet and teacher, soft and sweet thy song,
As low and haunting as an evening bird
Casts on the cool, still air, rippling along
From silence unto silence. I have heard
Such songs, dear friend, from unseen bird and thee;
They echo in my heart unceasingly."

Elizabeth Blasdel became Secretary and Assistant Librarian in 1896, and later was made registrar. She was an accomplished musician and had charge of the Training School Music. In 1905 she resigned and became the wife of Bedell Moore of San Antonio, Texas, where she resided except when traveling with her husband and only son. She was vitally interested in Y. W. C. A. work, and made it possible to employ a paid secretary in our college by a contribution which she continued for several years. She died in 1925.

Mary D. Bodwell. Assistant in Normal Department, February, 1864, to May, 1864. Resigned to take a position in Girls' High School, San Francisco.

T. L. Bolton was a teacher of Psychology and Pedagogy during the year 1896; and 1897.

William Pardon Bowen, professor of Physical Education in the Michigan Normal School, gave a course in physical education at the summer session in 1918.

Harold Boyle was in the Manual Arts Department from 1913 until 1916.

Blanche Bradley was a teacher in the Household Arts Department from 1920 until 1922. She resigned at this time and was married to Charles A. Merritt.

Carolyn H. Bradley has been a member of the faculty since 1900. Her A. B. degree was received at the University of Wisconsin, and she has done graduate work at Columbia and at the University of California.

She has traveled extensively throughout the United States and was a member of the faculty European party in 1909. Previous to entering the Normal school Miss Bradley taught in various places in California. Her work in the Teachers College, while mainly along the line of English subjects, is at the present time, (1927) in the department of Social Science. Miss Bradley's versatility has made it possible for her to be useful in a variety of departments as exigencies have arisen from time to time.

J. H. Braly. Native of Missouri. Educated in public schools and University of Pacific, California, and in Cumberland University, Tennessee, from which he graduated in 1859. Taught in public schools of California six years, and in private academies five years. Superintendent of Schools in Santa Clara County, 1868-69. Was Vice-Principal and teacher in Normal School, San Jose, from August, 1873, till resignation, December, 1883. Speciality, natural philosophy.

Oscar Leo Brauer entered the Science Department in 1926 and has taught Physics and Chemistry. His B. S. degree was received in 1910 and in 1911 he was given the degree of M. S. In 1915 Dr. Brauer was given his Ph. D. from the University of California.

Laura Breehan, B. S., Instructor in the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, Texas, gave a course on Foods at the summer session of 1922.

Mrs. Helen Britton was secretary to the Director of the Training Department in 1922.

Edwin John Brown was a part time instructor in Psychology during 1926-27. Mr. Brown is an alumnus of the Kansas State Teachers College and has a master's degree from Stanford besides additional graduate study in the latter institution.

Emily Brown was an assistant in the Kindergarten Department from 1900 until 1902. She was later graduated from the General Elementary course and taught in San Jose for a few years before her death.

Elizabeth Buckingham taught Drawing and History from 1892 until 1895.

Elizabeth Lee Buckingham was a substitute in the English Department for six months in 1914. She is an alumnus of Stanford University where she received her master's degree, and where she is at present connected with the English department, as assistant professor of English.

In 1917-18 Miss Buckingham did graduate work at Columbia, and in 1926 she was made vice-president of the National Association of Teachers of Speech. During the year 1927 she has been editor of the Quarterly Journal of Speech Education.

Newell H. Bullock began his work as a teacher of Physiology in 1900.

About 1907 he went to Chicago to continue his medical studies, returning later to San Jose to open his medical practice. His connection with the Teachers College has continued since that time to the present as medical advisor, a work he carries on in addition to a large private practice.

Helen C. Bullock became a member of the library staff in September, 1927. Her higher education was received in the University of Michigan, where she received her A. B. degree.

John S. Bursch was a part time instructor in the department of Psychology during 1926-27. In addition to a bachelor of Science degree from the Kansas State Teachers College Mr. Bursch has a master's degree in science from Stanford University as well as additional graduate study.

Miss Bush. Assistant in Normal Department, spring term, 1868.

Fred E. Buss entered the service of this institution in 1924 and has been a member of the Science department, his subjects being Physiography, Geology, Astronomy, and Geography.

His elementary and high school training were received in the state of New York; also some of his college work was acquired at the Chataqua summer schools. From the Brigham University at Provo, Utah, he received his A. B. in 1913, while in 1923 Stanford bestowed upon him his Master's degree. Additional graduate work has also been taken at Stanford.

Marion Frances Butman has been since 1926 an instructor of the Department of Education and Teacher Training. Columbia University has given Miss Butman a bachelor of Science degree.

Susan L. Byrne has been in the department of Fine and Industrial Arts since 1920. Her elementary and high school education were received in Jackson, Michigan, and her college work has been mainly at Columbia University, which has given her B. S. and A. M. degrees.

J. H. Elwood taught music in the normal school as early as 1874, but was not regularly employed until some years later.

Until his death in 1901 he led the music and taught music classes. He was exceptionally gifted in his ability to lead large choruses. Small of stature and unimposing in personality he possessed a rare gift of compelling attention and of drawing music from the most unpromising material. His exceptional ability as a leader of large choruses was recognized throughout the community and when the dedicatory services in connection with the opening of Stanford University were held, Professor Elwood gathered and trained the large chorus which furnished the music on this occasion in the Stanford quadrangle. His death occurred at his San Jose home, September 24, 1901.

Rebecca F. English began her work in the primary department of the Training School in 1891. Exceptionally fine work in the San Francisco schools had brought her to the attention of the Normal School President, and although not intending to remain here she found her associations so congenial that she became permanently identified with this institution until her resignation in 1923.

Miss English was educated in Boston, and received a part of her teaching experience in New England before removing with her family to this coast.

She was pre-eminently fitted to deal with young children by reason of her intense love and sympathy for childhood, and her understanding of childish hearts, but her love of art lured her to intensive study along artistic lines, and she finally gave up her training school work and became identified with the art department.

One of the outstanding features of Miss English's connection with this school was the generous gift of her own talents and time and energy and skill to any and all who came to her for assistance. Neither labor nor time were held too precious if she could be of use to those who sought her advice or aid.

Her death occurred in August, 1924.

Warren English was an assistant in the Manual Arts Department for one year, 1912-1913.

After leaving the library, Miss Royce became private secretary to Dean Gresham, 1219 Sacramento Street, San Francisco, but she considers San Jose her home and has a permanent address at 693 South 2nd Street.

Miss Royce's mark upon this school is ineffaceable. No one who knew her will ever forget her quiet efficiency, her calm poise, her tireless labors, and her intimate contact with all the books, their location, and their content.

The following verse written by her in La Torre, 1915, shows not only her gifted mind, but it expresses her idea of the religion she practices:

Hail and Farewell! 'Tis the way of the wise
 'Tis the New World way of sharing our best;
 Wisdom dwells not alone in the elder East.
 Nor does strength come only out of the West.
 The North to the South gives, but takes return;
 The members are many, the body one.
 And mankind awakes, not alone to know
 There is a good in all things under the sun,
 But to feel with a thrill the old-time truth—
 Nothing truly is ours that useless lies;
 The treasure buried breeds moth and rust;
 'Tis the treasure broadcast that multiplies.

Edith M. Ruebsam was a member of the Kindergarten staff from 1915 until 1924. Her subjects included Constructive Activities, Kindergarten Curriculum, Child Psychology and Story Telling. Ralph W. Swetman was assistant professor of education in 1923. In addition to a master's degree he has done graduate study at Stanford University. He left this institution to become President of the Teachers College at Arcata, Humboldt County.

Mrs. Mary L. Swett. Native of Connecticut. Educated in Thompson Academy, Connecticut, and San Francisco public schools. Graduated at San Francisco Evening Normal School. Received State educational diploma November, 1865. Vice-Principal of Training School, January, 1866, to June 1867 Teacher in the Normal School, August, 1867 to December, 1867. Has not taught since. Married to John Swett, May 8, 1862. Has four children.

Harold Francis Taggart, M. A., gave a course in Social Science at the summer sessions in 1924, and 1925. He has a bachelor's degree from Earlhorn College, Indiana and a master's degree from the University of California.

C. Louis Thiele, M. A., Supervisor of Exact Sciences Detroit Teachers College, was on the staff of educational instruction during the summer session of 1923.

Helen Stanley Thomas has been connected with the Teacher Training Department since September, 1927 as supervisor of the third grade. She is a graduate of this school and has a bachelor's degree from U. C. For two years she was supervisor in the Santa Barbara State Teachers College and for seven years was connected with the Santa Barbara city schools.

Martha E. Thomas became assistant in the Home Economics Department in 1913 and remained for one year. She was graduated from the elementary department of the Normal School in 1910 and from the Home Economics Department three years later. Since leaving here she has secured an A. B. from the University of California, and has taught in the Home Economics department of Dos Palos and of Oakdale. In 1927 she was on the summer school staff of the San Jose State Teachers College as an instructor in Clothing Principles.

Jayne Thompson entered the school in 1899 as a teacher of Reading and Bookkeeping. She remained two years.

Jessica B. Thompson, (Mrs. A. H. Washburn). Native of Illinois. Educated in public schools of Illinois, San Jose Normal School, and University of Michigan. Taught in Normal School from August, 1883, to December, 1889. Specialties, literature and language. Married January 22, 1889. Mr. and Mrs. Washburn for many years conducted the Washburn Preparatory School in San Jose, afterwards retiring to their ranch near the eastern foothills. Mrs. Washburn is now a widow and resides at Los Gatos. She has two sons, both married.

Mary Jane Titus, a graduate of the Oswego State Normal School, New York was called to this institution in 1872 for the purpose of organizing the Training School. For ten years she was principal and for nine years was Dean of Women. In 1891 Miss Titus resigned and was married to E. H. Hazelton of Philadelphia, who was at the time residing in California. Mathematics and Methods were subjects taught by Miss Titus, and her crisp, direct, and forceful instruction, her capable handling of the training school problem, and her later, closer contact with the girls of the school in their social relations are valuable features in the history of this institution. Her address is 2441 Haste St., Berkeley, where her interest in club and civic activities gives her a full life.

Bernice Tompkins, instructor in the Social Science Department, came to this institution in the fall, 1927. She received her master's degree from Stanford.

Earl Towner was head of the music department during 1924-26. He received his bachelor's degree in music from the College of the Pacific. He has studied in the New England Conservatory of Music and previous to entering this college was identified with the music department in the Fresno City schools.

Martha M. Trimble became a member of the Training School Staff in 1909 as supervisor of the seventh grade. For the past two years she has been in the Psychology department as teacher of General Psychology, Educational Psychology and Measurements, and Educational Diagnosis. She is a graduate of this school and has a B. S. from Columbia. She has, in addition, done graduate work at the University of California and Stanford.

She has taught in the summer schools of the University of California, Dominican College, and Ursuline College, and gave a winter course at the Notre Dame College.

Miss Trimble, while an educator of the highest grade of excellence, possesses also, domestic qualities which have naturally made her a leader in the social activities of the faculty. Here her ability as a gracious hostess is an acknowledged tradition.

Gertrude Gail Tucker was appointed an instructor in the Physical Training Department in 1926. From the University of Oregon she has a bachelor's degree, and she has had additional study at Willamette University.

Bernice Turner (Mrs. F. Shaw) was telephone operator and stenographer from September 1925 to July 1927. She is a graduate of San Jose High School.

Margaret Twombly has been a teacher in the Physiology department since 1914. She received her bachelor's degree from Stanford University and has had graduate study in the University of Washington.

Clarence Urmy entered this institution in 1918 as an instructor in voice training and in music appreciation.

Mr. Urmy was born in San Francisco and was a graduate of the Methodist College at Santa Rosa. A native of San Francisco, his life was spent in this vicinity with the exception of a year in New York.

He was not only a musician, with a thorough training in voice and in piano and organ manipulation, but was a writer who had achieved national reputation from his exquisite verse, most of which has been gathered into books and published at various times—"A Rosary of Rhyme", "A California Troubadour", and others. An appreciation of Mr. Urmy who died in 1923 is given in another part of this volume.

Ida Vandergaw, was on the staff of Education at the summer session of 1927. She is a graduate of the San Jose State Normal School and is at present Director of Kindergarten and Primary work in the Oakland school department. She has been a student at the University of California, University of Chicago, and Columbia University.

Margaret Van Hoesen was a teacher in the Household Arts Department in 1916-17.

Calthea C. Vivian was head of the art department from 1900 until 1916, with leaves of absence at various times for study and travel. Special work in literature and philosophy in the University of California, training in art at the Crocker Art Gallery in Sacramento, two years at the Mark Hopkins Art School in San Francisco, and three years at Ateliers in Paris, France, where she had landscape painting under Lazar, form a splendid back-ground for Miss Vivian's art work.

She is a woman of very broad culture, not only in the line of art, where she excelled as a teacher and as a painter in oils and pastels, but, also in literature and history. She inspired her students with a deep appreciation and love of art, and since her resignation from the school she has produced and exhibited a large number of paintings which have placed her in the front ranks of California artists. She has a studio at Claremont, Hotel, Berkeley.

Isabelle Watermann was in the physical training department from 1920 until 1922. After her resignation she was married to Mr. Daniel Minahan.

Richard Werner entered the department of Natural Science in September, 1927. Mr. Werner has a B. S. degree from the Oregon Agricultural College and his Master's degree from the University of California. He was principal of the Esparto High School in 1917-18 when he entered the U. S. army. After the armistice he returned to the Esparto high school and remained until 1923 when he became connected with the department of Secondary Education as supervisor until he entered this college.

Cornelia Walker entered the normal school in 1873 as a teacher of English, Pedagogy and History. She was educated in New York and Minnesota, and taught in public schools and seminaries as well as in the normal school St. Cloud, Minnesota. She taught for a time in Root's Normal Music Institute, Chicago. While teaching in the Normal School Miss Walker took the time to complete the Chautauqua course, and had two semesters of work at the University of California, just for self improvement, with no thought of credit.

Miss Walker's life has not been inactive since leaving the normal school in 1900. For three years she was in the Hawaiian Islands, about half of this time being spent in the Susanah Wesley Home as a voluntary mission worker among the Japanese and Koreans. For a year and a half she traveled about the islands studying the history and folk lore, and has given many lectures on these subjects both in the east and in California. Her interest in this institution is still warm, and her literary contributions to the yearly class reunion held at the country residence of Congressman Albert Carter have always been a clever feature of this delightful gathering.

Alta M. Wall was an assistant in the kindergarten department for a few months in 1918. She is a graduate of this school, and is now Mrs. Fredrick Swain. Has two children.

Sylvia Wallace was a teacher in the department of Home Economics from 1920 until 1923, her special subject being foods. Her bachelor's degree was earned at Simmons College, Boston. After leaving the Teachers College she married Walter B. Smith and resides at Porterville. She has two sons.

Adele Walsh was assistant critic teacher in the primary grades of the Training department during 1901 and 1902. She taught for many years in the San Jose School Department until her retirement.

Mona Desmond Walsh was an assistant instructor in modern language in 1925. She is an alumnus of Stanford University and has done graduate study.

Mary Walter substituted from September, 1902 until January, 1904 for Miss Caroline Fielder. She had a bachelor's degree from Stanford and had had several years of successful experience in teaching. She is now (1927) on the editorial staff of the San Francisco Bulletin. Miss Walter's mother, Mrs. Carrie Stevens Walter, was a gifted writer.

Lucy M. Washburn. Native of New York. Educated in New York public schools and Academy, Normal School at Fredonia, Vassar College, and Cornell University. Taught one year in Wesfield Academy, New York; one year in Academic Department of Normal School, Fredonia, New York; two years in Hampton Normal and Agriculture Institute, Virginia; in Normal School, San Jose, from March, 1873, to 1900, with leave of absence of one year. Specialties, mathematics, Physiology, and zoology.

After leaving the normal school Miss Washburn taught in the Washburn Preparatory School, San Jose, and about 1914 returned to this school, and did some special instructional work in history.

Since leaving she has resided in Los Gatos, and devotes much of her time to church, club, and civic activities, in all of which she is a strong force.

Arthur H. Washburn taught Mathematics from 1892 until 1894. With his wife, Jessica Thompson Washburn, he conducted the Washburn Preparatory school in San Jose for many years. He lived on his ranch in the eastern foothills for sometime after retiring from school work, later moving to Los Gatos, where he died.

Frances Lillian Webster was a teacher of English from 1878 until 1881. She was born in New York and was educated in the Potsdam State Normal School. Upon her resignation in 1881 she married Lafayette Irving Fish of Martinez, California, where she resided until 1907. After that date her home was in Berkeley, where she died in 1923.

Edith Mabel Welty was a member of the Home Economics staff for two years, from 1915 until 1917. She taught sewing, dressmaking, costume design, millinery, textiles, and house decoration. She has a special diploma in Domestic Art from Columbia University. After her resignation Miss Welty married Arch H. Vining, San Jose.

H. E. White, was a teacher in the department of education and Teacher Training in the summer session of 1925.

Hazel Whitmire was an assistant in the Physical Training Department from 1915 until 1921. She is a graduate of this school, and has studied and traveled in Europe. After leaving the Normal School she was for a time attendance officer for Santa Clara County. She is now teaching physical education in a parochial school in San Jose.

William D. Whitehead began his work as instructor in Manual Training and wood work in 1891 and continued until the close of the school year.

Previous to this time he taught for ten years in the schools of Iowa. Since leaving the school he has been engaged in the business of carpentry and contracting.

Miss Anna Wieback was an instructor in the English department of the normal school during 1921.

Emily Wildhagen A. B., San Jose State Teachers' College. She was an assistant in the Primary Department during 1926-1927.

Alma L. Williams has been connected with the Music Department since 1923. Much of her training was received at the College of the Pacific Conservatory where she received her bachelor's degree in music.

Mrs. Grace Conklin Williams was Librarian of the Training School library from 1919 until 1925. She is a graduate of the Riverside Library School, and has taught in kindergarten and primary schools as supervisor for some years. She has published many articles along the line of elementary education, and is the author of "Little Book Shelf", and many children's stories.

William A. Willibrand M. A., Instructor in William Warren School, Menlo Park, California, gave courses in French and Spanish during the summer session of 1922.

John Douglas Wilson gave a course in Occupations and Home Mechanics in the 1925 summer session. Mr. Wilson has had training in the University of California and in the southern branch.

Mary E. Wilson (Mrs. T. C. George). Native of Wisconsin. Educated in public schools and California State Normal School. Graduated in 1875. Taught one year in public schools of Santa Clara County; critic teacher in Primary Class, Training Department, six years, 1876 to 1882; Principal of Training Department, six years, 1882 to 1888. Married June 7, 1888, to Professor T. C. George, of University of the Pacific, after which a year was spent traveling in Europe. For three years she was a member of the text book committee for the state of California, working in Sacramento, where her husband was located.

Mrs. George was connected with this institution almost continuously, with the exception of the years spent in travel, from 1876 until her resignation in 1920. Her special work in the Teachers' College, aside from the duties of Dean, an office which she filled most acceptably at the time of her resignation, was geography, and her extensive travels and broad study made her an authority upon the phase of human distribution of population.

A graduate of Stanford University, and a constant student of books and of life, a genius for friendship, made her one of the strong and powerful pillars of the institution she served for so many years.

Her residence is at Carmel Highlands where she recently returned after an extensive world trip through the southern hemisphere.

Lewis B. Wilson began his service in this institution in 1895, and continued until 1924. His subjects were Chemistry, and later, Physiography and Physics. Before coming to this state he was a student at the Washington and Jefferson College, and was a graduate of the San Jose State Normal School. At the University of California he took several courses, with no thought of credit. He was principal of one of the San Jose Grammar Schools for several years and of the San Jose High School for seven years. In addition to his teaching, Mr. Wilson was vice-president, and had full charge of programming the entering students, a work that called for the utmost patience and insight. Every student loved him, and went to him in trouble, always receiving help and a cheery word. His death occurred in 1924.

A more extended notice appears in another part of this book under Presidents.

Robert M. Wilson is a graduate of this normal school, and was appointed in the department of education in 1921 in connection with the rural supervision plan, which was being worked out at this time.

Ruth A. Wintermute was an assistant in the Household Arts Department in 1914-15. She married Clarence B. Hutty.

Margaret Frances Witter was a teacher in the music department for one year, from 1916 until 1917. She is a graduate of the University of California and has studied for a year in Paris. She was married in 1917 to Roy Page.

Daniel Return Wood was an instructor in Nature Study from 1902 until the time of his death in 1918. He was a graduate of a normal school and held a B. S. degree from Cornell University. He did some work in the University of California, and published a monograph on Nature Study in California Education, which was for several years used as a text. He had partially prepared a more extended work on Nature Study which was still incomplete at the time of his death.

When he resigned from the Berkeley High School this comment was made by the principal: "In his resignation we lost the best teacher we ever had in Chemistry and Physics, or ever again expect to get outside of the University faculty." Simple and unpretentious he possessed the fine discernment of the true and the beautiful in nature and in the human soul.

His death occurred suddenly on January 2, 1918.

James O. Wood has been a member of the English Department since 1925. His A. B. degree was obtained from the university of Oklahoma, and his M. A. from the University of California. He has done graduate work at the University of California and at Stanford. In "Theatre and School", in 1927 Mr. Wood published an article entitled "Pageants and a Pageant", a delightfully illuminating article on the subject of pageants with an exhaustive description of the particular pageant "The Nightingale and the Rose," produced at the college as a part of the program of La Fiesta de las Rosas in 1926.

Louise Wood is an instructor in the Home Making Department, entering in 1925. She is an alumnus of Ohio State University and has done graduate work at Stanford.

Carolyn Woodhull has been instructor in art during the year 1927-28. She has her degree from the University of California, Los Angeles.

Glenn Woods, Director of Music, Oakland School Department, was on the summer school instructional staff in the summer session of 1922.

Meredyth Woodward was connected with the kindergarten department from 1898 until 1899.

At this writing, (1927) she is married, (Mrs Unshutz), and is Director of the Nursery School of Education at Mills College.

David T. Wooster had charge of men's physical education and athletic coaching from 1921 until 1923. He has a B. S. in Education. He resides at Emporia, Kansas.

Ruth Ellen Wooster entered the Art Department in 1919. She has a B. A. degree from the State Teachers' College of Emporia, Kansas, and an M. A. from Teachers' College, Columbia University. One year was spent in the School of Fine and Applied Arts, New York, from which she obtained a special certificate. At the present time, (1927) she is head of the art department.

H. B. Worcester was a teacher of Bookkeeping for a short time in 1889. He was born in New York and served two years in the Civil war. He received a business education and taught in Jennings Seminary, Aurora, Illinois before coming to California. He was at one time connected with the business department of the University of the Pacific (now the College of the Pacific) and was the founder of the Garden City Business College which he conducted for twenty-four years. After leaving San Jose he resided in San Francisco where he died.

Helen S. Wright, Native of New York. Educated in public schools and academy, Fredonia, New York, and Boston Art School. Preceptress of Fredonia Academy between five and six years (during this time the school was made a Normal School); Preceptress, Academic Department, Potsdam Normal School, two years; teacher in seminary in Kentucky, two years; teacher in Normal School, San Jose, from June, 1876, to June 1888. Specialties, English language and literature. Preceptress from August, 1877, to June 1888. Absent during school year 1888-89, on leave of absence, traveling in Europe.

Miss Wright died quite suddenly in June, 1899, leaving to this school the heritage of a lovely character of womanly sweetness and strength.

Lulu E. Wunderlich was supervisor of the fifth grade in the Training Department from 1914 until 1923. She is a graduate of this institution, and since leaving here has been connected with the school department of Oakland.

Dorothy Yates (Mrs.) became assistant professor of Psychology in 1923. Her work has earned her a doctor's degree from the University of California although her B. A. was received at Wellesley. Since 1924 she has been associate professor of psychology, and in 1926 was given a leave of absence for further study and travel.

Rose Zellerbach was a teacher of Chemistry from 1899 until 1902. Later married. Her death occurred some years ago.

Clara Zyve was an instructor in Education and Teacher Training during 1924-26. She has a bachelor's degree from the Colorado State Teachers' College and has had graduate study at the Colorado University and at Stanford.
